DARING U. N. THRUST SPLITS REDS

U.S. Non-Battle Casualties Are Set At 72,679

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — A disclosure that there have been 72,679 non-battle casualties in Korea today boosted the total of all U. S. casualties in the Korean war to 141,955.

The new figure came out in tesmony by Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff before Senate committees. Heretofore, official casualty announcements have been limited almost entirely to those suffered in battle.

Bradley told the senators that there have been 69,276 battle casualties, including 10,680 dead. He totaled non-battle casualties at 72,679 including 612 dead of such causes as pneumonia, automobile accidents, etc.

. . . 85% Returned To Duty . . .

Eighty-five per cent of the non-battle casualties have returned to duty, he said, defending the Defense Department policy of not including those casualties in its public print.

Sen. Bridges (R-NH) asked whether the department had considered this information too confidential to disclose. Bradley replied:

'No sir. I think they are just apt to be misleading if you do, because a lot of those people just go back, for example, into a hospital or an aid station one night, with a cold or something else; a man that has to go back to have a tooth pulled, he is only out a day or two and goes back. It varies all the way from that to those who are hospitalized and those who die as a result of non-battle injuries."

13,349 Missing In Action

Before the exact figures were available from the closed door testimony, Bridges told newsmen that total casualties — battle and non-battle—"are substantially more than double those officially announced."

"Non-battle casualties have been kept from the public announcements even though they include men who have suffered frozen legs and arms that have been amputated," Bridges said.

Bradley told the senators the casualty totals include 13,349 missing in action and "I would even hesitate to make an estimate" as to how many of those may eventually be freed alive.

He indicated he took a gloomy view on this, however, by saying:

"In fighting the Germans we usually got back a very large percentage" but "in fighting the North Koreans I am afraid the percentage we get back will be very much smaller."

Launch With 135 Sailors Aboard Capsizes; 2 Die

15 Of Survivors In Serious Condition

NEWPORT, R. I., May 24 (AP)—A howling northeaster capsized 135 sailors in a small launch today and all but two were pulled to safety after nearby boatloads of shipmates raced to their aid.

The Navy listed two dead and 15 "stretcher cases" in serious condition at the hospital at this big naval base. Chief of Staff Capt. T. H. Templeton said he didn't believe there were any others missing but would not be sure until after a roster check of five vessels.

Dead Are Identified

One of the dead was identified as Edmund E. Turner, radarman second class of Westmont, N. J. His widow, Catherine, lives in Newport. They were married five months.

The other victim was identified as George Edward Wright, seaman, Tracy City, Tenn.

Capt. Templeton said it was "a rescue by the grace of God because when it did happen the harbor was full of boats going back to other ships."

"Everything Calm But Ocean"

Dripping but grinning shortly after he was brought ashore one of the capsize victims, Seaman Paul L. Riddle, 22, (address unavailable) told newsmen: "Nobody got panicky. Everything was calm but the ocean."

The 50-foot motor launch overturned about a quarter mile out after leaving a wharf here to return men from overnight shore leave to the destroyers Power, Glennon, Bailey and Perry and the destroyer-tender Yellowstone.

Huge waves roared across the launch's bow and she dipped and rolled over about 6:45 a. m. (EST).

Funston Is Elected Stock Exchange Head

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP) — By unanimous vote, governors of the New York Stock Exchange today elected George Keith Funston, six-foot 40-year-old industrialist and educator, president of the exchange at an annual salary of $100,000.

Funston will succeed Emil Schram, president of the exchange since July, 1941, who retired last May 1.

Body Of Missing Child Is Found In Rude Grave

Suspect Will Face Grand Jury Today

SANTA ANA, Calif., May 24 (AP)—The bludgeoned body of 10-year-old Patricia Jean Hull, missing since a movie matinee last Saturday, was found today buried in a lonely, wooded canyon 35 miles from her home.

The gruesome discovery in the idyllic setting ended one of Southern California's major searches — one in which more than 1,500 persons, including Marines and soldiers, scoured Orange County for five days.

Sheriff James Musick said the girl's head had been bashed in.

Suspect Faces Grand Jury

Henry Ford McCracken, 34-year-old guitar player held since Sunday on suspicion of kidnaping, will be taken before the grand jury tomorrow.

Near the body, the sheriff reported, was a bloodstained yellow bedspread. Officers said a yellow bedspread is missing from McCracken's motel cabin.

Another factor, Musick said, was that the body was found off lonely Trabuco Canyon road, over which McCracken had traveled almost daily while working recently on the county jail road gang. McCracken was released May 6 after serving six months for failure to register as a sex offender, a California law.

Body Fully Clothed

Sheriff Musick said the body was fully clothed and covered by 15 inches of soil and oak leaf mold in a heavily shrubbed and wooded area. The sheriff said that the girl apparently had received two heavy blows on the side of her head.

Meantime McCracken's attorney, George Chula, said today he is "strongly considering" a plea of innocent by reason of insanity if his guitar-playing client is indicted tomorrow.

$190,000,000 Loan For India Voted By House

WASHINGTON, May 24. (AP)—The House voted today to lend famine-stricken India $190,000,000 for the purchase of American grain and other foodstuffs.

It refused to require the Indian government to repay the loan in strategic war materials, but directed the Economic Cooperation Administration, which would negotiate terms, to try to get some scarce materials as part of the deal.

A companion bill was passed by the Senate last week. Since it disagrees with the House measure in several ways, the legislation now goes to a Senate-House conference committee to have the differences ironed out.

The roll-call vote in the House today was 293 to 94. For the bill were 171 Democrats, 121 Republicans and one Independent. Against were 36 Democrats and 58 Republicans.

In its final form, the House measure requires that the food be purchased in the United States and that at least half of it be transported to India in American vessels. The ECA would have a free hand in arranging credit terms.

PANAMA, Panama, May 24 (AP) — Arnulfio Arias, ousted president of Panama, goes on trial tomorrow before the National Assembly.

Spinster, In Will, Requests To Be Buried Under Pyramid

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 24 (AP)—A spinster wanted to go back 5,000 years in death and be buried like the pharaohs of ancient Egypt.

So in her will, Florence Groff—close to antiquity all her life—asked to be buried beneath a pyramid.

The strange request led three relatives to contest the will in a court battle that opened today.

Miss Groff died in 1948, leaving a $35,000 estate. She lived in Hasting, N. Y.

Her father, Dr. William T. Groff, Cincinnati, was an archaeologist and his family went with him on many trips to the Middle East.

There Miss Groff presumably became impressed by the pyramids—tombs of royalty who lived before 3,000 B. C.

She specified that she wanted a 425 square foot pyramid above their graves, inscribed with the English, Greek and Egyptian versions of the family name.

SUSPECT—Indictment of Henry Ford McCracken (above), a musician, on charges of murder, kidnaping and child stealing will be asked at Santa Ana, Calif., today. McCracken has been on suspicion of kidnaping 10-year-old Patricia Jean Hull, whose body was found in a shallow grave yesterday. (AP Wirephoto)

President Asks $8,500,000,000 For Foreign Aid

"Defensive Shield" Is Urged By Truman

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — President Truman asked for $8,-5,000,000 today to help friendly nations throw up "a defensive shield" against Communist Russia.

"The Soviet threat is world-wide," he said in a message to Congress outlining a broad new foreign aid program. He said the Communist attack may come through "armies marching across frontiers," or by slyer means such as internal subversion, political infiltration or sabotage.

Accent Is On Europe

In asking new billions to help puncture Soviet Russia's "dreams of world conquest," Mr. Truman said the money will go to speed shipments of American arms and economic aid to nearly 50 friendly countries around the world. These include Formosa, Iran and other powder keg centers in the global picture, but the heavy accent was on Europe. Nearly two-thirds of the total was sought for arming Atlantic pact nations.

Slightly over two-thirds of the total, $6,250,000,000, would be earmarked for military aid. The balance of $2,250,000,000 would go for economic help.

Shield For Defense

Declaring that Soviet rulers "may soon start all-out aggression," Mr. Truman told Congress:

"With this program of assistance, we will move forward rapidly toward a situation giving reasonable assurance against aggression. The creation of this strength will provide a defensive shield . . . for all the free world.

"This shield threatens no one. It will never be used for aggression. But it will be used instantly for defense."

Fanny Brice Stricken; In Critical Condition

LOS ANGELES, May 24 (AP)—Comedienne Fanny Brice, 59, suffered a cerebral hemorrhage today at her home.

She was taken to Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, where her condition was reported critical.

Miss Brice, creator of the "Baby Snooks" character on stage and radio, first gained fame singing "My Man" in the Ziegfeld Follies in the early 1920s.

The National Broadcasting Company said Miss Brice had been unconscious since suffering the stroke and was placed in an oxygen tent.

Benevolence Skipper Guilty Of Negligence

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24 (AP) — A Navy court-martial today convicted Capt. Barton E. Bacon, Jr., of negligence in the handling of the Navy hospital ship Benevolence. She collided with a freighter and sank with a loss of 23 lives off the Golden Gate last August 25.

Chinese Surged Between Allies In Winter Drive

GOP Move To Quiz Acheson Next Fails

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — Gen. Omar N. Bradley said today that the Pentagon twice warned Gen. Douglas MacArthur last fall to close the wide gap separating his forces in North Korea.

It was through this gap—stretching between the Eighth Army on the west and the 10th Corps in the northeast corner—that many of the Chinese Communists surged in their great winter offensive, inflicting the heaviest American casualties of the war.

Bradley, winding up his sixth and last day of testimony in the Senate investigation of MacArthur's dismissal, declined to estimate how many Americans were lost as a result of the Far Eastern commander's disposition of his troops.

To Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.), who suggested that MacArthur's "misjudgment" brought about "our heaviest casualties," the chairman of the joint chiefs said:

"It is hard to sit back here and say how many of those lost were due to the fact that the right flank was exposed or how many of them were due to the fact that the Chinese hit him harder than he expected."

Collins To Testify Next

With Bradley's testimony ended, Senate investigators voted down after heated debate a move by Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) to call Secretary of State Acheson as the next witness.

The 14 to 11 vote to get further testimony from the joint chiefs before hearing Acheson was almost strictly on party lines. Sen. Morse (R-Ore.), however, voted with 13 Democrats, and Sen. Gillette (D-Ia.) did not vote.

The Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees arranged to hear Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army chief of staff, tomorrow.

Bradley warned in his testimony that the U. S. and its North Atlantic Treaty allies could not stop a Russian aggression at this time.

"It may be," he said, "that right at this moment we do have more diplomatic commitments than we can carry out militarily."

But he added quickly that this is no reason to back away from the western defense alliance. Instead, Bradley said, this country should work for a buildup of western

Judge Holds Up Execution Of 7 Germans

LANDSBERG, Germany, May 24 (AP)—Seven condemned German war prisoners, sitting red jacketed and grim in death row, received word of their second stay of execution tonight only an hour and one minute before they were to hang.

The chaplain at the American war crimes prison here informed the wives of the seven prisoners, gathered at a little hotel not far from the prison, that U. S. District Judge Walter M. Bastian of Washington, D. C., was holding up the executions while he studied the case.

The seven women had come away from the prison red-eyed and weeping only this afternoon. But there was no sign of sadness tonight. After expressing their happiness, they gathered in the hotel parlor while the chaplain led a prayer of thanks. None of them could believe their men would take the steps to the gallows a third time.

In Bonn, West German capital, German officials expressed the hope the new stay might led to a revision of the death sentences. Vice-chancellor Franz Bluecher, who had sent last-minute appeal on behalf of the condemned men to U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy, said there were "serious errors" in the trial proceedings. He added:

"If these errors are not at least reviewed, then we will have a new nationalistic legend."

By this he clearly meant that a failure to review the death sentences would feed the spirit of German nationalism. Many high German officials and many newspapers have complained bitterly about the death sentences.

Middies' "Color Girl"

Fredda Coupland, 21-year-old senior at Stetson University, Deland, Fla., will reign as the Naval Academy's "Color Girl" for 1951. She was named by Midshipman James A. Winnefeld, 22, Kansas City. Miss Coupland is a brown-eyed, brownette, five-feet four inches tall. She will arrive in Annapolis Monday.

Reds, Yanks Fight "Invasion" Of Iran

TEHRAN, Iran, May 24 (AP) — The Russians and Americans are fighting a common enemy in Iran—locusts.

Nine Soviet planes have arrived in meshed in northern Iran to battle the biggest locust invasion in 50 years the ministry of Agriculture said today.

For more than a month eight American planes have been spraying insectide on locusts in Southern Iran.

Russia and the U. S. sent the planes after Iran appealed for aid in fighting the locusts.

Harriman Sees Red "Disaster"

DENVER, May 24 (AP) — Presidential Adviser W. Averell Harriman told cheering Democrats today the Red Chinese face a "disaster" in Korea that may shake the Kremlin.

Vigorously backing President Truman's program for containing the war in Korea, Harriman told delegates to a 26-state party conference credit for retreat of Red armies can be given to Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway and Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet.

Ridgway succeeded Gen. Douglas MacArthur, whose proposals for expanding the war against Red China were condemned not only by Harriman but by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan.

Harriman forecast what he called Communist "failure" in Korea may force Russia to reorient its policies toward peace to prevent "disintegration" in the Kremlin's control.

Brannan substituted for Vice President Barkley—kept in Washington by illness in his family—in a conference windup speech preparatory to tomorrow's meeting of the national committee which is expected to pick Chicago for its presidential nominating convention in the week of July 21, 1952.

McCarthy Resumes Attack On Acheson

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis), in a new attack on Secretary of State Acheson, said today Acheson has "tried to make sure that we could not win in battle."

He also said the "death warrant" for Americans fighting in Korea "has been signed and sealed by politicians who are running our State Department."

At another point he referred to "the treacherous Red clique in power" in the department, and at still another he spoke of Acheson "and your lace handkerchief crowd."

McCarthy, who repeatedly has charged the State Department was harboring Communist sympathizers, made the statements in a Senate speech. He said the department has been trying to override U. S. military officials in running the Korean war.

Truman Believes His Policies Will Avert World War

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—President Truman warned today a third world war might bring a return to the "dark ages" and turn American soil into a battlefront. But he expressed the hope that his program and policies will avert such a catastrophe.

He told a news conference that he is "confident" — not "cocky" as some writers have reported—that his policies are right and have the support of the people of the United States and of the world.

He said he believes the American people have enough intelligence and energy to meet any situation, but he is not willing to take a chance on seeing how they would react under the destruction which another world struggle would bring.

Permits Use Of Quotes

"That is the reason I don't want a third world war," he said. He granted a request that a sizable portion of these remarks be quoted directly.

The President volunteered his statement about policies near the end of a lengthy news conference in which he again declined to state whether he will be a candidate again in 1952, but said the season is still open for all who want to run.

He said if and when he decides to make a cross-country speaking trip—as he said he might in a message to a meeting of Democrats in Denver yesterday—the purpose would be to tell the people the truth and facts just as he said he did in the 1948 campaign.

Doesn't Like Word "Cockey"

As the conference was about to close, Mr. Truman said he had a comment to make, that he wanted to have an understanding with the press. He said some of his friends who write columns have been saying lately that he had a "cocky" attitude.

He said he didn't like that word 'cocky," and he preferred "confident." He recalled that he was careful after his 1948 election "not to appear cocky, or as if I wanted to press somebody down," and that he is not in that mood now.

Armored Task Force Plunges Above Parallel

Allied Units Drive Back Into Chunchon

TOKYO, Friday, May 25 (AP)—A powerful Allied armored task force plunged north across the 38th parallel Thursday and split Communist forces reeling back in defeat in East-Central Korea.

The daring 13-mile thrust smashed to the banks of the Choyang River through streams of Reds. Field dispatches promptly labeled it one of the boldest strokes of the Korean war.

"We expect great things of this effort," messaged Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, U. S. 10th Corps commander, who ordered the swift attack.

This was the only confirmed crossing of the 38th parallel along the entire 125-mile front. But the resurgent U. S. Eighth Army closed to within one to four miles of the old political boundary elsewhere along the front as the Chinese and North Koreans fell back north at a dog trot pace.

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the Eighth Army, served notice that the controversial boundary would not prevent his victorious troops from maintaining the initiative and inflicting the maximum number of casualties on the Communists.

Reds Bolster Rear Guards

One frontline officer told AP Correspondent Jim Becker it was apparent the Chinese had abandoned the offensive and were rapidly withdrawing the main body of their forces on the central front. However, he cautioned the Reds were reinforcing their defense screen—rear guards—all along the east-central front.

More powerful screening forces were being rushed south by the Reds together with supplies, to keep the Allies from cutting the main Communist withdrawal route.

This report tallied with air observations of Red vehicles moving by night from Chorwon to Hwachon across the central front and well above the 38th parallel. Other Red vehicles were again streaming southward from the Manchurian border into Northwest Korea.

While the powerful armada of tanks and vehicles carried United Nations troops into Red Korea for the third time in the war, Allied units pushed back into Chunchon. It was the seventh time that battered road center changed hands.

Many Reds Surrender

Communist pockets still resisted south of strategic Hunchon which is only eight miles south of the parallel and 45 miles northeast of Seoul.

Units entering Chunchon reported capturing "more enemy than we could handle." The number of prisoners was deleted by censors.

Other Allied forces quickly advanced north of Chunchon and crossed the Choyang River above the city. They probed northward without contact.

This was not to be confused with the Allied drive to the south banks of the Choyang farther east. Censorship did not permit locating this latter push.

West of Chunchon U. S. spearheads smashed to within five miles of 38 north of Uijongbu in Korea's traditional invasion corridor. Uijongbu is 11 miles north of Seoul.

Chairman Quits Post

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — Charles M. LaFollette refused today to continue as chairman of a government panel trying to decide whether the Communist Party must register as a foreign agency controlled by the Kremlin.

The former Republican representative from Indiana complained that he was held in "disdain" by William A. Paisley, chief government attorney. He said Paisley's attitude "quite evidently is being transmitted" to the government's witnesses in hearings the panel is conducting.

Colonel Intervenes, Permits Mother, Wife Bid GI Goodbye

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP) — They wanted to tell Pvt. Donald Sikorski, 23, goodbye, but his mother, Mrs. John Sikorski, Scranton, Pa., and his bride of two months, Lillian, today got to a Staten Island pier too late.

Pvt. Sikorski, along with his platoon of the Europe-bound Fourth Infantry's Eighth Regimental Combat Team, already had gone up the gangway of the Gen. R. E. Callan.

Mother and wife stood sobbing on the pier.

Sikorski saw them and tried to get back down the gangway, but was stopped by officers.

He stood at the rail, sobbing too.

His battalion commander, Lt. Col. Lynell Green, Pryor, Okla., who had been busy getting stragglers aboard, noticed the situation. He walked over, took Sikorski by the arm, and escorted him back down the gangway.

"It's against the rules," he said, "but I'm a reasonable man."

Sheriff James Musick said the girl's head had been bashed in.

Suspect Faces Grand Jury

Near the body, the sheriff reported, was a bloodstained yellow bedspread. Officers said a yellow bedspread is missing from McCracken's motel cabin.

Another factor, Musick said, was that the body was found off lonely Trabuco Canyon road, over which McCracken had traveled almost daily while working recently on the county jail road gang. McCracken was released May 6 after serving six months for failure to register as a sex offender, a California law.

Body Fully Clothed

Sheriff Musick said the body was fully clothed and covered by 15 inches of soil and oak leaf mold in a heavily shrubbed and wooded area. The sheriff said that the girl apparently had received two heavy blows on the side of her head.

Meantime McCracken's attorney, George Chula, said today he is "strongly considering" a plea of innocent by reason of insanity if his guitar-playing client is indicted tomorrow.

$190,000,000 Loan For India Voted By House

WASHINGTON, May 24. (AP)—The House voted today to lend famine-stricken India $190,000,000 for the purchase of American grain and other foodstuffs.

It refused to require the Indian government to repay the loan in strategic war materials, but directed the Economic Cooperation Administration, which would negotiate terms, to try to get some scarce materials as part of the deal.

A companion bill was passed by the Senate last week. Since it disagrees with the House measure in several ways, the legislation now goes to a Senate-House conference committee to have the differences ironed out.

The roll-call vote in the House today was 293 to 94. For the bill were 171 Democrats, 121 Republicans and one Independent. Against were 36 Democrats and 58 Republicans.

In its final form, the House measure requires that the food be purchased in the United States and that at least half of it be transported to India in American vessels. The ECA would have a free hand in arranging credit terms.

Arias On Trial Today

PANAMA, Panama, May 24 (AP) — Arnulfio Arias, ousted president of Panama, goes on trial tomorrow before the National Assembly.

SUSPECT—Indictment of Henry Ford McCracken (above), a musician, on charges of murder, kidnaping and child stealing will be asked at Santa Ana, Calif., today. McCracken has been on suspicion of kidnaping 10-year-old Patricia Jean Hull, whose body was found in a shallow grave yesterday. (AP Wirephoto)

President Asks $8,500,000,000 For Foreign Aid

"Defensive Shield" Is Urged By Truman

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — President Truman asked for $8,-5,000,000 today to help friendly nations throw up "a defensive shield" against Communist Russia.

"The Soviet threat is world-wide," he said in a message to Congress outlining a broad new foreign aid program. He said the Communist attack may come through "armies marching across frontiers," or by slyer means such as internal subversion, political infiltration or sabotage.

Accent Is On Europe

In asking new billions to help puncture Soviet Russia's "dreams of world conquest," Mr. Truman said the money will go to speed shipments of American arms and economic aid to nearly 50 friendly countries around the world. These include Formosa, Iran and other powder keg centers in the global picture, but the heavy accent was on Europe. Nearly two-thirds of the total was sought for arming Atlantic pact nations.

Slightly over two-thirds of the total, $6,250,000,000, would be earmarked for military aid. The balance of $2,250,000,000 would go for economic help.

Shield For Defense

Declaring that Soviet rulers "may soon start all-out aggression," Mr. Truman told Congress:

"With this program of assistance, we will move forward rapidly toward a situation giving reasonable assurance against aggression. The creation of this strength will provide a defensive shield . . . for all the free world.

"This shield threatens no one. It will never be used for aggression. But it will be used instantly for defense."

Fanny Brice Stricken; In Critical Condition

LOS ANGELES, May 24 (AP)—Comedienne Fanny Brice, 59, suffered a cerebral hemorrhage today at her home.

She was taken to Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, where her condition was reported critical.

Miss Brice, creator of the "Baby Snooks" character on stage and radio, first gained fame singing "My Man" in the Ziegfeld Follies in the early 1920s.

The National Broadcasting Company said Miss Brice had been unconscious since suffering the stroke and was placed in an oxygen tent.

Benevolence Skipper Guilty Of Negligence

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24 (AP) — A Navy court-martial today convicted Capt. Barton E. Bacon, Jr., of negligence in the handling of the Navy hospital ship Benevolence. She collided with a freighter and sank with a loss of 23 lives off the Golden Gate last August 25.

Tries It In Reverse

DARTMOUTH, Eng., May 24 (AP)—Stanley Smith, who crossed the Atlantic from America in a 20-foot boat in 1949, set out today in the same boat to make the trip in reverse.

Chinese Surged Between Allies In Winter Drive

GOP Move To Quiz Acheson Next Fails

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — Gen. Omar N. Bradley said today that the Pentagon twice warned Gen. Douglas MacArthur last fall to close the wide gap separating his forces in North Korea.

It was through this gap—stretching between the Eighth Army on the west and the 10th Corps in the northeast corner—that many of the Chinese Communists surged in their great winter offensive, inflicting the heaviest American casualties of the war.

Bradley, winding up his sixth and last day of testimony in the Senate investigation of MacArthur's dismissal, declined to estimate how many Americans were lost as a result of the Far Eastern commander's disposition of his troops.

To Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.), who suggested that MacArthur's "misjudgment" brought about "our heaviest casualties," the chairman of the joint chiefs said:

"It is hard to sit back here and say how many of those lost were due to the fact that the right flank was exposed or how many of them were due to the fact that the Chinese hit him harder than he expected."

Collins To Testify Next

With Bradley's testimony ended, Senate investigators voted down after heated debate a move by Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) to call Secretary of State Acheson as the next witness.

The 14 to 11 vote to get further testimony from the joint chiefs before hearing Acheson was almost strictly on party lines. Sen. Morse (R-Ore.), however, voted with 13 Democrats, and Sen. Gillette (D-Ia.) did not vote.

The Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees arranged to hear Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army chief of staff, tomorrow.

Bradley warned in his testimony that the U. S. and its North Atlantic Treaty allies could not stop a Russian aggression at this time.

"It may be," he said, "that right at this moment we do have more diplomatic commitments than we can carry out militarily."

But he added quickly that this is no reason to back away from the western defense alliance. Instead, Bradley said, this country should work for a buildup of western

Judge Holds Up Execution Of 7 Germans

LANDSBERG, Germany, May 24 (AP)—Seven condemned German war prisoners, sitting red jacketed and grim in death row, received word of their second stay of execution tonight only an hour and one minute before they were to hang.

The chaplain at the American war crimes prison here informed the wives of the seven prisoners, gathered at a little hotel not far from the prison, that U. S. District Judge Walter M. Bastian of Washington, D. C., was holding up the executions while he studied the case.

The seven women had come away from the prison red-eyed and weeping only this afternoon. But there was no sign of sadness tonight. After expressing their happiness, they gathered in the hotel parlor while the chaplain led a prayer of thanks. None of them could believe their men would take the steps to the gallows a third time.

In Bonn, West German capital, German officials expressed the hope the new stay might led to a revision of the death sentences. Vice-chancellor Franz Bluecher, who had sent last-minute appeal on behalf of the condemned men to U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy, said there were "serious errors" in the trial proceedings. He added:

By this he clearly meant that a failure to review the death sentences would feed the spirit of German nationalism. Many high German officials and many newspapers have complained bitterly about the death sentences.

Middies' "Color Girl"

Fredda Coupland, 21-year-old senior at Stetson University, Deland, Fla., will reign as the Naval Academy's "Color Girl" for 1951. She was named by Midshipman James A. Winnefeld, 22, Kansas City. Miss Coupland is a brown-eyed, brownette, five-feet four inches tall. She will arrive in Annapolis Monday.

Reds, Yanks Fight "Invasion" Of Iran

TEHRAN, Iran, May 24 (AP) — The Russians and Americans are fighting a common enemy in Iran—locusts.

Nine Soviet planes have arrived in meshed in northern Iran to battle the biggest locust invasion in 50 years the ministry of Agriculture said today.

For more than a month eight American planes have been spraying insectide on locusts in Southern Iran.

Russia and the U. S. sent the planes after Iran appealed for aid in fighting the locusts.

Harriman Sees Red "Disaster"

DENVER, May 24 (AP) — Presidential Adviser W. Averell Harriman told cheering Democrats today the Red Chinese face a "disaster" in Korea that may shake the Kremlin.

Vigorously backing President Truman's program for containing the war in Korea, Harriman told delegates to a 26-state party conference credit for retreat of Red armies can be given to Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway and Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet.

Ridgway succeeded Gen. Douglas MacArthur, whose proposals for expanding the war against Red China were condemned not only by Harriman but by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan.

Harriman forecast what he called Communist "failure" in Korea may force Russia to reorient its policies toward peace to prevent "disintegration" in the Kremlin's control.

Brannan substituted for Vice President Barkley—kept in Washington by illness in his family—in a conference windup speech preparatory to tomorrow's meeting of the national committee which is expected to pick Chicago for its presidential nominating convention in the week of July 21, 1952.

McCarthy Resumes Attack On Acheson

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis), in a new attack on Secretary of State Acheson, said today Acheson has "tried to make sure that we could not win in battle."

He also said the "death warrant" for Americans fighting in Korea "has been signed and sealed by politicians who are running our State Department."

At another point he referred to "the treacherous Red clique in power" in the department, and at still another he spoke of Acheson "and your lace handkerchief crowd."

McCarthy, who repeatedly has charged the State Department was harboring Communist sympathizers, made the statements in a Senate speech. He said the department has been trying to override U. S. military officials in running the Korean war.

Truman Believes His Policies Will Avert World War

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—President Truman warned today a third world war might bring a return to the "dark ages" and turn American soil into a battlefront. But he expressed the hope that his program and policies will avert such a catastrophe.

He told a news conference that he is "confident" — not "cocky" as some writers have reported—that his policies are right and have the support of the people of the United States and of the world.

He said he believes the American people have enough intelligence and energy to meet any situation, but he is not willing to take a chance on seeing how they would react under the destruction which another world struggle would bring.

Permits Use Of Quotes

"That is the reason I don't want a third world war," he said. He granted a request that a sizable portion of these remarks be quoted directly.

The President volunteered his statement about policies near the end of a lengthy news conference in which he again declined to state whether he will be a candidate again in 1952, but said the season is still open for all who want to run.

He said if and when he decides to make a cross-country speaking trip—as he said he might in a message to a meeting of Democrats in Denver yesterday—the purpose would be to tell the people the truth and facts just as he said he did in the 1948 campaign.

Doesn't Like Word "Cockey"

As the conference was about to close, Mr. Truman said he had a comment to make, that he wanted to have an understanding with the press. He said some of his friends who write columns have been saying lately that he had a "cocky" attitude.

He said he didn't like that word 'cocky," and he preferred "confident." He recalled that he was careful after his 1948 election "not to appear cocky, or as if I wanted to press somebody down," and that he is not in that mood now.

Armored Task Force Plunges Above Parallel

Allied Units Drive Back Into Chunchon

TOKYO, Friday, May 25 (AP)—A powerful Allied armored task force plunged north across the 38th parallel Thursday and split Communist forces reeling back in defeat in East-Central Korea.

The daring 13-mile thrust smashed to the banks of the Choyang River through streams of Reds. Field dispatches promptly labeled it one of the boldest strokes of the Korean war.

This was the only confirmed crossing of the 38th parallel along the entire 125-mile front. But the resurgent U. S. Eighth Army closed to within one to four miles of the old political boundary elsewhere along the front as the Chinese and North Koreans fell back north at a dog trot pace.

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the Eighth Army, served notice that the controversial boundary would not prevent his victorious troops from maintaining the initiative and inflicting the maximum number of casualties on the Communists.

Reds Bolster Rear Guards

The Reds withdrew rapidly with U. N. forces in hot pursuit.

One frontline officer told AP Correspondent Jim Becker it was apparent the Chinese had abandoned the offensive and were rapidly withdrawing the main body of their forces on the central front. However, he cautioned the Reds were reinforcing their defense screen—rear guards—all along the east-central front.

More powerful screening forces were being rushed south by the Reds together with supplies, to keep the Allies from cutting the main Communist withdrawal route.

This report tallied with air observations of Red vehicles moving by night from Chorwon to Hwachon across the central front and well above the 38th parallel. Other Red vehicles were again streaming southward from the Manchurian border into Northwest Korea.

While the powerful armada of tanks and vehicles carried United Nations troops into Red Korea for the third time in the war, Allied units pushed back into Chunchon. It was the seventh time that battered road center changed hands.

Many Reds Surrender

Communist pockets still resisted south of strategic Hunchon which is only eight miles south of the parallel and 45 miles northeast of Seoul.

Units entering Chunchon reported capturing "more enemy than we could handle." The number of prisoners was deleted by censors.

This was not to be confused with the Allied drive to the south banks of the Choyang farther east. Censorship did not permit locating this latter push.

West of Chunchon U. S. spearheads smashed to within five miles of 38 north of Uijongbu in Korea's traditional invasion corridor. Uijongbu is 11 miles north of Seoul.

Chairman Quits Post

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — Charles M. LaFollette refused today to continue as chairman of a government panel trying to decide whether the Communist Party must register as a foreign agency controlled by the Kremlin.

The former Republican representative from Indiana complained that he was held in "disdain" by William A. Paisley, chief government attorney. He said Paisley's attitude "quite evidently is being transmitted" to the government's witnesses in hearings the panel is conducting.

Spinster, In Will, Requests To Be Buried Under Pyramid

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 24 (AP)—A spinster wanted to go back 5,000 years in death and be buried like the pharaohs of ancient Egypt.

So in her will, Florence Groff—close to antiquity all her life—asked to be buried beneath a pyramid.

The strange request led three relatives to contest the will in a court battle that opened today.

Miss Groff died in 1948, leaving a $35,000 estate. She lived in Hasting, N. Y.

Her father, Dr. William T. Groff, Cincinnati, was an archaeologist and his family went with him on many trips to the Middle East.

There Miss Groff presumably became impressed by the pyramids—tombs of royalty who lived before 3,000 B. C.

She specified that she wanted a 425 square foot pyramid above their graves, inscribed with the English, Greek and Egyptian versions of the family name.

Colonel Intervenes, Permits Mother, Wife Bid GI Goodbye

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP) — They wanted to tell Pvt. Donald Sikorski, 23, goodbye, but his mother, Mrs. John Sikorski, Scranton, Pa., and his bride of two months, Lillian, today got to a Staten Island pier too late.

Pvt. Sikorski, along with his platoon of the Europe-bound Fourth Infantry's Eighth Regimental Combat Team, already had gone up the gangway of the Gen. R. E. Callan.

Mother and wife stood sobbing on the pier.

He stood at the rail, sobbing too.

His battalion commander, Lt. Col. Lynell Green, Pryor, Okla., who had been busy getting stragglers aboard, noticed the situation. He walked over, took Sikorski by the arm, and escorted him back down the gangway.

"It's against the rules," he said, "but I'm a reasonable man."

Iran Fixes Oil Talk Deadline

TEHRAN, Iran, May 24 (AP)—Iran fixed a seven-day deadline for the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company to start talks on ways of turning over to the government its vast holdings on the Persian Gulf.

A letter from Finance Minister Mohammed Ali Varasteh to company officials here demanded that the company send representatives by May 30 to help work out the oil nationalization program. The deadline was set after the company failed to reply to a similar demand.

If Anglo-Iranian, which has exclusive production rights in the big southern oil fields, fails to comply, the letter said, "the government will have no choice but to act according to its legal duties."

Top officials dodged questions about how the government would take over the company's holdings if its representatives did not show up.

But Hossein Makki, secretary of the parliamentary nationalization board, told reporters:

"There are ways we can take over our own property. We have decided what we are going to do, but it is being kept a secret for the time being."

Fine Named Accident Commission Chairman

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 24 (AP) — Gov. McKeldin today named former Sen. Melvin L. Fine chairman of the State Industrial Accident Commission.

Fine, a Baltimore lawyer, will succeed Emanuel Gorfine in the $6,500-a-year post on June 1. He will serve a six-year term.

The commission administers state workmen's compensation laws.

You Will See Less But Think You See More On Beaches

CHICAGO, May 24 (AP)—You aren't going to see as much bare flesh on the beaches this season—but you're going to think you're seeing more.

That, according to Fred Cole, Los Angeles bathing suit manufacturer, is because bathing-suit brevity has gone about as far as it can go. The new way to inject sex into beachwear, he says, is through transparency.

In other words, instead of ogling acres of bare skin, men, you'll peek at it through transparent or cut out fabrics, such as nylon lace or flesh-colored net.

Collegian Draft Test Rush Expected Today

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — There will be a last-minute rush at draft boards tomorrow for applications to take the forthcoming college aptitude tests.

There is no indication, however, that local boards plan to extend their usual closing hours for the day.

Selective Service headquarters said it is up to state directors whether any special arrangements are made for late comers. None of the directors, at a meeting which ended here today, reported plans to stay open late.

Selective Service Director Louis B. Hershey predicted, however, that there would be a last-minute rush because of the popular tendency to delay applications as long as possible.

College men must mail their application cards, obtainable only from draft boards, so that they will be postmarked not later than midnight Friday.

Boy Uninjured In 3-Story Drop

BALTIMORE, May 24 (AP) — A five-year-old boy who apparently jumped out of a third-floor window because he thought he's been locked in "must have bounced like a rubber ball," a doctor said afterward.

But he wasn't hurt.

The boy, Joseph Zelinski, Jr., was examined at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

He had a cut on the chin. But a neighbor said this was suffered when the boy started back to his home via a fire escape.

Joseph plunged about 25 feet from a bedroom window, hitting a flat, wooden cellar door. This apparently broke his fall.

The boy was in the bedroom as his seven-year-old sister and some other children were playing in the kitchen. He heard a door slam, and thought he'd been locked in and left alone.

50 Md. CAP Planes To Aid In "Search"

BALTIMORE, May 24 (AP) — Fifty planes of the Maryland Wing of the Civil Air Patrol will take to the air Sunday to search for two other aircraft — missing by plan.

It's all part of a simulated air-sea rescue operation staged by Flight A of the Air Force's Fifth Air-Sea Rescue Squadron at Westover Field, Conn.

Purpose of the pretended rescue is:

(1) To provide training for the Civil Air Patrol which has taken over most over-land rescue operations in the United States and a limited amount of the over-water operations.

(2) To give the Air Force an opportunity to evaluate the effectiveness of the Maryland Wing of CAP in air-sea rescue work.

House Tax Experts Remedy Error; OK'd $1.02 Tax On $1

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—House tax experts discovered today that they had voted a $1.02 tax on $1. Figuring that this was going a bit too far, even in these times, they decided to make the levy 94.5 cents.

The curious situation resulted from a vote yesterday, when the Democratic majority of the House Ways and Means Committee pushed through an increase of 12½ per cent in the taxes on all individual incomes.

In doing so, they stipulated that there would be a ceiling of 90 per cent on the amount the government could take in taxes from any individual's entire income.

But this limitation would not be enough, in itself, to avert more-than-complete confiscation of the top dollars in incomes over $100,000.

That is because each taxpayer, under the committee's plan, would figure his income tax at present rates, then add 12½ per cent to the total computed tax. The present rate on that portion of an individual's income over $100,000 but below $150,000 is 89 per cent. Adding 12½ per cent to the tax total computed at that rate would result in a tax of $1.00125 on each dollar of the upper bracket income. Similarly the effective rate would have been 102.375 per cent on each dollar of income over $200,000 and before the overall 90 per cent ceiling began to apply.

The committe voted to make the maximum surtax rate 84 per cent, applying to all income over $80,000. When the 12½ per cent is added to the individual's tax bill, he would be paying an effective rate of 94.5 per cent on each dollar of taxable income over $80,000.

In another decision today, the committee voted a 10 per cent tax on safety razors and razor blades, adding $6,000,000 potential additional revenue to the nearly complete $7,200,000,000 tax bill.

strength to the point where it could halt a Soviet attack.

Questions Method Of Ouster

The lanky, mild-mannered Bradley said he thought "from a military point of view" that President Truman was right in firing MacArthur—although he said he thought the General's removal "probably could have been handled better."

It was not until Fulbright took over the questioning that Bradley told of the two warnings sent to MacArthur.

He testified that the joint chiefs became alarmed over the wide, undefended space between the two elements of the U. N. Forces and the exposed position of the 10th Corps. First, Bradley said, they sent MacArthur a "suggestion" about it, and later "a directive to extricate the 10th corps."

The witness quoted paraphrases of the message exchange, in which MacArthur insisted that any physical linking of the separated forces was "quite impractical" and that ground conditions would make it hard for the enemy to "take any material advantage" of the 10th Corps' position.

When the Chinese Reds came swarming through in overwhelming numbers, the 10th Corps made a fighting retreat to the port of Hungnaw, from which it was removed by sea. The 10th Corps was made up at that time of the Marine First Division and various Army elements.

50 Md. CAP Planes To Aid In "Search"

BALTIMORE, May 24 (AP) — Fifty planes of the Maryland Wing of the Civil Air Patrol will take to the air Sunday to search for two other aircraft — missing by plan.

It's all part of a simulated air-sea rescue operation staged by Flight A of the Air Force's Fifth Air-Sea Rescue Squadron at Westover Field, Conn.

Purpose of the pretended rescue is:

(1) To provide training for the Civil Air Patrol which has taken over most over-land rescue operations in the United States and a limited amount of the over-water operations.

(2) To give the Air Force an opportunity to evaluate the effectiveness of the Maryland Wing of CAP in air-sea rescue work.

House Tax Experts Remedy Error; OK'd $1.02 Tax On $1

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—House tax experts discovered today that they had voted a $1.02 tax on $1. Figuring that this was going a bit too far, even in these times, they decided to make the levy 94.5 cents.

The curious situation resulted from a vote yesterday, when the Democratic majority of the House Ways and Means Committee pushed through an increase of 12½ per cent in the taxes on all individual incomes.

In doing so, they stipulated that there would be a ceiling of 90 per cent on the amount the government could take in taxes from any individual's entire income.

But this limitation would not be enough, in itself, to avert more-than-complete confiscation of the top dollars in incomes over $100,000.

That is because each taxpayer, under the committee's plan, would figure his income tax at present rates, then add 12½ per cent to the total computed tax. The present rate on that portion of an individual's income over $100,000 but below $150,000 is 89 per cent. Adding 12½ per cent to the tax total computed at that rate would result in a tax of $1.00125 on each dollar of the upper bracket income. Similarly the effective rate would have been 102.375 per cent on each dollar of income over $200,000 and before the overall 90 per cent ceiling began to apply.

The committe voted to make the maximum surtax rate 84 per cent, applying to all income over $80,000. When the 12½ per cent is added to the individual's tax bill, he would be paying an effective rate of 94.5 per cent on each dollar of taxable income over $80,000.

In another decision today, the committee voted a 10 per cent tax on safety razors and razor blades, adding $6,000,000 potential additional revenue to the nearly complete $7,200,000,000 tax bill.

strength to the point where it could halt a Soviet attack.

Questions Method Of Ouster

The lanky, mild-mannered Bradley said he thought "from a military point of view" that President Truman was right in firing MacArthur—although he said he thought the General's removal "probably could have been handled better."

It was not until Fulbright took over the questioning that Bradley told of the two warnings sent to MacArthur.

He testified that the joint chiefs became alarmed over the wide, undefended space between the two elements of the U. N. Forces and the exposed position of the 10th Corps. First, Bradley said, they sent MacArthur a "suggestion" about it, and later "a directive to extricate the 10th corps."

The witness quoted paraphrases of the message exchange, in which MacArthur insisted that any physical linking of the separated forces was "quite impractical" and that ground conditions would make it hard for the enemy to "take any material advantage" of the 10th Corps' position.

When the Chinese Reds came swarming through in overwhelming numbers, the 10th Corps made a fighting retreat to the port of Hungnaw, from which it was removed by sea. The 10th Corps was made up at that time of the Marine First Division and various Army elements.

Iraq Diggers Find 100,000-Year Evidence Of Asia's First Humans

By FRED ZUSY

BAGHDAD—(AP)—American archeologists are digging up in Iraq important news evidence about the life of man more than 100,000 years ago.

Their work, 25 miles east of the Middle East oil center of Kirkuk, may shed important light on a theory of twin evolution—that man may have advanced simultaneously but separately in Africa and in Asia. Dr. Naji Al-Asil, director-general of the Iraq Department of Antiquities, told a reporter the digging, has uncovered "definite, positive evidence" of a beginning of human culture in Iraq. The discovery is of major scientific interest because of the possible information it might lead to on human evolution in Asia.

The Tigris-Euphrates basins in Iraq were the birthplace of several great civilizations during the five or six thousands of recorded history. The new finds link Iraq for the first time with the pre-historic inter-glacial period.

The pre-histric digging is going on in the area of Jarmo, Kerim-shehr and Barda Palka—all close together in the area east of Kirkuk.

The work is under supervision of Dr. Robert Braidwood, from the Oriental Institute for the University of Chicago. Dr. Bruce Howe, a Harvard University scientist, is working with Dr. Braidwood. The Iraq Department of Antiquities is participating.

Dr. Al-Asil said an expedition from his department first discovered and identified the Barda Palka site several years ago, linking it with the stone age, pre-agriculture era.

Jarmo, nearby, dates from 5,000 to 6,000 B. C. and represents the beginning of the agricultural era, when man first began to settle in villages and raise crops.

"Jarmo si possibly the oldest such settlement yet found," Dr. Al-Asil said.

"Dr. Braidwood's group dug trenches in the area, confirmed our finds and took the site many thousands of years further back.

"It is too early yet to go into detail, but there have been most important results, dating back 100,000 years according to Dr. Braidwood's estimate. I, myself, think that figure is conservative.

"I regard their discovery as of major scientific interest, shedding light on the pre-history of man. Through further studies this may result in proving Asia to be one of the major centers of human evolution.

"There is a recent theory that there may have been two separate trails of evolution — one possibly from somewhere in Central Asia, which may have passed through the Gobi Desert area—and the other from the area of Rhodesia in Southern Africa, and thence northward."

The Braidwood expedition has not yet made any public announcement on its work. It is expected to continue digging until the summer heat in Iraq makes it necessary to stop.

The area in which work is being carried out is at the foot of the Kurdish mountains in Northern Iraq. Dr. Al-Asil says it probably was favored by primitive man because of the presence of many streams, abundance of wild game and promimity to caves in the nearby hills.

For thousands of years, the area may have been a gathering place for primitive humans attracted by easy hunting. But settlement did not take place until man passed from the food gathering to the food producing stage.

Getting Down Is Problem

By Central Press

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—Shooting rockets 250 miles up is a big engineering problem, but getting them back at the right spot is just as tough.

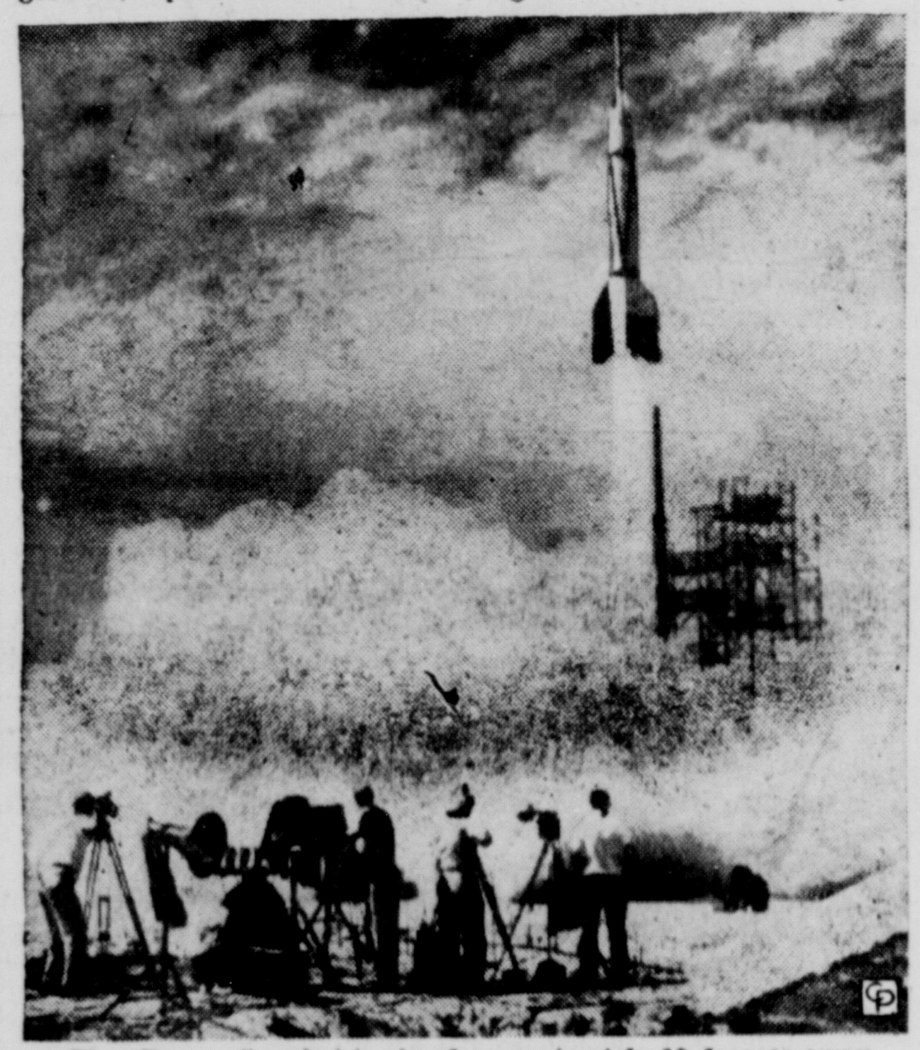
The earth spinning on its axis causes the big headache.

Approximately 10 variable factors must be taken into consideration when the two-stage "Bumper" rocket is fired to record altitudes at the Army's White Sands, N. M., proving grounds, explains Robert P. Haviland, General Electric project engineer who is conducting the rocket program for the Army Ordnance Corps.

These include trajectory, geography, wind direction and velocity, air density—and rotation of the earth.

If the rotation were not computed, Haviland points out, some rockets would land about 15 miles from the launching site because the site actually moves out from under the rocket while it is making its 10-minute round trip.

Starting 250-mile trip—up!



The "Bumper" rocket is aimed approximately 10 degrees away from the impact point to counteract the rotation of the earth.

Nationalizing Oil Fields

Our government is evidently hoping that out of the diffcult situation in Iran will emerge some arrangement whereby the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, while deprived of its former ownership of oil fields, would be granted rights to the oil produced from them. Some such settlement was made by Mexico with foreign companies when expropriating oil fields prior to World War II.

That the Mexican settlement at least figures in the Iranian mind is indicated by a note sent to Anglo-Iranian by Iranian Finance Minister Varasteh on May 19: "The nationalization of industries is based on the right of the sovereignty of nations, such as exercised by other governments including the British government itself and the Mexican government."

Mexico expropriated foreign oil properties in March, 1938. Of 17 foreign companies involved at that time, 11 were American. The companies originally estimated total American investments at about $200 million, total British investments at $250 million.

The expropriation move was precipitated by union demands for an $11 million-a-year pay raise, pensions, participation in management. The workers' claims were supported by a decision of the Mexican Supreme Court, and President Cardenas announced the signing of the expropriation decree on March 18. The oil companies made a last-minute offer to meet the workers' pay demands but continued in their refusal to yield a share in management. The workers took over the plants.

Legal authority for the expropriation, not in itself challenged by our State Department, rested in a provision of the Mexican constitution adopted under the auspices of the Carranza government in 1917. For more than 20 years thereafter, the issues was discussed, disputed, compromised.

Secretary of State Hull reacted to the expropriation decree with a note recognizing the right of expropriation:

"This government . . . does not undertake to question the right of the Government of Mexico in its sovereign power to expropriate properties within its jurisdiction. This government has, however . . . pointed out . . . that . . . the properties of its nationals so expropriated are required to be paid for by compensation representing fair, assured, and effective value to the nationals from whom these properties were taken."

The dispute was not finally settled until 1943, after both nations were at war with the Axis. Mexico was the keystone of the Roosevelt-Hull Good Neighbor policy for the Americas. Negotiations were particularly delicate for a time because of this nation's concern for its military alliance with Mexico.

By 1939 counter-claims had been filed. The Mexican government put a value of $22,306,000 on the fixed assets of the properties; the estimate of the companies was $262 million as minimum. According to the Mexican estimate, 43 per cent of the value was represented by the holdings of the American companies.

The Sinclair group, a large American interest, reached an agreement for compensation of $8.5 million to be paid over three years, plus a purchase agreement for 20 million barrels of crude oil for four years. In September, 1943, American and Mexican experts appointed under a 1941 agreement placed a value on American properties of almost $24 million—to be paid, plus interest of three per cent retroactive to 1938, by September, 1947.

Increasing Fire Power

From Korea comes a dispatch to the effect that a number of new "wonder weapons" may be put into the hands of American troops there within the next few months. The list is reported to include an entirely new fast-firing rifle, a machine gun that can fire all night long by remote control, a 25-ton airborne tank, and a helicopter with a lifting capacity of three tons.

Thus the fire power of U. S. ground forces will be even greater than it is now—and that fire power has meant the difference between survival and defeat for the U. S. command in Korea. U. S. strategy there must be based on ability to inflict losses on an enemy whose manpower resources are far greater than those of this country.

It is interesting to note that this disclosure followed release of a statement by Maj. Gen. A. C. McAuliffe, chief of the Army Chemical Corps. He declared that the United States has developed a number of weapons that will help to overcome the numerical advantage of the nation's "potential enemies." They are, he said, the "basis of our hope for avoiding World War III."

All of these weapons are improvements on weapons that already exist. The new rifle is only a lighter and faster-firing version of the excellent weapon now in use. Machine guns are nothing new, though this one will certainly appeal to the men who must fire it. The new tank is more powerful than others that have been carried by air and the helicopter can do more useful work, but the difference between them and their predecessors is only one of degree no matter how impressive.

So these are not the instruments for fighting a push-button war. They are improvements to help the infantryman perform his grim assignment—nothing more. Still, that is proof that American military experts have not been misled by the visionaries. As long as they believe that wars will continue to be won the hard way, the nation's chances of survival will be good.

Russia Has The Answer

Although developments in the Korean War are based to a considerable extent upon speculation—at least so far as the American public is concerned—there was no doubt for days that the Chinese Reds were preparing for another major drive against U. S. and other forces in South Korea. American forces took all possible steps to prepare for the onslaught.

There are new reports that the Chinese have a sizable air force in Manchuria, but to date it has not made its appearance over the fighting front.

Regardless of the outcome of the drive, it will certainly have an effect upon Russia's position. If it should succeed, it would seem logical for Russia to jump in to bring decisive victory to communism in the Far East.

If the drive fails, as others in the past have failed, will the Russians then come to the aid of their Chinese comrades and widen the conflict?

As from the beginning of the fighting in Korea, everything depends upon what the Kremlin decides to do. If the Chinese Reds fail of victory in Korea, and Russia does not lend major assistance to them, a stalemate will be in effect.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

A Curable Type Of Baldness

It is not difficult to restore hair when baldness is caused by alopecia areata. In this condition, spontaneous regrowth is the rule and many if not most of the patented hair restorers, rejuvenators, and mange cures owe their chief claim to fame to their good results in this hair disorder. The before and after pictures are impressive, especially to the novice who does not realize that there are different types of baldness. Young and middle-aged men with the more common heriditary variety fall hardest for such remedies.

Alopecia areata is not partial to either sex or to any particular hair color. The hair is shed in patches, leaving smooth, shiny, bald areas. It may start slowly or suddenly; now and then a large patch falls out overnight, leaving the skin tender and reddened for a few days thereafter. In rarer instances, baldness is complete and the individual also loses lashes, eybrows, beard, and hair elsewhere on the body.

The bald regions may be covered or fringed by a downy growth, sometimes surrounded by stumps. The new hairs generally are white at first and become pigmented later. There is no particular pattern to the baldness as in the hereditary type. In these cases there is a gradual thinning at both temples or on top of the head. In alcopecia areata, a spot may begin at the back of the neck or on one side or the other. Nail changes also occur. Virtually every one has heard of a person who became bald after an acute illness such as influenza or typhoid, or after poisoning. Fright and grief are causes that make headlines and there is no doubt that anxiety and mental shock may precipitate this kind of hair loss; but infection or a toxin are the primary causes.

There are many remedies. The application of ultraviolet light is one of the most popular. As a rule, treatments are given in gradually increasing doses to produce mild redness without burning. The ears and adjacent skin should be protected with a towel and the eyes must be guarded. The local application of stimulating caustic solutions has been popular for many years. Solutions containing phenol, iodine, or other blistering fluids often are painted over the bald spots. Oil of turpentine may be useful and mercury or resorcinol have been employed with success.

But treatment will fail unless the general health is maintained at a high level. This means paying strict attention to diet and rest and avoiding anxiety and worry. Benefit also is obtained by getting out into the fresh air and sunshine. Toxic factors are minimized by the removal of abscessed teeth and infected tonsils. If anemia exists, iron is helpful, as is thyroid extract if there is a deficient secretion of this hormone.

TOMORROW: The hereditary factor in disease is discussed by Dr. Van Dellen.

POOR CIRCULATION

L. D. writes: Are hot foot baths good for a person with arteriosclerosis of the legs?

REPLY

No; heat is not advised in any form. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on care of the feet and legs in individuals with impaired circulation to the extremities.

ECZEMA IN INFANT

Mrs. H. writes: Should an infant with eczema be bathed in olive oil?

REPLY

In some cases oils or cleansing creams are preferred to water. In others the addition of starch, bran, or oatmeal to the bath water will give good results. It is more important to discover the cause of the eczema. In the majority, the culprit is a food to which the baby is sensitive.

THROBBING VEIN

G. F. writes: My father insists that he can tell the condition of his heart and blood pressure by watching the throbbing of the vein on the inside of his elbow. Would you write a few words to convince him that he is wrong?

REPLY

It is not normal for a vein to throb and perhaps your father could use more expert advise than his own along this line.

NOT LIKELY

K. J. writes: Is a person with gallstones more likely to develop cancer than one with no stones?

REPLY

I doubt if it makes any difference. Stones have nothing to do with cancer.

DISCHARGING EAR

G. W. writes: Is there any way to prevent odor from a running ear?

REPLY

In this day and age there should be no draining ears. One of the many wonder drugs usually is successful in eradicating the infection; otherwise surgery is needed for cure. Meanwhile, cleanliness of the ear canal is highly important and the physician may wish to prescribe an antiseptic for this purpose.

And Several For The Road

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Case Of George S. Wheeler Shows How Unwitting Americans Supported Communists; Civil Service Suspected Him Five Years Before He Was Fired

WASHINGTON—Just a year ago, an American citizen, George S. Wheeler, issued a blast against the United States and announced his intention to live in Czechoslovakia. He and his wife are still there, reportedly teaching school.

Interesting inside fact about Wheeler is that, five years before, the U. S. Civil Service Commission had suspected his disloyalty and ordered him fired. But thanks to the intervention of well-meaning friends, he was reinstated and permitted to occupy a key job in Germany.

The man who chiefly went to bat for Wheeler was David A. Morse, former counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, former Undersecretary of Labor, now with the International Labor Office at Geneva.

To a lesser extent, Wheeler was also supported by Gen. Frank J. McSherry, director of the Manpower Division of the Allied Control Council in Germany, and by Gen. Philip Fleming, then chief of the Public Work Administration, later chairman of the Maritime Commission.

This was back in 1945, of course, when Americans were considerably more trusting than they are now. The incident presents an interesting case history illustrating how unsuspecting Americans can get sucked into supporting Communists.

Worked With KPD

The Civil Service Commission first acted to fire Wheeler when he was chief of the denazification control council in Germany after receiving reports that Wheeler was a courier for the KPD, the German Communist party. This belief arose from the fact that after Wheeler had visited certain cities, the local branch of the KPD would immediately begin agitating along the latest Communist lines.

As a result, William H. Hull of the Civil Service Commission wrote on Jan. 2, 1945: "Mr. Wheeler has followed the Communist line in its changes from before 1939 to date. Evidence relating directly to this matter is supported by other evidence that shows Mr. Wheeler's active participation and sympathetic interests in policies and programs directly and indirectly furthering the objectives of communism."

"The position to which Mr. Wheeler was appointed is of such importance to the Government of the United States . . . that great care must be exercised . . . Mr. Wheeler has been rated ineligible."

However, David A. Morse, then a lieutenant colonel and Wheeler's immediate superior, wrote a long letter, Oct. 1, 1945, stating, among other things:

"I am taking this opportunity now that I am back in the states, to submit this letter in Mr. Wheeler's behalf with my estimate of his high integrity and unquestioned loyalty to America."

Later, Oct. 29, 1945, Morse appeared before the Civil Service Commission and testified that "if Wheeler had been dismissed pursuant to the Civil Service letter of Jan. 2 the constructive side of the U. S. postwar effort in Germany would have been adversely affected."

So Wheeler was reinstated and served with the American Military Government in Germany from Dec. 30, 1945, to Dec. 29, 1947. Three years later, on April 7, 1950, he asked for asylum of the Czech government and has since been reported by the Czech press as making speeches in praise of that "Communist paradise" and attacking the "warmongering" of his native country, the United States of America.

Blocking the Communists

Assistant Postmaster General Jack Redding has given the nation an illustration of what can be done regarding the Chinese Communists diplomatically when you really get on the ball.

Last winter Redding attended a meeting of the Universal Postal Union at Cairo, where the Chinese Communists won an important victory. Despite the objection of the United States and much to Redding's disgust, they were seated as a member of the Union.

However, another meeting of the Postal Union was scheduled for May 21 at St. Gallen, Switzerland, and Redding immediately got busy. He notified the anti-Communist friends of the U.S.A. that we would like to see them attend the St. Gallen meeting and vote with us against China. As a result, Turkey, Mexico, Colombia and Brazil, which had not participated before, showed up.

And this week, thanks to Redding's alertness, the Postal Union voted 10 to 6, with three abstaining, to boot Communist China out of the Postal Union.

Ridgway Vs. Rhee

Gen. Matthew Ridgway sent an important cable to the Defense Department this week regarding his problems with President Syngman Rhee and Korean troops.

President Rhee has insisted that Korean troops be organized as independent units and fight completely on their own. General Ridgway, on the other hand, has found that Korean troops fight well when closely integrated with U. S. troops but break and run when organized as independent units. Each time the Chinese have struck recently, they have aimed their chief blows at the South Koreans.

Therefore, General Ridgway asked the Defense Department to help him straighten out this problem with elderly, crusty President Rhee, who argues that if Korea is to defend itself in the future, its troops must learn to fight independently. Secretary Marshall immediately got in touch with the State Department, secured its cooperation toward informing President Rhee that his troops must be integrated, at least until the crisis is over.

NOTE—At Wake Island, President Truman felt Rhee was a weight around Korea's neck, suggested to General MacArthur that new elections be held. MacArthur differed, stanchly defended Rhee. Truman dropped the matter.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Globosophy

The earth is a large and varied place and the experts on global relations must know more about the human race in all its intricacies than seems possible. For instance, no matter how devoted a man may be to the affairs of Western Europe, he may have no affinity for understanding such complexities as China, Iran, India or the Moslems. And the rule can be applied in other respects, for many Europeans fail altogether to understand the United States particularly when they assume that our charities have an ulterior motive.

We may, at the moment, pause concerning China, Japan and Korea and turn to Iran, which used to be called Persia and also Parthia and Fars and includes a chunk of Armenia. Iran is difficult to know and understand, because like so many countries which once were the greatest on earth and are now dependents upon the good will of peoples that were in the time of Darius unknown to civilization, they resent their own situation and hit out at the parvenus. They fail to realize that they are perhaps the authors of their own misfortunes.

Iran is rich in oil, which is its principal industry. Most of the oil is owned by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, a British enterprise which provides about 15 per cent of the national revenue through royalties and taxes and about 60 per cent of the nation's foreign exchange.

In the 19th Century, Iran, then Persia, was squeezed between Great Britain and Russia and was so hampered that it became one of those weak and backward countries which the Bear and the Lion divided between them into spheres of influence. The Iranians appealed to the United States for help, and in 1911, this country sent a financial expert, W. Morgan Shuster, to Persia to reorganize and manage its finances. He actually was appointed treasurer-general of Persia. Shuster failed because the British and the Russians sabotaged him. They hated each other, but combined to drive out an American.

In this current century of revolution, war, and global baloney, Iran has fared no better and continues to fight for its independent life. Since oil has become so important, and the British own the oil, Soviet Russia would like to capture the country as its own. Several attempts in this direction have been made.

The United States does not wish that Soviet Russia should get the oil of Iran, because the Russians are short of oil and the Iranian deposit is one of the best in the world. If the Russians got hold of that oil, it would improve their war potentiality vastly. In fact, it might be the decisive factor. For many experts believe that it is Russia's inadequate oil supply that keeps Russia from extending her war in Korea to global proportions.

The Iranians, like the Indians, would prefer to be neutral. Their attitude is undoubtedly best represented by Nehru, who takes the position that a war between the United States and Soviet Russia is one from which the weak and small nations should exclude themselves, if they can, or, if they are not permitted to be neutral, they should have freedom to pick the winner as an ally. Unfortunately geography is against this theory as it applies to both India and Iran.

So, Iran, having, since 1947, been rowing with the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company over the 18 year old contracts, is now nationalizing the oil industry, following the example of Great Britain's Socialist government at home, as the saying is, which nationalized 20 per cent of its economy. What, the Iranians assume, is sauce for the goose, should be sauce for the gander—but, of course, that is never quite so.

However, it is just bad business for the United States, in our troubles with Soviet Russia, for the oil of Iran to go to Russia. This can be very serious for us, now that we are so heavily committed to a global war, what with General Eisenhower organizing Europe for war on Russia and the State Department having accepted the MacArthur formula for China.

Therefore, the American view must be that the British can be Socialists in London, but a contract is a contract in Teheran, and that no matter what these Iranians feel about nationalism, we are going to see to it that that oil is not used to kill Americans.

That is the issue, quite simplified, but altogether accurate.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Unfortunately, the full text of the Senate inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the removal of General MacArthur is not getting to the public—or to many officials here either, because it is so voluminous that most newspapers haven't the paper to print it.

It costs at least $25 a day to buy it from the stenographers. The Senate committee will print it a few weeks hence.

This correspondent has read every word of the testimony from the beginning and can state that the record is full of rambling, repetitious, and contradictory statements by senators as well as by witnesses.

The record shows that the committee has needed a counsel and associate counsel to represent the two sides of the controversy and to get the facts arranged in some sort of understandable sequence.

Essential Faces Develop

Only now, in the last hours of General Bradley's testimony, have some of the most essential facts in the whole hearing been developed as a result of intermittent questioning by Senators Knowland, Wiley, Smith of, New Jersey, and Hickenlooper.

From General Bradley's testimony it now is established that:

1. General Bradley is not familiar with the terms of the alleged document which was supposed to have been circulated among 14 nations about a "cease fire" negotiation March 20 last and which, it is now conceded, was never sent to General MacArthur.

2. Although a message was sent, saying the Department of State was "planning" some such announcement, nothing more was ever sent to General MacArthur giving him any word as to a decision to do it. At that time scarcely a week went by that some UN plan to bring about a "cease fire" wasn't reported in the press as the hope of this or that UN faction.

3. The charge that General MacArthur appropriated the language and the terms of the document allegedly circulated among the 14 nations has now been disproved. He never was sent any such document. There is some question that any such document ever was seen by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

4. General Bradley says General MacArthur should have known that there was such a document planned and that he should not have addressed a surrender demand to the enemy. General MacArthur has said in a public statement that he twice had addressed similar demands to the enemy commander and that he did a third time on his own initiative what he previously had twice been authorized to do.

5. General Bradley says that the famous message to the convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars was not in disagreement with the views of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with respect to the strategic importance of Formosa and that he does not know what in that document could have caused the President or the Secretary of State to have been displeased.

6. General Bradley says that General MacArthur did not commit any act of military insubordination and that, so far as he knows, the Far Eastern commander was dismissed for stating certain views publicly, even though it is difficult now to point out just what phrases, if any, were embarrassing and he prefers the Secretary of State to point them out when he testifies.

Differ Over Russia

7. The views of General MacArthur and the Joint Chiefs have been and are generally in agreement on the military course to be pursued, but the difference lies in evaluating Russia's intentions. General MacArthur thinks the Russians will not intervene if Manchurian bases are bombed. General Bradley thinks they might intervene, and that it is this risk which he and other members of the Joint Chiefs say should not be taken.

8. There was a very poor liaison between General MacArthur and Washington. Although Washington officials assumed that the General knew about certain developments, they failed to keep him posted on what they were trying to do through the United Nations, and yet they claim his message to the Chinese commander upset their "cease fire" negotiations. There is no evidence that the Chinese were then or have since been willing to talk peace.

9. It is established by General Bradley—just as General MacArthur claimed — that neither the United States nor the UN has any "policy" in Korea at present except to fight a passive defense, and that there is no intention to carry the war to the bases of supply of the enemy—Red China.

So it looks—and General Bradley admits it—as if the UN is marking time. The UN is waiting for the Chinese Communists to oblige us and negotiate a "settlement." Several senators on the committee are trying to find out what kind of settlement the UN or our government could possibly make which—after withdrawal of our forces — could prevent the Communists at any time from marching across the border again.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Kremlin's New Gambit

LONDON.

Although the American and British policy makers are plainly a bit vague about it, the evidence is overwhelming that the Kremlin is now using a most promising new gambit in its gigantic program of world conquest.

In brief, the Iranian oil dispute is to serve as the fuse which will blow up the whole explosive Middle East. When and if the explosion occurs, Britain will be fearfully weakened. Britain and America will be angrily divided. The Western alliance will be demoralized. And the worst danger to the Soviet Union, the vital strategic airbases in the eastern Mediterranean, will be partly or wholly neutralized.

Then will be the time for the Kremlin to make its next move. The upset in the world balance of power that now threatens in the Middle East will paralyze the Western alliance. And the risk of resistance to a well-planned new aggression, against Yugoslavia for example, will thus be reduced almost to the vanishing point. This is the glittering opportunity for which the Kremlin is now waiting.

It should be understood, moreover, that the masters of the Kremlin have labored with unusual astuteness to create this opportunity. For a year and a half, they have done all in their power to make the more irresponsible Iranian nationalists forget the Russian danger to the north, and to drive them onward in their wild career.

Extremists Gains Power

For example, after the murder of Gen. Razmara and the first nationalization vote, the order was given for the Communist Tudeh party to lead a wave of "anti-British" strikes all over Iran. The strikes precipitated an internal crisis. The crisis brought to power the totally irrational extremist, Dr. Mohammed Mossadegh. Mossadegh's triumph ended all hope of reasonable settlement of the oil dispute by negotiation. Whereat the Soviet Ambassador Sadchikov went to Mossadegh, to promise that the Russians would not move into northern Iran, even if the British landed troops in the south.

This was the subtle final touch, here disclosed for the first time. The much discussed 1921 treaty theoretically gives Moscow the right to send forces into Iran when any other power does so. The fear of a Russian invasion, touched off by a British landing, formerly haunted even Mossadegh. Sadchikov's extraordinary assurance was precisely what was needed to make Mossadegh throw caution to the winds. And thus was produced the present desperate situation.

As these words are written, there is only one ray of light. Some signs in Teheran suggest that the effort to replace the Mossadegh government with a more reasonable administration is not quite so hopeless as it appeared a few days ago, when the Shah was refusing to tackle the problem. A new government with which reasonable negotiations can be carried on in a reasonable way is the only cheap way out. It is to be hoped American influence has been joined with British influence to attain this end.

Plan Won't Work

There is nothing cheap at all about the other supposedly cheap way out that some personalities in both the State Department and the Foreign Office are now mumbling about. This is the plan to "bring the Persians to their senses" by cutting off the Iranian government's oil revenue.

Anyone who has met the leading personalities and smelled the peculiar air of Teheran knows that this plan will almost certainly work in reverse. With the oil revenue cut off, the army and civil service will no longer be paid. Dr. Mossadegh may seek to meet the emergency by making Kefensky-like speeches, until the authority of the government simply dissolves and the Tudeh party takes over. Or more probably, he will go to Moscow for the loan Sadchikov has already hinted about; and he will get it on terms that will open the way for the Tudeh. In short, the betting is nine to one that this supposedly easy way will end with the Tudeh party in power in all of Iran, with the vital oil resource under Soviet control at last.

Yet there is grave danger that the Foreign Office and the State Department will flabbily drift into this foolish course. The State Department is said to have delusions on the subject. Here in London, the precedent is set, since the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company has already suspended revenue payments to the Iranian treasury. The British can hardly fail to retaliate if the Iranions expropriate their oil. They can hardly consider a landing without American moral support. And so the more you examine the situation, the bigger, the heavier, the more grave the American responsibility appears.

Nationalizing Oil Fields

Our government is evidently hoping that out of the difficult situation in Iran will emerge some arrangement whereby the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, while deprived of its former ownership of oil fields, would be granted rights to the oil produced from them. Some such settlement was made by Mexico with foreign companies when expropriating oil fields prior to World War II.

That the Mexican settlement at least figures in the Iranian mind is indicated by a note sent to Anglo-Iranian by Iranian Finance Minister Varasteh on May 19: "The nationalization of industries is based on the right of the sovereignty of nations, such as exercised by other governments including the British government itself and the Mexican government."

Mexico expropriated foreign oil properties in March, 1938. Of 17 foreign companies involved at that time, 11 were American. The companies originally estimated total American investments at about $200 million, total British investments at $250 million.

The expropriation move was precipitated by union demands for an $11 million-a-year pay raise, pensions, participation in management. The workers' claims were supported by a decision of the Mexican Supreme Court, and President Cardenas announced the signing of the expropriation decree on March 18. The oil companies made a last-minute offer to meet the workers' pay demands but continued in their refusal to yield a share in management. The workers took over the plants.

Legal authority for the expropriation, not in itself challenged by our State Department, rested in a provision of the Mexican constitution adopted under the auspices of the Carranza government in 1917. For more than 20 years thereafter, the issues was discussed, disputed, compromised.

Secretary of State Hull reacted to the expropriation decree with a note recognizing the right of expropriation:

"This government . . . does not undertake to question the right of the Government of Mexico in its sovereign power to expropriate properties within its jurisdiction. This government has, however . . . pointed out . . . that . . . the properties of its nationals so expropriated are required to be paid for by compensation representing fair, assured, and effective value to the nationals from whom these properties were taken."

The dispute was not finally settled until 1943, after both nations were at war with the Axis. Mexico was the keystone of the Roosevelt-Hull Good Neighbor policy for the Americas. Negotiations were particularly delicate for a time because of this nation's concern for its military alliance with Mexico.

By 1939 counter-claims had been filed. The Mexican government put a value of $22,306,000 on the fixed assets of the properties; the estimate of the companies was $262 million as minimum. According to the Mexican estimate, 43 per cent of the value was represented by the holdings of the American companies.

The Sinclair group, a large American interest, reached an agreement for compensation of $8.5 million to be paid over three years, plus a purchase agreement for 20 million barrels of crude oil for four years. In September, 1943, American and Mexican experts appointed under a 1941 agreement placed a value on American properties of almost $24 million—to be paid, plus interest of three per cent retroactive to 1938, by September, 1947.

Increasing Fire Power

From Korea comes a dispatch to the effect that a number of new "wonder weapons" may be put into the hands of American troops there within the next few months. The list is reported to include an entirely new fast-firing rifle, a machine gun that can fire all night long by remote control, a 25-ton airborne tank, and a helicopter with a lifting capacity of three tons.

Thus the fire power of U. S. ground forces will be even greater than it is now—and that fire power has meant the difference between survival and defeat for the U. S. command in Korea. U. S. strategy there must be based on ability to inflict losses on an enemy whose manpower resources are far greater than those of this country.

It is interesting to note that this disclosure followed release of a statement by Maj. Gen. A. C. McAuliffe, chief of the Army Chemical Corps. He declared that the United States has developed a number of weapons that will help to overcome the numerical advantage of the nation's "potential enemies." They are, he said, the "basis of our hope for avoiding World War III."

All of these weapons are improvements on weapons that already exist. The new rifle is only a lighter and faster-firing version of the excellent weapon now in use. Machine guns are nothing new, though this one will certainly appeal to the men who must fire it. The new tank is more powerful than others that have been carried by air and the helicopter can do more useful work, but the difference between them and their predecessors is only one of degree no matter how impressive.

So these are not the instruments for fighting a push-button war. They are improvements to help the infantryman perform his grim assignment—nothing more. Still, that is proof that American military experts have not been misled by the visionaries. As long as they believe that wars will continue to be won the hard way, the nation's chances of survival will be good.

Russia Has The Answer

Although developments in the Korean War are based to a considerable extent upon speculation—at least so far as the American public is concerned—there was no doubt for days that the Chinese Reds were preparing for another major drive against U. S. and other forces in South Korea. American forces took all possible steps to prepare for the onslaught.

There are new reports that the Chinese have a sizable air force in Manchuria, but to date it has not made its appearance over the fighting front.

Regardless of the outcome of the drive, it will certainly have an effect upon Russia's position. If it should succeed, it would seem logical for Russia to jump in to bring decisive victory to communism in the Far East.

If the drive fails, as others in the past have failed, will the Russians then come to the aid of their Chinese comrades and widen the conflict?

As from the beginning of the fighting in Korea, everything depends upon what the Kremlin decides to do. If the Chinese Reds fail of victory in Korea, and Russia does not lend major assistance to them, a stalemate will be in effect.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

A Curable Type Of Baldness

It is not difficult to restore hair when baldness is caused by alopecia areata. In this condition, spontaneous regrowth is the rule and many if not most of the patented hair restorers, rejuvenators, and mange cures owe their chief claim to fame to their good results in this hair disorder. The before and after pictures are impressive, especially to the novice who does not realize that there are different types of baldness. Young and middle-aged men with the more common heriditary variety fall hardest for such remedies.

Alopecia areata is not partial to either sex or to any particular hair color. The hair is shed in patches, leaving smooth, shiny, bald areas. It may start slowly or suddenly; now and then a large patch falls out overnight, leaving the skin tender and reddened for a few days thereafter. In rarer instances, baldness is complete and the individual also loses lashes, eybrows, beard, and hair elsewhere on the body.

The bald regions may be covered or fringed by a downy growth, sometimes surrounded by stumps. The new hairs generally are white at first and become pigmented later. There is no particular pattern to the baldness as in the hereditary type. In these cases there is a gradual thinning at both temples or on top of the head. In alcopecia areata, a spot may begin at the back of the neck or on one side or the other. Nail changes also occur. Virtually every one has heard of a person who became bald after an acute illness such as influenza or typhoid, or after poisoning. Fright and grief are causes that make headlines and there is no doubt that anxiety and mental shock may precipitate this kind of hair loss; but infection or a toxin are the primary causes.

There are many remedies. The application of ultraviolet light is one of the most popular. As a rule, treatments are given in gradually increasing doses to produce mild redness without burning. The ears and adjacent skin should be protected with a towel and the eyes must be guarded. The local application of stimulating caustic solutions has been popular for many years. Solutions containing phenol, iodine, or other blistering fluids often are painted over the bald spots. Oil of turpentine may be useful and mercury or resorcinol have been employed with success.

But treatment will fail unless the general health is maintained at a high level. This means paying strict attention to diet and rest and avoiding anxiety and worry. Benefit also is obtained by getting out into the fresh air and sunshine. Toxic factors are minimized by the removal of abscessed teeth and infected tonsils. If anemia exists, iron is helpful, as is thyroid extract if there is a deficient secretion of this hormone.

TOMORROW: The hereditary factor in disease is discussed by Dr. Van Dellen.

POOR CIRCULATION

L. D. writes: Are hot foot baths good for a person with arteriosclerosis of the legs?

REPLY

No; heat is not advised in any form. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on care of the feet and legs in individuals with impaired circulation to the extremities.

ECZEMA IN INFANT

Mrs. H. writes: Should an infant with eczema be bathed in olive oil?

REPLY

In some cases oils or cleansing creams are preferred to water. In others the addition of starch, bran, or oatmeal to the bath water will give good results. It is more important to discover the cause of the eczema. In the majority, the culprit is a food to which the baby is sensitive.

THROBBING VEIN

G. F. writes: My father insists that he can tell the condition of his heart and blood pressure by watching the throbbing of the vein on the inside of his elbow. Would you write a few words to convince him that he is wrong?

REPLY

It is not normal for a vein to throb and perhaps your father could use more expert advise than his own along this line.

NOT LIKELY

K. J. writes: Is a person with gallstones more likely to develop cancer than one with no stones?

REPLY

I doubt if it makes any difference. Stones have nothing to do with cancer.

DISCHARGING EAR

G. W. writes: Is there any way to prevent odor from a running ear?

REPLY

In this day and age there should be no draining ears. One of the many wonder drugs usually is successful in eradicating the infection; otherwise surgery is needed for cure. Case Of George S. Wheeler Shows How Unwitting Americans Supported Communists; Civil Service Suspected Him Five Years Before He Was Fired

WASHINGTON—Just a year ago, an American citizen, George S. Wheeler, issued a blast against the United States and announced his intention to live in Czechoslovakia. He and his wife are still there, reportedly teaching school.

Interesting inside fact about Wheeler is that, five years before, the U. S. Civil Service Commission had suspected his disloyalty and ordered him fired. But thanks to the intervention of well-meaning friends, he was reinstated and permitted to occupy a key job in Germany.

The man who chiefly went to bat for Wheeler was David A. Morse, former counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, former Undersecretary of Labor, now with the International Labor Office at Geneva.

To a lesser extent, Wheeler was also supported by Gen. Frank J. McSherry, director of the Manpower Division of the Allied Control Council in Germany, and by Gen. Philip Fleming, then chief of the Public Work Administration, later chairman of the Maritime Commission.

This was back in 1945, of course, when Americans were considerably more trusting than they are now. The incident presents an interesting case history illustrating how unsuspecting Americans can get sucked into supporting Communists.

Worked With KPD

The Civil Service Commission first acted to fire Wheeler when he was chief of the denazification control council in Germany after receiving reports that Wheeler was a courier for the KPD, the German Communist party. This belief arose from the fact that after Wheeler had visited certain cities, the local branch of the KPD would immediately begin agitating along the latest Communist lines.

As a result, William H. Hull of the Civil Service Commission wrote on Jan. 2, 1945: "Mr. Wheeler has followed the Communist line in its changes from before 1939 to date. Evidence relating directly to this matter is supported by other evidence that shows Mr. Wheeler's active participation and sympathetic interests in policies and programs directly and indirectly furthering the objectives of communism."

"The position to which Mr. Wheeler was appointed is of such importance to the Government of the United States . . . that great care must be exercised . . . Mr. Wheeler has been rated ineligible."

However, David A. Morse, then a lieutenant colonel and Wheeler's immediate superior, wrote a long letter, Oct. 1, 1945, stating, among other things:

"I am taking this opportunity now that I am back in the states, to submit this letter in Mr. Wheeler's behalf with my estimate of his high integrity and unquestioned loyalty to America."

Later, Oct. 29, 1945, Morse appeared before the Civil Service Commission and testified that "if Wheeler had been dismissed pursuant to the Civil Service letter of Jan. 2 the constructive side of the U. S. postwar effort in Germany would have been adversely affected."

So Wheeler was reinstated and served with the American Military Government in Germany from Dec. 30, 1945, to Dec. 29, 1947. Three years later, on April 7, 1950, he asked for asylum of the Czech government and has since been reported by the Czech press as making speeches in praise of that "Communist paradise" and attacking the "warmongering" of his native country, the United States of America.

Blocking the Communists

Assistant Postmaster General Jack Redding has given the nation an illustration of what can be done regarding the Chinese Communists diplomatically when you really get on the ball.

Last winter Redding attended a meeting of the Universal Postal Union at Cairo, where the Chinese Communists won an important victory. Despite the objection of the United States and much to Redding's disgust, they were seated as a member of the Union.

However, another meeting of the Postal Union was scheduled for May 21 at St. Gallen, Switzerland, and Redding immediately got busy. He notified the anti-Communist friends of the U.S.A. that we would like to see them attend the St. Gallen meeting and vote with us against China. As a result, Turkey, Mexico, Colombia and Brazil, which had not participated before, showed up.

And this week, thanks to Redding's alertness, the Postal Union voted 10 to 6, with three abstaining, to boot Communist China out of the Postal Union.

Ridgway Vs. Rhee

Gen. Matthew Ridgway sent an important cable to the Defense Department this week regarding his problems with President Syngman Rhee and Korean troops.

President Rhee has insisted that Korean troops be organized as independent units and fight completely on their own. General Ridgway, on the other hand, has found that Korean troops fight well when closely integrated with U. S. troops but break and run when organized as independent units. Each time the Chinese have struck recently, they have aimed their chief blows at the South Koreans.

Therefore, General Ridgway asked the Defense Department to help him straighten out this problem with elderly, crusty President Rhee, who argues that if Korea is to defend itself in the future, its troops must learn to fight independently.

Secretary Marshall immediately got in touch with the State Department, secured its cooperation toward informing President Rhee that his troops must be integrated, at least until the crisis is over.

NOTE—At Wake Island, President Truman felt Rhee was a weight around Korea's neck, suggested to General MacArthur that new elections be held. MacArthur differed, stanchly defended Rhee. Truman dropped the matter.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Globosophy

The earth is a large and varied place and the experts on global relations must know more about the human race in all its intricacies than seems possible. For instance, no matter how devoted a man may be to the affairs of Western Europe, he may have no affinity for understanding such complexities as China, Iran, India or the Moslems. And the rule can be applied in other respects, for many Europeans fail altogether to understand the United States particularly when they assume that our charities have an ulterior motive.

We may, at the moment, pause concerning China, Japan and Korea and turn to Iran, which used to be called Persia and also Parthia and Fars and includes a chunk of Armenia. Iran is difficult to know and understand, because like so many countries which once were the greatest on earth and are now dependents upon the good will of peoples that were in the time of Darius unknown to civilization, they resent their own situation and hit out at the parvenus. They fail to realize that they are perhaps the authors of their own misfortunes.

Iran is rich in oil, which is its principal industry. Most of the oil is owned by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, a British enterprise which provides about 15 per cent of the national revenue through royalties and taxes and about 60 per cent of the nation's foreign exchange.

In the 19th Century, Iran, then Persia, was squeezed between Great Britain and Russia and was so hampered that it became one of those weak and backward countries which the Bear and the Lion divided between them into spheres of influence. The Iranians appealed to the United States for help, and in 1911, this country sent a financial expert, W. Morgan Shuster, to Persia to reorganize and manage its finances. He actually was appointed treasurer-general of Persia. Shuster failed because the British and the Russians sabotaged him. They hated each other, but combined to drive out an American.

In this current century of revolution, war, and global baloney, Iran has fared no better and continues to fight for its independent life. Since oil has become so important, and the British own the oil, Soviet Russia would like to capture the country as its own. Several attempts in this direction have been made.

The United States does not wish that Soviet Russia should get the oil of Iran, because the Russians are short of oil and the Iranian deposit is one of the best in the world. If the Russians got hold of that oil, it would improve their war potentiality vastly. In fact, it might be the decisive factor. For many experts believe that it is Russia's inadequate oil supply that keeps Russia from extending her war in Korea to global proportions.

The Iranians, like the Indians, would prefer to be neutral. Their attitude is undoubtedly best represented by Nehru, who takes the position that a war between the United States and Soviet Russia is one from which the weak and small nations should exclude themselves, if they can, or, if they are not permitted to be neutral, they should have freedom to pick the winner as an ally. Unfortunately geography is against this theory as it applies to both India and Iran.

So, Iran, having, since 1947, been rowing with the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company over the 18 year old contracts, is now nationalizing the oil industry, following the example of Great Britain's Socialist government at home, as the saying is, which nationalized 20 per cent of its economy. What, the Iranians assume, is sauce for the goose, should be sauce for the gander—but, of course, that is never quite so.

However, it is just bad business for the United States, in our troubles with Soviet Russia, for the oil of Iran to go to Russia. This can be very serious for us, now that we are so heavily committed to a global war, what with General Eisenhower organizing Europe for war on Russia and the State Department having accepted the MacArthur formula for China.

Therefore, the American view must be that the British can be Socialists in London, but a contract is a contract in Teheran, and that no matter what these Iranians feel about nationalism, we are going to see to it that that oil is not used to kill Americans.

That is the issue, quite simplified, but altogether accurate.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Unfortunately, the full text of the Senate inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the removal of General MacArthur is not getting to the public—or to many officials here either, because it is so voluminous that most newspapers haven't the paper to print it.

It costs at least $25 a day to buy it from the stenographers. The Senate committee will print it a few weeks hence.

This correspondent has read every word of the testimony from the beginning and can state that the record is full of rambling, repetitious, and contradictory statements by senators as well as by witnesses.

The record shows that the committee has needed a counsel and associate counsel to represent the two sides of the controversy and to get the facts arranged in some sort of understandable sequence.

Essential Faces Develop

Only now, in the last hours of General Bradley's testimony, have some of the most essential facts in the whole hearing been developed as a result of intermittent questioning by Senators Knowland, Wiley, Smith of, New Jersey, and Hickenlooper.

From General Bradley's testimony it now is established that:

1. General Bradley is not familiar with the terms of the alleged document which was supposed to have been circulated among 14 nations about a "cease fire" negotiation March 20 last and which, it is now conceded, was never sent to General MacArthur.

2. Although a message was sent, saying the Department of State was "planning" some such announcement, nothing more was ever sent to General MacArthur giving him any word as to a decision to do it. At that time scarcely a week went by that some UN plan to bring about a "cease fire" wasn't reported in the press as the hope of this or that UN faction.

3. The charge that General MacArthur appropriated the language and the terms of the document allegedly circulated among the 14 nations has now been disproved. He never was sent any such document. There is some question that any such document ever was seen by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

4. General Bradley says General MacArthur should have known that there was such a document planned and that he should not have addressed a surrender demand to the enemy. General MacArthur has said in a public statement that he twice had addressed similar demands to the enemy commander and that he did a third time on his own initiative what he previously had twice been authorized to do.

5. General Bradley says that the famous message to the convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars was not in disagreement with the views of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with respect to the strategic importance of Formosa and that he does not know what in that document could have caused the President or the Secretary of State to have been displeased.

6. General Bradley says that General MacArthur did not commit any act of military insubordination and that, so far as he knows, the Far Eastern commander was dismissed for stating certain views publicly, even though it is difficult now to point out just what phrases, if any, were embarrassing and he prefers the Secretary of State to point them out when he testifies.

Differ Over Russia

7. The views of General MacArthur and the Joint Chiefs have been and are generally in agreement on the military course to be pursued, but the difference lies in evaluating Russia's intentions. General MacArthur thinks the Russians will not intervene if Manchurian bases are bombed. General Bradley thinks they might intervene, and that it is this risk which he and other members of the Joint Chiefs say should not be taken.

8. There was a very poor liaison between General MacArthur and Washington. Although Washington officials assumed that the General knew about certain developments, they failed to keep him posted on what they were trying to do through the United Nations, and yet they claim his message to the Chinese commander upset their "cease fire" negotiations. There is no evidence that the Chinese were then or have since been willing to talk peace.

9. It is established by General Bradley—just as General MacArthur claimed — that neither the United States nor the UN has any "policy" in Korea at present except to fight a passive defense, and that there is no intention to carry the war to the bases of supply of the enemy—Red China.

So it looks—and General Bradley admits it—as if the UN is marking time. The UN is waiting for the Chinese Communists to oblige us and negotiate a "settlement." Several senators on the committee are trying to find out what kind of settlement the UN or our government could possibly make which—after withdrawal of our forces — could prevent the Communists at any time from marching across the border again.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Kremlin's New Gambit

LONDON.

Although the American and British policy makers are plainly a bit vague about it, the evidence is overwhelming that the Kremlin is now using a most promising new gambit in its gigantic program of world conquest.

In brief, the Iranian oil dispute is to serve as the fuse which will blow up the whole explosive Middle East. When and if the explosion occurs, Britain will be fearfully weakened. Britain and America will be angrily divided. The Western alliance will be demoralized. And the worst danger to the Soviet Union, the vital strategic airbases in the eastern Mediterranean, will be partly or wholly neutralized.

Then will be the time for the Kremlin to make its next move. The upset in the world balance of power that now threatens in the Middle East will paralyze the Western alliance. And the risk of resistance to a well-planned new aggression, against Yugoslavia for example, will thus be reduced almost to the vanishing point. This is the glittering opportunity for which the Kremlin is now waiting.

It should be understood, moreover, that the masters of the Kremlin have labored with unusual astuteness to create this opportunity. For a year and a half, they have done all in their power to make the more irresponsible Iranian nationalists forget the Russian danger to the north, and to drive them onward in their wild career.

Extremists Gains Power

For example, after the murder of Gen. Razmara and the first nationalization vote, the order was given for the Communist Tudeh party to lead a wave of "anti-British" strikes all over Iran. The strikes precipitated an internal crisis. The crisis brought to power the totally irrational extremist, Dr. Mohammed Mossadegh. Mossadegh's triumph ended all hope of reasonable settlement of the oil dispute by negotiation. Whereat the Soviet Ambassador Sadchikov went to Mossadegh, to promise that the Russians would not move into northern Iran, even if the British landed troops in the south.

This was the subtle final touch, here disclosed for the first time. The much discussed 1921 treaty theoretically gives Moscow the right to send forces into Iran when any other power does so. The fear of a Russian invasion, touched off by a British landing, formerly haunted even Mossadegh. Sadchikov's extraordinary assurance was precisely what was needed to make Mossadegh throw caution to the winds. And thus was produced the present desperate situation.

As these words are written, there is only one ray of light. Some signs in Teheran suggest that the effort to replace the Mossadegh government with a more reasonable administration is not quite so hopeless as it appeared a few days ago, when the Shah was refusing to tackle the problem. A new government with which reasonable negotiations can be carried on in a reasonable way is the only cheap way out. It is to be hoped American influence has been joined with British influence to attain this end.

Plan Won't Work

There is nothing cheap at all about the other supposedly cheap way out that some personalities in both the State Department and the Foreign Office are now mumbling about. This is the plan to "bring the Persians to their senses" by cutting off the Iranian government's oil revenue.

Anyone who has met the leading personalities and smelled the peculiar air of Teheran knows that this plan will almost certainly work in reverse. With the oil revenue cut off, the army and civil service will no longer be paid. Dr. Mossadegh may seek to meet the emergency by making Kefensky-like speeches, until the authority of the government simply dissolves and the Tudeh party takes over. Or more probably, he will go to Moscow for the loan Sadchikov has already hinted about; and he will get it on terms that will open the way for the Tudeh. In short, the betting is nine to one that this supposedly easy way will end with the Tudeh party in power in all of Iran, with the vital oil resource under Soviet control at last.

Yet there is grave danger that the Foreign Office and the State Department will flabbily drift into this foolish course. The State Department is said to have delusions on the subject. Here in London, the precedent is set, since the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company has already suspended revenue payments to the Iranian treasury. The British can hardly fail to retaliate if the Iranions expropriate their oil. They can hardly consider a landing without American moral support. And so the more you examine the situation, the bigger, the heavier, the more grave the American responsibility appears.

What Is Funny?

George Abbott, the producer, Ed Streeter, author of "Father of the Bride" who doubles as a banker, and I were talking about humor the other day.

"Do you think it's funny to send a telegram and sign another name to fool the guy who gets its?" I asked. "The idea, of course, is to push him into an embarrassing situation."

"It's not funny to me," replied Mr. Abbott. "And furthermore I think you can be put in the sneezer for doing it or maybe get a punch in the nose."

Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, likes to rib his friends with phony wires, and, of course, he runs little risk of being punched in the nose, unless perhaps he addresses one to Jack Dempsey.

"I think it's funny if a man stubs his toe in the street and falls down, or if his hat blows off, and he has to chase it," observed Mr. Streeter.

My contention was these misfortunes are not very amusing and I reminded my companions that underlying most humor is a streak of cruelty, especially practical joking. Then I recalled one day Ed Streeter and I had lunch together as guests of John Golden, a rainy, blustery afternoon. As we walked up 44th Street, at the corner of Seventh Avenue a gust struck us and turned both our umbrellas inside out, finally blowing the whole covering off my friends, leaving him holding a bare stick in the air while his hat was sailing down the block eventually landing in the gutter.

"Wsa that funny?" I asked him.

"I guess so, but it didn't amuse me much then, because it was a borrowed umbrella, and I had to pay $10 for one to replace it. The next day I lost another, and the total expenses were $20."

"I suggest you get yourself an old hat and a raincoat," said Mr. Abbott. "I think falls and other misfortunes are funnier on the stage when they are rehearsed than in real life." He left the table at the Coffee House where we were having lunch and went back to direct another hit.

This discussion led me to re-read Haircut, a wonderful short story by Ring Lardner about a practical joker who thinks he is a great humorist and finally gets shot dead for his pains by the town's half-wit. Here are a couple of examples of his jests, quoting Mr. Lardner:

"Well, he waited till Evans' Circus was advertised to come to town. Then he told his wife and two kiddies that he was going to take them to the circus. The day of the circus, he told them he would get the tickets and meet them outside the entrance to the tent.

"Well, he didn't have no intentions of bein' there or buyin' tickets or nothin'. He got full of gin and laid round Wright's poolroom all day. His wife and the kids waited and waited and, of course, he didn't show up. His wife didn't have a dime with her, or nowhere else, I guess. So she finally had to tell the kids it was all off, and they cried like they wasn't never goin' to stop."

"Jim had a great trick that he used to play while he was travelin'. For instance, he'd be ridin' on a train and they'd come to some little town like, well, like, we'll say, like Benton. Jim would look out the train window and read the signs on the stores.

"For instance, they'd be a sign, 'Henry Smith, Dry Goods'. Well, Jim would write down the name and the name of the town and when he got to wherever he was goin' he'd mail back a postal card to Henry Smith at Benton and not sign no name to it, but he'd rite on the card, well, somethin' like 'Ask your wife about that book agent that spent the afternoon last week', or 'Ask your Missus who kept her from gettin' lonesome the last time you were in Carterville'. And he'd sign the card, 'A Friend'."

As the editor of Liberty magazine, I bought and published this great and bitter tale. The circulation manager complained,

"I wish you wouldn't print any more stories about barbershops. There's no circulation in those places nowadays."

Red Claims Cure For Skin Cancer

MOSCOW (AP) — The magazine Ogonek says that a Soviet scientist had discovered a fluid which cures skin cancers completely with one treatment.

The fluid, the nature of which was not disclosed, was discovered by Dr. Vyacheslav Gordeev of Stanislav, in the Western Ukraine, Ogonek said, and already has ended the sufferings of thousands of patients.

The article claimed that the fluid also cures skin ulcers of various sorts and ulcerous and warty tuberculosis of the skin.

(In Chicago, a spokesman for the American Medical Association said he is "inclined to doubt that it's anything new."

(The spokesman said skin cancers have been treated successfully in this country with zinc chloride. He said this treatment has been perfected by a physician connected with the University of Iowa at Iowa city).

Red Claims Cure For Skin Cancer

MOSCOW (AP) — The magazine Ogonek says that a Soviet scientist had discovered a fluid which cures skin cancers completely with one treatment.

The fluid, the nature of which was not disclosed, was discovered by Dr. Vyacheslav Gordeev of Stanislav, in the Western Ukraine, Ogonek said, and already has ended the sufferings of thousands of patients.

The article claimed that the fluid also cures skin ulcers of various sorts and ulcerous and warty tuberculosis of the skin.

(The spokesman said skin cancers have been treated successfully in this country with zinc chloride. He said this treatment has been perfected by a physician connected with the University of Iowa at Iowa city).

The Young Business Women's Club formulated plans for June activities at the monthly social, Wednesday held in the form of a dinner party at Moon's Dining Room, followed by a theater party.

A weekend trip to Hershey, Pa., is to be made June 9-10; and the monthly social will be a hamburger fry, June 27 at the home of Miss Louise Cessna, Shade's Lane. The usual business session is to be June 13.

Attending Wednesday's parties were Miss Cessna, Miss Virginia Kathleen Daugherty, Miss Naomi Beall, Miss Catherine Kirk, Miss Parks, Miss Beatrice Parks, Miss Bernadetta Flora, Miss Mary Ellen Helmick, Miss Ellen Newman, Miss Mary Ottiero, Miss Hannah Drubeck, Miss Betty Creegan, Miss Beverly Smith and Miss Joan Spiker.

PMC Jewell Conferred By DeMolay

Cumberland Chapter, Order of DeMolay entertained a group of members of the Reisterstown Chapter and presented a past masters councilors jewel to Charles Thrasher at the meeting Wednesday evening at the Masonic temple. James J. Kave, dad of the chapter, made the presentation. He also asked for introductions of the 20 Reisterstown members.

Julius Schindler was the principal speaker for the evening. His topic was "The World of Today." He warned that communistic countries and countries with dictators do not permit DeMolay or Masonic Chapters to operate. He also pointed out numerous presidents of the United States and other great men were Masons, listing especially Washington, John Adams and Theodore Roosevelt.

Plans were formulated to have installation of officers June 13. Walter Eyler is to officiate. William Burke is to be inducted as master councilor; James Chenowith, senior councilor; and Douglas Ritchie, junior councilor.

A social hour concluded the evening and refreshments were served by members of the DeMolay Mothers Club.

Music Class Entertains

The Second Year Adult Music class at Fort Hill High School had a party Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Gross, Jr., Pearre Avenue.

An appreciation gift was presented to Aden Lewis, the music instructor. Mr. Lewis also played several of his favorite classical compositions for the group.

Games and music featured the entertainment and a prize was won by Mrs. Virginia Green.

Spring flowers centered the refreshment table and a pastel color scheme was repeated in the table appointments.

Others present were Mrs. Esther Copeland, Mrs. Gertrude Hartsock, Mrs. Mary Hiner, Mrs. Rose Hay, Mrs. Betsy Reynolds and Miss Hilda Willison, chairman of the class.

NEWLYWEDS—Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stemple are shown cutting their wedding cake at the reception given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Harold Walton, 408 Hill Street, at the VFW home following their marriage in Centre Street Methodist Church, May 18. The bride is the former Miss Mary Jane Walton. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Buford Cross, 614 Maryland Avenue, and James A. Stemple, 412 Central Avenue.

Ruth M. Buckle To Become Bride Of Robert Glotfelty

Ceremony To Be In Living Stone Church

Miss Ruth Maxine Buckle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Buckle, 717 Patterson Avenue, is to become the bride of Robert Oren Glotfelty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orval C. Glotfelty, Accident, tomorrow.

The double ring ceremony will be solemnized at 3 p. m., in the living Stone Church of the Brethren, with Rev. Arthur Scrogum officiating. Palms, ferns, candelabra and altar vases of white snapdragons and gladioli are being used in the decorations of the church. White satin ribbons mark the pews.

Miss Shirley Johnson is to be the bride's maid of honor and Mrs. Jane Adams, sister of the bride and Mrs. Yvonne Williams, Geistown, bridesmaids. Dale Glotfelty is serving as his brother's best man while John Reckner, Jr., Accident, and Daniel Klotz, Grantsville, are the ushers.

A program of nuptial music, including, "Why Do I Love You," Traumerei," Leibestraum," To an Evening Star," "Poeme," 'Ave Maria," and "Because," will be played by Miss Roberta Koontz preceding the ceremony. She also will play the traditional processional from the opera Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's recessional, and accompany Miss Antoinette Cantone, who is to sing, "O Promise Me," and "I Love You Truly," and during the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love." Miss Betty May, Washington, is giving a reading, 'How Do I Love Thee," during the ceremony.

The bride, who is to be given in marriage by her father, is wearing a white satin and lace gown fashioned on princess lines. The fitted bodice has long sleeves with deep lace cuffs ending in a point on the hand, and standing lace collar. The full satin skirt ends in a sweeping train. Her fingertip length veil of bridal illusion is held by a Juliette cap of lace and satin. A bouquet of white snapdragons, gardenias and babysbreath with a white orchid center and white satin streamers completes her costume.

Her attendants' gowns are of Celanese voile, fashioned with off the shoulder tight bodices and full skirts over taffeta. The maid of honor's is pink; Mrs. Adams' blue and Mrs. Williams' yellow. With them they have tiaras of flowers and net matching their gowns, matching mitts and Colonial bouquets.

Mrs. Buckle has chosen a light blue dress for her daughter's wedding. With it she will wear Navy and white accessories and a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Glotfelty is wearing a beige print with matching accessories and a corsage of white orchids.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Allegany High School, class of 1947 and is employed in the Distribution department of the Kelly Springfield Tire Company for the past four years..

Her fiancee is a graduate of Grantsville High School and a veteran of 26 months service in the armed forces, part of which was spent in the Pacific Theater of Operations. He is at present engaged in farming.

Mr. and Mrs. Buckle are entertaining with a reception for their daughter and her bridal party in the church social room, following the ceremony. The bridal motif is to be carried out in the four tiered wedding cake with a miniature bride and bridegroom. White candles and vases of snapdragons are decorating the table. Mrs. Virgil Ice, city; and Mrs. Donald Buckle, Arlington, Va., are to serve the cake while Miss Mary Elizabeth Ice and Miss Betty Lou Glotfelty, Accident will preside at the punch bowl. Miss May is in charge of the guest book.

For their trip North, the bride has chosen a beige suit with red accessories and her white orchid corsage.

Mrs. William Adams, Bowling Green entertained with a pre-nuptial miscellaneous shower for Miss Buckle recently. The bridal theme was carried out in the decorations of the table and repeated throughout the house. Guests were Mrs. George Johnson, Mrs. Joseph May, Mrs. Charles Roby, Mrs. Donald Ridgeley, Mrs. Joseph Knepp, Mrs. Maynard Hasenbuhler, Mrs. Virgil Ice, Mrs. William Powell, Mrs. Charles Bickle, Miss Shirley Johnson and Miss Roberta Koontz.

Auxiliary Mission Unit Is Organized

An auxiliary mission unit was organized at a meeting of a group of women especially interested in the work, Wednesday evening in St. Patrick's Social Center. The unit will assist the catechetical and charitable work of the Mission Helpers of the Sacred Heart, whose mother house is at Townson.

Sister M. Rosalia, M.H.S.H., the former Miss Josephine Walsh of this city, came from Townson to address the group. She gave an account of the sister's work in rural districts, in parish census work and in training lay catechists in many parts of the United States and Puerto Rico.

Officers elected were Mrs. Francis M. Donahue, president; Mrs. Francis Briner, vice president; Mrs. Francis L. Werner, secretary and Mrs. John Brinker, treasurer.

The group of women personally has been sponsoring car parties to raise funds for the Mission Helpers.

Monthly meetings are planned and membership is not restricted. Approximately 20 women attended the organization meeting. Sister Antionette accompanied Sister Rosalia here.

Country Club Supper-Dance To Be June 2

The first big event of the summer season of the Cumberland Country Club will be a buffet supper and dance, June 2.

Supper is to be served at 6:30 and will be followed at 8 by a program of musical and novelty numbers by the Choristers, under the direction of Jack Platt.

Brad Hunt and his orchestra from Pittsburgh will play for the dancing until 1:30.

The swimming pool and snack bar will open the second also.

Another club dance is scheduled for July 14, at which time Brad Hunt's orchestra will play again.

The children's playground is to open July 17 this year instead of earlier as originally announced. Eugene Mason, who has finished his second year at Potomac State School and has two years' experience in city recreation activities, will be in charge. He is a Red Cross life guard and will supervise swimming classes and water games for the children. He is also teaching tennis classes.

Miss Elizabeth Long, is serving as his assistant and will work with the younger children.

The Men's Golf team will play Bedford June 6; Uniontown, June 10 and Hagerstown, June 24. A meeting of the Women's Golf Association is to be June 12, with a game with Hagerstown on the 21; and an invitation tournament July 13.

Norma Jean Smith Is Bride Of D. M. Braesecker

The marriage of Miss Norma Jean Smith to Don M. Braesecker, Berlin, Pa., has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Smith, 870 Maryland Avenue, parents of the bride. The ceremony was performed May 2 by Rev. Stephen L. Fleckenger, pastor of Centenary Reformed Church, Winchester, Va.

The bride is a graduate of Fort Hill High School and Memorial Hospital School of Nursing. She is employed on the staff at the hospital.

A veteran of World War II, the bridegroom is employed by the Pennsylvania Telephone Company, Somerset, Pa.

PARIS — The tourist today takes home a thousand dear little memories, stuffed into the pockets of his brain for future reference, to pull out and tenderly go over in years to come . . . About Paris you will never forget:

How unmarked by war it is, one of the only important cities in Europe which war did not wound . . . At least not outwardly . . . Inside, the four bitter years of German occupation left, I suppose, on their inner spirits wounds that still pain.

AUSTINE

But in spring Paris is mainly occupied with itself, with its own beauty. You may come and go as you like. Parisians don't notice you. They are wrapped up in their own pleasure over their treasure of a city . . . The children playing in the Luxembourg Gardens . . . Generations of children who have played here. A Roman camp once stood on this very site in Caesar's time before the birth of Christ.

You won't forget, either, the way people drive in Paris—one foot on the brake, other on the gas, hand on the horn and blindfolded, while talking to the dozen people in the back seat . . . Mondays, everything shut tight as an oyster. In France it's a day of relaxation. Shops, museums, showplaces and restaurants closed. Good day to curl up with a book.

The pneumatiques . . . Not sufferers from a respiratory ailment, but a sort of inter-city telegram . . . As many people still lack telephones, these messages can reach anyone in Paris in two hours . . . You buy the blanks at the post office stamp window, and a system of underground tubes carries your letter to another post office for special delivery.

Site of the guillotine during the Reign of Terror, the Place de la Concorde, central hub of Paris, lighted up at night, fountains splashing splendidly . . . Only about twice a year the entire city is lighted—Notre Dame, Opera House, and all fountains turned on full blast—for Joan of Arc Day, a Sunday in May, and again for Bastille Day in July.

Two boulevardiers arguing about MacArthur in torrents of French and high feeling.

In a yellow silk, pleated dress, printed with butterfly wings, Mrs. David Bruce receiving in the drawing room of the Embassy . . . Our American Embassy is something to be proud of—tastefully furnished, looking into a juicy green garden lilac trees in bloom, and off to one side, quite frankly in view, a little sandbox for the ambassadorial kids . . . Mrs. Bruce is adored by the French because she speaks French flawlessly (she's the daughter of a diplomat) and because she's pretty and chic, three good enough reasons why any Frenchman would admire her.

She has a rough schedule of entertaining with the diplomats, ECA bosses, foreign officials and the prominent Americans who visit and expect to be asked to at least one function at their Embassy.

You will never forget the food in any little joint around the corner . . . Each superb dish is worthy of a whole column, nay, a book devoted to it alone . . . Fraises du Bois, not found in the U S., the miniature strawberries which used to grow wild in the woods but now flourish in hothouses. They're no bigger than a baby's fingernail and served with heavy cream . . The coffee for breakfast makes your hair kink . . . Seems to be made of roasted acorns and cigaret butts . . . Never forget to bring your own instant powdered coffee from home and then just order hot water . . . The feathery rolls and golden butter melt in your gullet ! !

But in a poor neighborhood like Belleville you will see French housewives lining up to get horsemeat (they can afford it perhaps once a week) haggling over a few pennies, serving their under-nourished families noodles and bread, noodles and bread . . . In expensive restaurants like the Tour d'Argent you'll hear English, Swedish and Spanish spoken by most of the clients.

Little boys wearing the shortest pants possible . . . Bicycles everywhere . . . Signs on the side of every other building "Deffense d'affiche" . . . And what some tourists think that means! . . . Actually, it conveys the idea that it is against the law to reface the wall in any way, writing naughty words, pasting bills, etc . . . First glimpse of the Louvre, the greatest treasure house in the world, unbelievable size of the pile . . . The ritual of ordering onion soup at dawn after a big evening at Les Halles, the market place where farmers hawk their wares to buyers from the hotels' restaurants and retail grocery stores . . . Emile Zola describes this loud-mouthed produce market aptly as "the belly of Paris."

These and so many other memories of Paris you will never forget.

The way a little girl's face is washed may determine the texture of her complexion in her adult years!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

With a young daughter of my own and many a model mother among the Powers Girls, the subject of a child's skin care is never slighted in our study and quest of beauty.

The radiance of a little girl's face, shining and bright as a new penny, is something every parent treasures. But how many are giving that clear, natural complexion the care that will keep it radiant for the lady through years to come?

Clear, Radiant Skin

A little girl's complexion has the best chance of maturing naturally and beautifully, if you . . .

1. Don't scrub! Never use strong soap, harsh brushes, rough washcloths or overly vigorous techniques. Such treatment injures the healthiest skin; leads to irritations during adolescence and lines in maturity.

2. Cleanse your child's face with extreme care and teach her how as soon as she's old enough. Establish this good habit early—she'll thank you from the time she reaches the age of understanding and on into the years!

3. Use only the mildest of lanolin-based soaps. Shaving cream containing lanolin does the job expertly, lathers quickly and generously. Many fluid and cream cleansers take care of skins that will not tolerate soap.

4. Remember rough treatment cleanses no better than gentle. The cleanser itself is what accomplishes the deep-pore penetration. Use your fingertips or only the softest badger or synthetic-tufted complexion brush to wash a child's face.

Use Lanolin Lubricant

5. Lubricate the skin nightly, winter and summer. A simple lanolin-based lubricant is enough for baby skins.

6. Restrict sweets but do not cut them altogether. Every normal skin needs a balanced diet.

7. Don't employ home remedies in case of a wide-spread irritation. Consult a dermatologist at once, especially in the case of teenagers. He can advise you of many new cures for adolescent skin difficulties.

Note the similarity to the care of mother's skin? They're pretty much the same!

Charges Against Laundry Loom

Mrs. Bernadette Trost, president of Local 40, Laundry Workers Union, CIO, said yesterday that due to the refusal of the management of the Cumberland Laundry Company to negotiate for a new contract the union has written the National Labor Relations Board.

The NLRB will be asked what procedure to follow in view of the company's refusal to enter into negotiations, Mrs. Trost said. The union official said that Robert Friedland, company official, told her that he "wasn't going to bother with negotiations" this year.

Several meetings have been held with officials of the Crystal Laundry Company on a new contract but further negotiations will be held in abeyance until the NLRB sends word as to what procedures to follow in the case of the Cumberland Laundry, according to Mrs. Trost.

The union is asking for a 20-cent an hour wage increase, increased commission rates for drivers and employes who work in commission basis in the shirt department.

Last year the workers at the Cumberland Laundry failed to receive a wage increase after arbitration under provisions of the City Labor-Management Committee. This action was taken after the laundry said it was unable to pay an increase and the late Chief Judge William A. Huster gave an opinion supporting the laundry's inability to pay at that time.

Sgt. George Kirby Will Sing Here

A piano and voice concert, sponsored by the First Methodist Church, will be presented at the church on Bedford Street Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Featured on the program will be Ann Fisher Gormer, Cumberland, pianist, and T-Sgt. George F. Kirby, tenor, U. S. Air Force. A similar concert was presented in Oakland on May 18 and a repeat performance is scheduled tomorrow night. The concert will also be given in Lonaconing, June 6.

The benefit performance is open to the public and the proceeds will be used for purchase of new robes for thes enior choir of First Methodist Church.

City Begins Work On Garbage Road

City Street Department crews this week began repairs on Garbage Road, which runs from Oldtown Road to the city dump.

Work on the mile long stretch, badly damaged by the severe winter, will include cleaning drains and some straightening and grading.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commisioner of streets and public property, said hard shale secured from near the airport, will be used for repairing the road.

The shale was used in the extension of First Street, which was completed within the past few days.

Officials said the shale has proved a satisfactory temporary surfacing material.

Civil Air Patrol Assigned Plane For Training Purposes

The Cumberland Flight of Civil Air Patrol has been assigned an L-4 Army liaison plane for training purposes.

The local flight will have the ship, a Piper Cub, one week in each six weeks on a rotation plan among other CAP units.

The L-4 was flown here from Petersburg and next week will be assigned to Keyser. It also goes to Hancock and Martinsburg.

As the Cumberland Municipal Airport is in West Virginia, the local CAF flight belongs to the West Virginia Command and is directly under the jurisdiction of the Martinsburg Wing.

Nine members of the senior CAP unit here are eligible to fly the ship. An Air Force license is required.

The craft will be used in practice of ground-air combined search operations, evacuation, rescue and other CAP functions.

For the Cadet Corps, it will be used purely for observation purposes. The cadets will fly with the licensed members and watch the maneuvers of a pilot while in flight.

The senior unit which meets each Tuesday night at the airport has 21 members headed by Franklin Young, commander.

In the cadet corps, which has Lt. John Wagoner as commandant, there are 34 members. They meet with the senior unit.

In addition to the L-4, the Cumberland Flight has a practically new Link trainer which was hauled here last week by local National Guard trucks.

During World War II, a Piper Cub was assigned here by the Civil Air Patrol. It was returned following the cessation of hostilities

Fantastic Sales Talks For Patent Medicines Taboo

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Feeling tired? Run-down? Spots before your eyes?

Then hurry to see your doctor and don't pay any attention to the slick talk of door-to-door patent medicine salesmen, the U. S. Food and Drug Administration advises.

This isn't exactly a new warning, but the agency spotlighted it in the course of reporting a court order, "unique in food and drug law history," forbidding 15,000 salesmen to make "extravagant" claims for a vitamin-and-mineral product called Nutrilite.

To get their evidence, federal inspectors posed as Nutrilite salesmen and as customers. They made recordings of sales spiels, as delivered by real salesmen, then went into the U. S. District Court in Los Angeles and made a complaint.

After reading transcripts of the sales talks, the national distributor of the product agreed to the court order putting restrictions on what salesmen may claim, said Dr. Paul B. Dunbar, commissioner of food and drugs.

"Claims that Nutrilite has any value in treating 57 serious diseases, including cancer, heart trouble, diabetes, arthritis and rheumatism are specifically prohibited," Dunbar said.

BRADLEY WARNS OF IRANIAN CRISIS

IN A CHEERFUL MOOD as he prepared to wind up his testimony before the Senate Armed Services-Foreign Relations Committee in Washington, Gen. Omar Bradley stops to chat with California's Sen. William F. Knowland (left). Later, the shadow of the Iranian crisis crept into his remarks as Gen. Bradley warned that the Russians might move in Iran or elsewhere and that new aggression might be faced. (International)

The court order does, however, allow canvassers to claim that the product helps diet and nutrition in 30 ways—in the cases, for instance, of people who don't eat the right foods or who cook the vitamins out of food.

Dunbar said in a statement that "serious danger to public health is inherent when house-to-house canvassers promote medical and nutritional products in the privacy of the home."

"The danger arises," he said, "because in a large number of homes there are undetected cases of serious disease. Ailing and uninformed people, who do not know what is the matter with them, are all too likely to be impressed by a persuasive sales talk and may consequently delay seeking competent medical advice until it is too late."

Fantastic Sales Talks For Patent Medicines Taboo

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Feeling tired? Run-down? Spots before your eyes?

Then hurry to see your doctor and don't pay any attention to the slick talk of door-to-door patent medicine salesmen, the U. S. Food and Drug Administration advises.

This isn't exactly a new warning, but the agency spotlighted it in the course of reporting a court order, "unique in food and drug law history," forbidding 15,000 salesmen to make "extravagant" claims for a vitamin-and-mineral product called Nutrilite.

To get their evidence, federal inspectors posed as Nutrilite salesmen and as customers. They made recordings of sales spiels, as delivered by real salesmen, then went into the U. S. District Court in Los Angeles and made a complaint.

After reading transcripts of the sales talks, the national distributor of the product agreed to the court order putting restrictions on what salesmen may claim, said Dr. Paul B. Dunbar, commissioner of food and drugs.

"Claims that Nutrilite has any value in treating 57 serious diseases, including cancer, heart trouble, diabetes, arthritis and rheumatism are specifically prohibited," Dunbar said.

The court order does, however, allow canvassers to claim that the product helps diet and nutrition in 30 ways—in the cases, for instance, of people who don't eat the right foods or who cook the vitamins out of food.

Dunbar said in a statement that "serious danger to public health is inherent when house-to-house canvassers promote medical and nutritional products in the privacy of the home."

"The danger arises," he said, "because in a large number of homes there are undetected cases of serious disease. Ailing and uninformed people, who do not know what is the matter with them, are all too likely to be impressed by a persuasive sales talk and may consequently delay seeking competent medical advice until it is too late."

BRADLEY WARNS OF IRANIAN CRISIS

IN A CHEERFUL MOOD as he prepared to wind up his testimony before the Senate Armed Services-Foreign Relations Committee in Washington, Gen. Omar Bradley stops to chat with California's Sen. William F. Knowland (left). Later, the shadow of the Iranian crisis crept into his remarks as Gen. Bradley warned that the Russians might move in Iran or elsewhere and that new aggression might be faced. (International)

"Beauty" In Raw Dominates Show In Berlin Clubs

By Karl-Heinz Schwab

BERLIN — (AP) — Unveiled beauty dominates entertainment section advertising in Berlin newspapers these days.

Scantily clad girls catch the reader's eye with persuasive invitations to spend an evening at this or that night club.

"Beauty dances" are the main attraction. But if you substitute "nude" for "beauty" it fits much better.

A place called San Francisco promises "beautiful Paris nightlife," illustrated by a girl who wears little more than a chain of flowers around her neck.

Hamburg Ahoy, a night club with a sailor band, has posters all over the city advertising a "night without morals."

There are more than a dozen such clubs in West Berlin but there isn't much variety.

It's the same show about everywhere.

A master of ceremonies who bridges the gaps between numbers telling more or less decent jokes, a "ballet" of three or four—fully clad—with something supposed to be a Spanish dance, and an acrobat or two.

And then: "Zehra Achmed," or whatever exotic name the featured lady prefers for professional appearances.

As for the costume, it's sufficient to say that if anybody has ever courted a real three-week cold, it's these "beauty dancers."

In the Russian sector of Berlin, however, as well as in the Soviet zone, there is none of this. "Beauty dances" there are classed in the category of "American ape culture."

Only in Soviet films depicting the life of "capitalists" can semi-nude girls be seen entertaining the "upper ten-thousand."

Princess Stages Sitdown Strike

BOMBAY, (INS)—An American-born Indian princess said last night in Bombay that she will stage a sitdown strike in Calcutta to force the family of her late husband to pay for her support.

Princess Billie Indrajit, born Billie Bridges in Dallas, Tex., a tall, blue-eyed brunette, wept as she said she will "squat" outside the Cooch Behar Palace, where the maharajah of Cooch Behar, brother of her husband, is living.

The 34-year-old Princess explained that her in-laws have refused to recognize her or respond to her claims since her 33-year-old husband died in a fire at the family palace in Darjeeling on April 4.

It was the same day that Princess Billie returned from a three-month visit to the United States.

She said she met and married the Prince in May, 1950 while she was touring India with a social service mission. That civil ceremony was followed by a Hindu religious wedding in December.

At the time of the marriage, the Prince already had an Indian wife and two children.

Now, said the Princess, she is hoping her sitdown strike may "precipitate matters."

The English translation of the Indian name Shenandoah is Daughter of the Stars.

"THE SHAMPOO THAT CURLS!"

"Shampoo-Curl" is a luscious new kind of Cream Shampoo. You have never used a shampoo that gives so much rich creamy lather—that leaves the hair so soft, lovely and beautiful.

And you have never used any method to curl your hair that is so safe, so quick and leaves you with masses of glorious, silky curls or deep shining waves

Wet hair thoroughly. Apply SHAMPOO-CURL and rinse. Apply second application, leaving it on hair 3 to 5 minutes. Then rinse, set hair into favorite hair-do (waves, pin curls or curlers), and allow to dry. Then comb.

Savannah Bustling Again With Boom Port Industry

By BEM PRICE

SAVANNAH, Ga.—(AP)—Savannah is somewhat like a dignified old lady awakening from a long nap with an energetic rustle in her bustle.

To strangers she still manages to turn a placid front but her mind is out in the back yard where they're building a new plant and she's proudly aware Savannah once again is the leading South Atlantic port.

This undoubtedly is one of the most fascinating towns in the nation; a rare combination of the old and new; of industry and shipping, of work and play.

It's a town of bo'suns pipes and factory whistles, of shady, tree-lined squares, of roomy old furnished apartments, a town with the whole Atlantic Ocean at the front door to play in, with fresh water to fish in and relatively few tourists.

After years of genteel poverty, wealth is returning but its streets are badly in need of paving and many back streets have never been paved at all.

Taxes appear high—$25 per $1,000—but a complicated system brings the actual rate down to less than half that. Assessments are lenient.

For nearly two centuries Savannah was primarily a port. Her wealth was based on the trading she did in musty, waterfront offices in cotton and naval stores, the needs of seamen and ships.

But cotton collapsed and the need for naval stores declined—and so did Savannah. Outside of a few people the only thing rich about Savannah was its history. As late as 1928 Savannah had but 108 plants employing only 4,222 workers. Her heart was still at sea.

There's been quite a change in the old lady. Business is booming as it hasn't boomed since its trading heyday in 1908.

First came sugar refineries to use the cheap water route from Cuba. Then fertilizer plants to take advantage of the water rates from South America. Then a man named Dr. Charles Herty figured out a way to make pulp paper from pine and brought in the paper industry.

Now the Savannah area boasts more than 300 industries with 18,000 employes and an annual payroll of more than $42,000,000. What's more, there were 264 more ships in the harbor last year than the year before.

But these are things of the present. Chilton Roberts, managing director of the Industrial Committee of Savannah, has his eye on the future:

"We are anticipating in the next five years a capital investment of $500,000,000 for various types of new construction. It is not at all fantastic to suggest that by 1960 Savannah and Chatham County, which have a present population of more than 149,000, will have a population of 200,000."

Roberts can tick off a long list of expected developments, including the recent announcement that American Cynamid Corporation had taken an option on 1,600 acres for a plant site.

The Air Force is doubling the size of its Hunter Field base with its atom bomb carrying planes. Nearby Camp Stewart is growing like a weed. Before the emergency is out Savannah will have 40,000-plus servicemen at her doorstep.

In her best days Savannah shipped around 4,000,000 tons annually. When the submarine menace closed the harbor in 1942 it fell off to nothing. Gradually she's getting back on her feet and last year shipped 2,600,000 tons.

On top of that barge service is picking up on the seven-foot channel—soon to be nine—to Augusta. The tremendous power development at Clark Hill and Hartwell on the Upper Savannah River near Augusta is expected to provide cheap power.

Besides that Savannah is expecting quite a bit of business with the H-bomb plant 208 miles by water up the Savannah at Augusta.

Most exciting of all is the prospect of resumption of inter-coastal service. The submarines that closed the port in 1942 also ruined the coastwise shipping and it has never been resumed.

Talk to any native five minutes and he will tell you about Seatrains, Inc., which is due to take over the coastal franchise of Ocean Steamship Lines, a subsidiary of the Central of Georgia Railroad.

On top of that barge service is picking up on the seven-foot channel—soon to be nine—to Augusta. The tremendous power development at Clark Hill and Hartwell on the Upper Savannah River near Augusta is expected to provide cheap power.

Most exciting of all is the prospect of resumption of inter-coastal service. The submarines that closed the port in 1942 also ruined the coastwise shipping and it has never been resumed.

Talk to any native five minutes and he will tell you about Seatrains, Inc., which is due to take over the coastal franchise of Ocean Steamship Lines, a subsidiary of the Central of Georgia Railroad.

Fla. Legislature Oks Bill Banning Printing Of Horse Race Information

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.— (AP) —The Florida Legislature has passed a bill to outlaw printing of detailed horse race information on which wagers might be made with bookmakers.

The bill prohibits printing, transportation, sale or possession of tip sheets, scratch sheets and even newspapers containing horse race information that could be used "in furtherance of illegal gambling."

Florida Attorney General Richard Ervin, who drew the bill and asked for its passage, said that in his opinion it will cut out of Florida newspapers charts of "race entries at all the horse tracks which are running in the United States on any day, and information on jockeys, weights, withdrawals or scratches, betting odds and handicappers' choices."

The bill now goes to Gov. Fuller Warren, who has made no comment. If he signs it or lets it lay in his office five days without a veto, the bill will become law immediately.

Ervin said there was some question whether the law would prevent Florida papers from printing charts, entries, selections and other detailed information on races to be run at Florida's four tracks.

"I hope it does," he said. "I hope we can do away with the papers carrying these programs. In my opinion it encourages making book right out of the newspapers."

Ervin added he did not think the law would prevent newspapers from publishing advance stories about races, with general discussions of horses, jockeys, trainers, past performances, track conditions and other information as long as they don't print it in detailed chart form.

The act specifically exempts "official programs of race tracks or other items containing racing information duly authorized by the State Racing Commission."

Penalty for violation would be a fine of $500 to $5,000 or imprisonment up to 12 months, or both.

Passage of the bill followed legislative approval of another measure Ervin proposed to delay transmission of racing results from Florida tracks for 30 minutes after each race.

That bill would prohibit transmission of all racing information from tracks for an hour before the first race of the day. It would hold up results from the last race 15 minutes and permit unrestricted transmission and broadcast of two feature races each week.

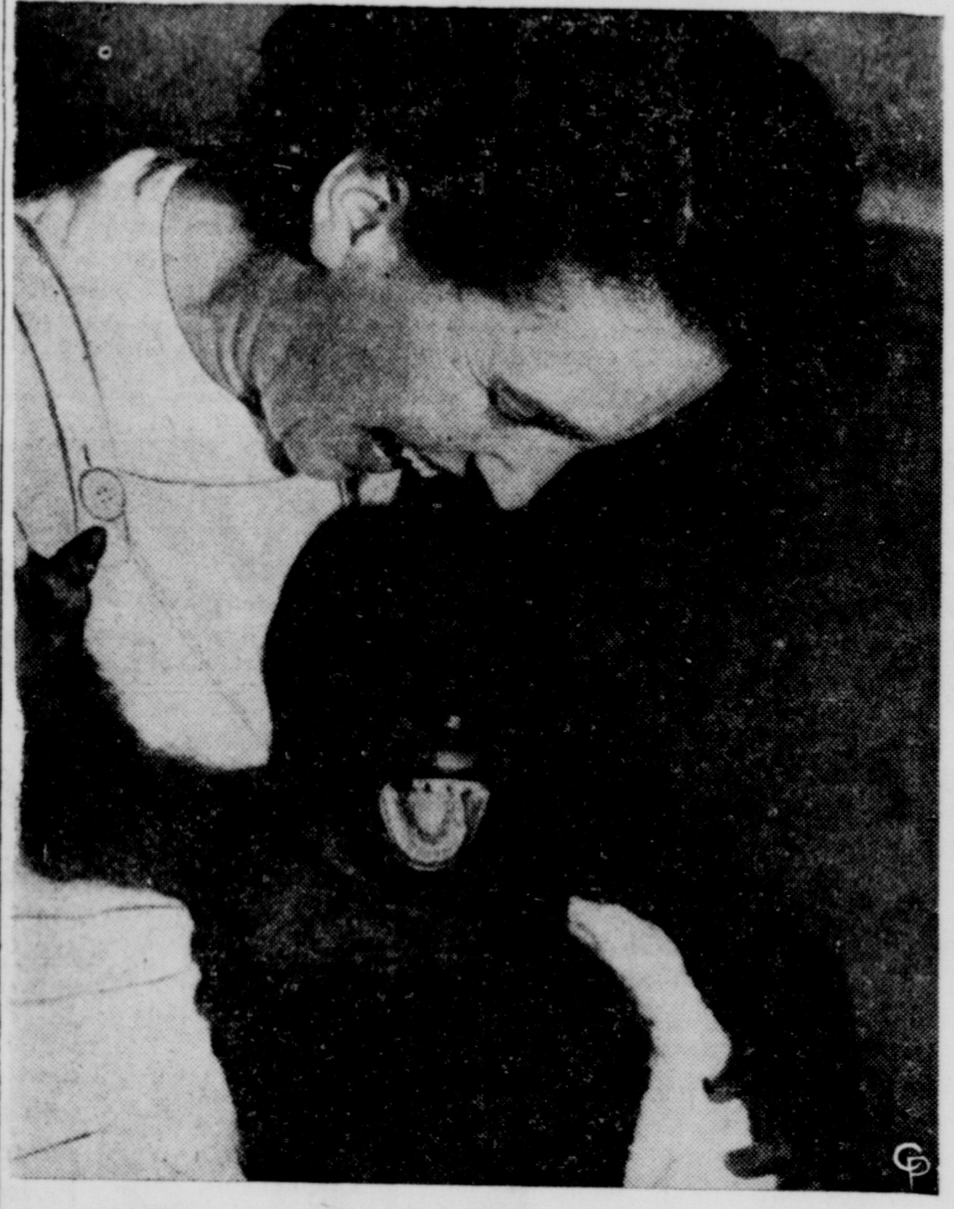
GORILLA IS IN FOR TENDER CARE



A NEWCOMER at New York's Bronx Zoo is Mambo, a 15-pound baby gorilla which is cared for by Mrs. Helen Martini in the animal nursery. Estimated to be under two years old, Mambo will be raised to replace Macoco, the popularly mourned 14-year-old gorilla which recently slipped into a moat outside its cage and was drowned. NEW YORK—(INS)—The passing show:

To give you a faint idea of the enormity of our remobilization program, let us consider one minor aspect of it — the atomic energy enterprise.

Its operations extend from the uranium mines of the Belgian Congo and the Arctic region of Canada to the weapons proving ground at Eniwetok in the Pacific and the medical projects studying the after effects of the A-bombings of Hiroshima, Nagasaki and Bikini.

There are major research centers at Los Alamos, Oak Ridge, Berkeley, and Chicago, in Iowa, Nevada, New York, and Ohio. And in 19 universities. More than 80,000 workers are involved, and the land area occupied by the facilities comes to 2,800 square miles — equal to the states of Delaware and Rhode Island combined.

The Atomic Energy Commission now has a capital investment that ranks its operations just behind those of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and U. S. Steel, as the major industrial enterprise of the nation. New building, a uranium processing plant at Fernald, O., a billion dollar H-bomb plant in South Carolina and a half billion dollar plant in Kentucky will move AEC well ahead of A.T. & T. and Steel.

But — and it's a big but — our atomic energy activities amount to less than three per cent of the defense budget!

The results of Hollywood's gingerly support of Comdr. E. F. McDonald's "phonevision" system—the piping of up-to-date films into private television homes for a fee (which appears on the telephone bill)—are now available.

The young president of Zenith reports:

"Over 300 families who participated in the experiment saw movies in their homes at a sustained high rate that astonished our optimists and astounded our skeptics. Our attendance rate was three and a half times greater than the .47 times per week which is considered the average for American movie attendance in the theaters."

TV-movie subscribers spent an average of $1.73 a week on the private - line films, or $22.50 per family during the three months of the test. McDonald says that if this is any tip-off, and the country's 10,000,000 set owners had similar rights, the producers' average net return per picture, for TV alone, would be $1,250,000.

The Variety Clubs of America do a lot of good that is never overly publicized. The origin of the charitable organization is just about as glamor- ridden as some of its members.

In 1929 a man named Johnny Harris, who owned five theaters in Pittsburgh, was informed that a baby girl had been left in one of his houses. He picked her up, turned her over to the proper foundling authorities, then couldn't forget her. The next day, at the little luncheon club he attended with seven other men about town, he suggested that they form an association to support the child and educate her at good schools.

This was the beginning of Variety. The child grew into a lovely girl, is happily married now and has two children. Only two men know her full story, Harris and one other survivor of the original group. Not long ago another baby was left in the Philadelphia theater, and she was immediately adopted by the Philadelphia "Tent" of the Variety Club. Loretta Young, Buddy Rogers and other celebrities flew to Philadelphia for the christening of a girl who will always be known as Loretta Variety Young.

Celanese Declares New Stock Dividend

Directors of Celanese Corporation of America here declared an initial dividend of 82½ cents per share on the new 4½ per cent preferred stock, series A, for the period April 25, 1951 through June 30, 1951. The dividend is payable July 1, 1951 to stockholders of record at the close of business June 5, 1951.

At the same time the board also voted a dividend of 75 cents per share on the common stock, payable June 23, 1951 to holders of record June 5, 1951 and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the 7 per cent second preferred stock payable July 1, 1951 to stockholders of record June 5, 1951.

In 1895, the headgear of United States Marines was a spiked helmet.

Santa Is Loser In Damage Suit

CLEARWATER, Fla., (AP) — The parents of a boy killed in a Christmas Eve accident have been awarded $16,847 damages against Santa Claus.

The defendant was Lt. Col. George L. Shead, whose automobile, hit 12-year-old Max L. Waller, a bicycle rider. Shead, a marine, was on his way — dressed in full Santa Claus outfit—to hand out gifts at a Christmas party to needy children.

Shead told a circuit court jury he started to pass another car and suddenly saw the boy on the bicycle. He said there was no light on the bicycle.

A coroner's jury cleared Shead of criminal blame in the Dec. 24, 1949, accident.

The civil jury, however, returned a verdict last night in favor of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Waller. They had asked $35,000.

America's pig crop of 1950 was the biggest of any peacetime year.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Should you ever give direct advice?

Answer: You cannot entirely avoid it. But the circumstances under which you are justified in doing so are not unlike those in which you may have to use force—for example, to save someone from doing irreparable damage to himself or others. Advising a wife not to "leave home" until she is sure her suspicions of her husband are well-founded might be a good illustration, as would urging a sick person to go to a doctor. But no one is ever permanently helped by "following advce" and it is always better to help someone see for himself what he should do than to have him do it on your "say-so."

Are anyone's actions consistent?

Answer: Not entirely. For example, while you may profess the same ideals in both cases, your behavior at the office may be very different from the side of yourself that you show at home. Inconsistency may be due to conflicting aims in life, to not knowing how to attain your goals, or to ignorance of what your real goals are—for instance, to thinking that your goal is success when it really is a good time. But in any case the more your actions are controlled by your unconscious mind, the more inconsistent they will be, because that part of your mind contains so many conflicts.

May psychology be based on economics?

Answer: I very much doubt it. Dr. Geza Roheim in "Psychoanalysis and Anthropology" discusses another scientist's account of the customs of a South Sea Island tribe, the Alor, in which many emotional characteristics are correctly traced to the fact that mothers habitually leave their babies at home and half-staveo while they go out to work in the fields—which it is claimed that they have to do "for economic reasons." But mothers in other, similar tribes work in the fields and take their babies with them. The tribal psychology is based, not on economics, but on the fact that the Alor women do not love or welcome babies.

U.S. Air Power Called Only Hope

NEW YORK, (INS) Maj. Alexander P. De Seversky, world-famous aeronautical authority, believes that only air power can protect American civilization from destruction by bombing.

De Seversky, writing in the June issue of Cosmopolitan said:

"Our military men have fallen into the fatal error of trying to fight the next war with the methods of the last. Today, we simply do not have a strategic air force of sufficient size even to impair the Russian war effort—let alone destroy it.

"We must not assign a single billion dollars for defense on the land or sea, or for bolstering our allies' strength, unless we are prepared simultaneously to channel two billion into our air force."

WE STILL HAVE CHICKS!

Why? Because we think late started chicks should make good money this year. Consider these facts:

1. Fewer chicks started this year. Eggs ought to be high next fall and winter.
2. Chicks started now and fed for full development the Purina way should be laying by Nov. 1 That is when egg prices should be at their peak.
3. Late chicks grow well if given plenty of room and air.

Polka Dot Meringues Delicious Desserts

Ice cream served in delicate meringue shells is one of the most delightful desserts in the lexicon of sweets. It is smart to polka dot the meringue shells with morsels of semi-sweet chocolate. Fill the polka dot meringues with chocolate and vanilla ice cream to complete the chocolate and white scheme.

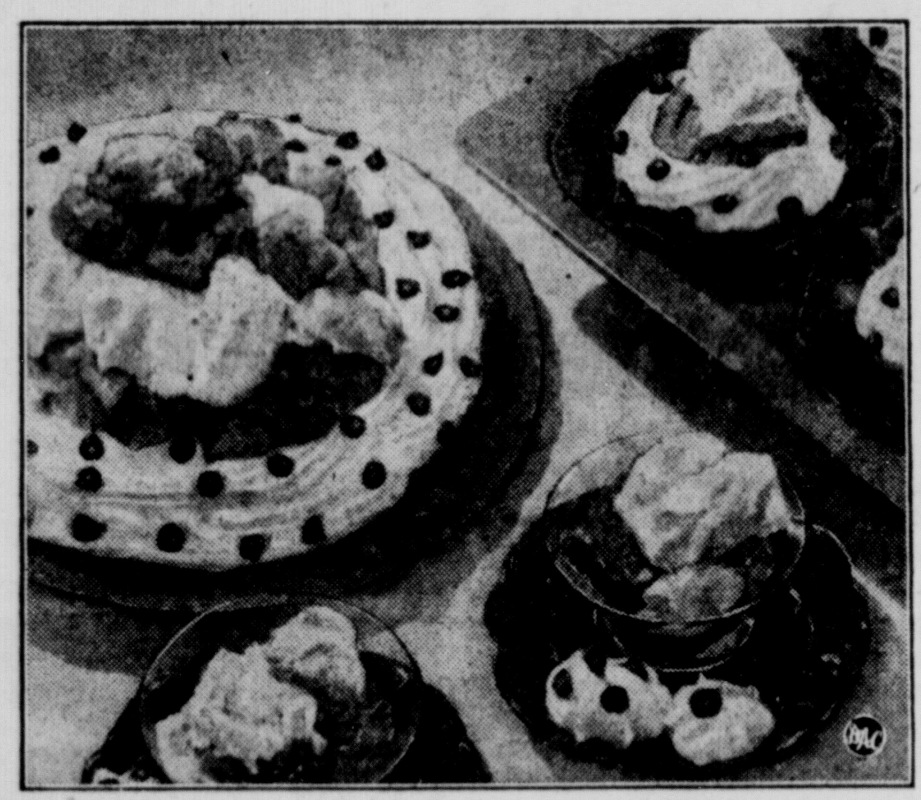
Semi-sweet chocolate is blended into the meringue mixture before baking, and as semi-sweet chocolate morsels remain whole even while baking, the finished meringues are studded with small nuggets of delicious chocolate.

Although these beautiful desserts look as if they were made by a master chef, they are quite simple to achieve. Using the same recipe, you can make a large meringue shell to fill with ice cream, or six individual meringue shells, or three dozen polka dotted meringuettes to accompany ice cream. You will be proud to serve the trio of glamorous desserts made with this recipe.

Chocolate Polka Dot Meringues

3 egg whites; ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar; ⅛ teaspoon salt; ¾ cup sugar; ½ package semi-sweet chocolate.

Three Festive Desserts Made With One Recipe



THE new vogue for meringues is to polka dot them with morsels of semi-sweet chocolate. Pretty Polka Dot Meringues are versatile made with the recipe elsewhere on this page. The one basic recipe makes the three different desserts pictured above.

Beat egg whites until foamy; add cream of tartar and salt; beat until stiff but not dry. Add sugar gradually, beating until very stiff. Fold in ⅓ cup of the semi-sweet chocolate morsels. Cover baking sheet with heavy brown paper. For individual or large meringue shell pile into 6 rounds, 3 inches in diameter, or 1 large round, 9 inches in diameter. Make a depression in the center leaving an inch around the sides. Sprinkle with remaining morsels. For meringuetes, drop by tablespoon onto baking sheet. Sprinkle with remaining morsels. *Bake in very slow oven (275° F.) 40 minutes for meringuetes; 50 minutes for individual shells; 1 hour for large shell. YIELD: 6 individual shells, 1 large shell, 3 dozen meringuettes.

*Meringues may be baked by this method: Preheat oven to (450 degree F.). Place meringues in oven; turn off heat. Leave at least 3 hours.

A Pittsburgh electric corporation has an archives building bulging with 2,700 tons of facts and figures written on more than 960 million sheets of paper.

Corn Stuffed Peppers

- 2 cups chopped cooked meat
- 6 medium green pepers
- 1 cup whole kernel corn
- 1 cup cracker crumbs
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- ½ cup corn liquid or milk
- 2 tablespoons melted bacon drippings, butter, or margarine

Scoop out peppers. Simmer peppers for 5 minutes in salted water. Drain corn and measure liquid. Combine remaining ingredients. Stuff peppers with meat mixture. Place peppers in greased baking dish; add ½ cup water. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 45 minutes, or until meat mixture is lightly browned. 6 servings.

The Cherokee Indian reservation in the Great Smoky mountains contains 63,000 acres, occupied by more than 3,000 members of the tribe.

French Fried Liver

Cut liver into strips ⅜ inch wide. Roll in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Fry in deep hot lard (350 degree F.), until brown. 6 servings.

The Columbia river, forming the boundary between the states of Washington and Oregon, is credited with carrying more water than all the other Pacific coast streams combined.

Polka Dot Meringues Delicious Desserts

Ice cream served in delicate meringue shells is one of the most delightful desserts in the lexicon of sweets. It is smart to polka dot the meringue shells with morsels of semi-sweet chocolate. Fill the polka dot meringues with chocolate and vanilla ice cream to complete the chocolate and white scheme.

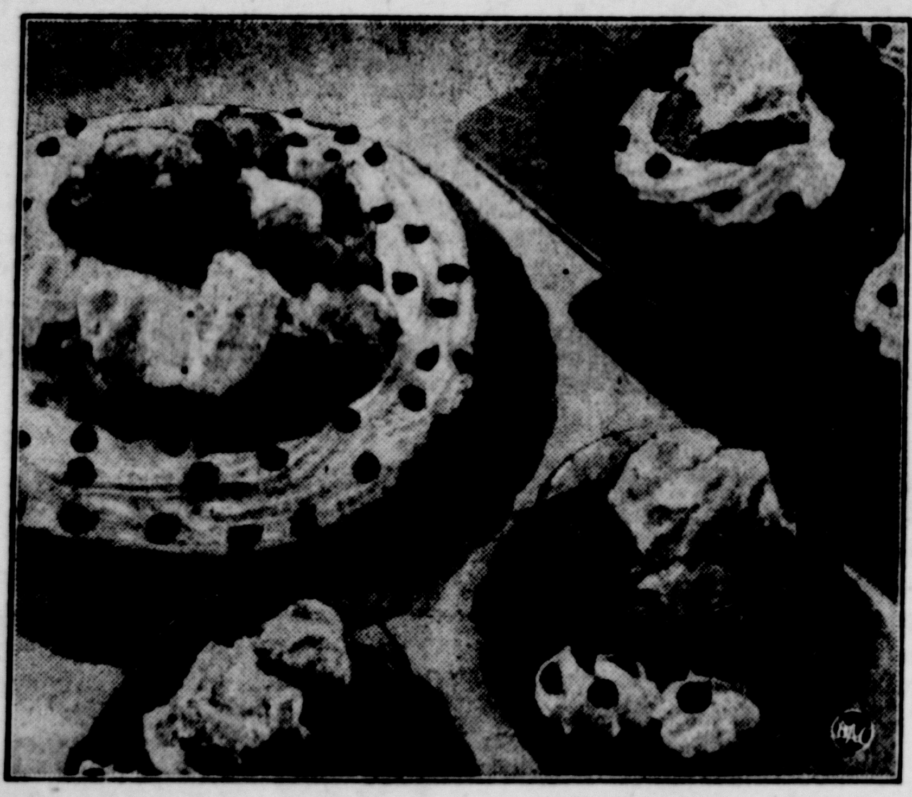
Semi-sweet chocolate is blended into the meringue mixture before baking, and as semi-sweet chocolate morsels remain whole even while baking, the finished meringues are studded with small nuggets of delicious chocolate.

Although these beautiful desserts look as if they were made by a master chef, they are quite simple to achieve. Using the same recipe, you can make a large meringue shell to fill with ice cream, or six individual meringue shells, or three dozen polka dotted meringuettes to accompany ice cream. You will be proud to serve the trio of glamorous desserts made with this recipe.

Chocolate Polka Dot Meringues

3 egg whites; ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar; ⅛ teaspoon salt; ¾ cup sugar; ½ package semi-sweet chocolate.

Three Festive Desserts Made With One Recipe



THE new vogue for meringues is to polka dot them with morsels of semi-sweet chocolate. Pretty Polka Dot Meringues are versatile made with the recipe elsewhere on this page. The one basic recipe makes the three different desserts pictured above.

Beat egg whites until foamy; add cream of tartar and salt; beat until stiff but not dry. Add sugar gradually, beating until very stiff. Fold in ⅓ cup of the semi-sweet chocolate morsels. Cover baking sheet with heavy brown paper. For individual or large meringue shell pile into 6 rounds, 3 inches in diameter, or 1 large round, 9 inches in diameter. Make a depression in the center leaving an inch around the sides. Sprinkle with remaining morsels. For meringuetes, drop by tablespoon onto baking sheet. Sprinkle with remaining morsels. *Bake in very slow oven (275° F.) 40 minutes for meringuetes; 50 minutes for individual shells; 1 hour for large shell. YIELD: 6 individual shells, 1 large shell, 3 dozen meringuettes.

*Meringues may be baked by this method: Preheat oven to (450 degree F.). Place meringues in oven; turn off heat. Leave at least 3 hours.

A Pittsburgh electric corporation has an archives building bulging with 2,700 tons of facts and figures written on more than 960 million sheets of paper.

Corn Stuffed Peppers

- 2 cups chopped cooked meat
- 6 medium green pepers
- 1 cup whole kernel corn
- 1 cup cracker crumbs
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- ½ cup corn liquid or milk
- 2 tablespoons melted bacon drippings, butter, or margarine

Scoop out peppers. Simmer peppers for 5 minutes in salted water. Drain corn and measure liquid. Combine remaining ingredients. Stuff peppers with meat mixture. Place peppers in greased baking dish; add ½ cup water. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 45 minutes, or until meat mixture is lightly browned. 6 servings.

The Cherokee Indian reservation in the Great Smoky mountains contains 63,000 acres, occupied by more than 3,000 members of the tribe.

French Fried Liver

Cut liver into strips ⅜ inch wide. Roll in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Fry in deep hot lard (350 degree F.), until brown. 6 servings.

New flavor twist for salads!

Mrs. M. V. Filbert, President

"Even richer in eggs and real lemon juice than I ever made it before—makes the simplest salad greens taste grand!" says Mrs. Filbert. "It's my own recipe—made homestyle in small batches. 7-steps mean it's genuine mayonnaise!"

Mrs. Filbert starts by blending spices; creams them with fresh-frozen eggs; pure oil is beaten in; real lemon juice and more eggs added; pure vinegar seals in the oil; now, it's extra whipped—and last, more real lemon juice!

ClownCookies Circus Time In Kitchen

For dessert, for snack time or for party refreshment — any time is cooky time as far as many youngsters are concerned. To be a bit different along the cooky line, Reba Staggs, home economist, suggests a children's desert of "Clown" cookies.

'CLOWN' COOKIES

Here's cooky fun for youngsters. Scalloped sugar cookies are each topped with a ice cream face with chocolate eyes, a maraschino cherry mouth and an inverted ice cream cone cap.

This dessert gets its name in that the base is actually made of a plain sugar cooky (receipe below) cut with a scalloped cooky cutter. Then the baked and cooled cooky is centered with a scoop of vanilla ice cream.

For the clown faces, two chocolate drops make up the eyes and a sliver of maraschino cherry forms the mouth. And as an actor makes up his face to denote mood, so can you make up the clowns. To indicate the happy clown, curve the cherry mouth up; for the sadder clowns, curve the mouth down. The clown's hat will be none other than an inverted ice cream cone.

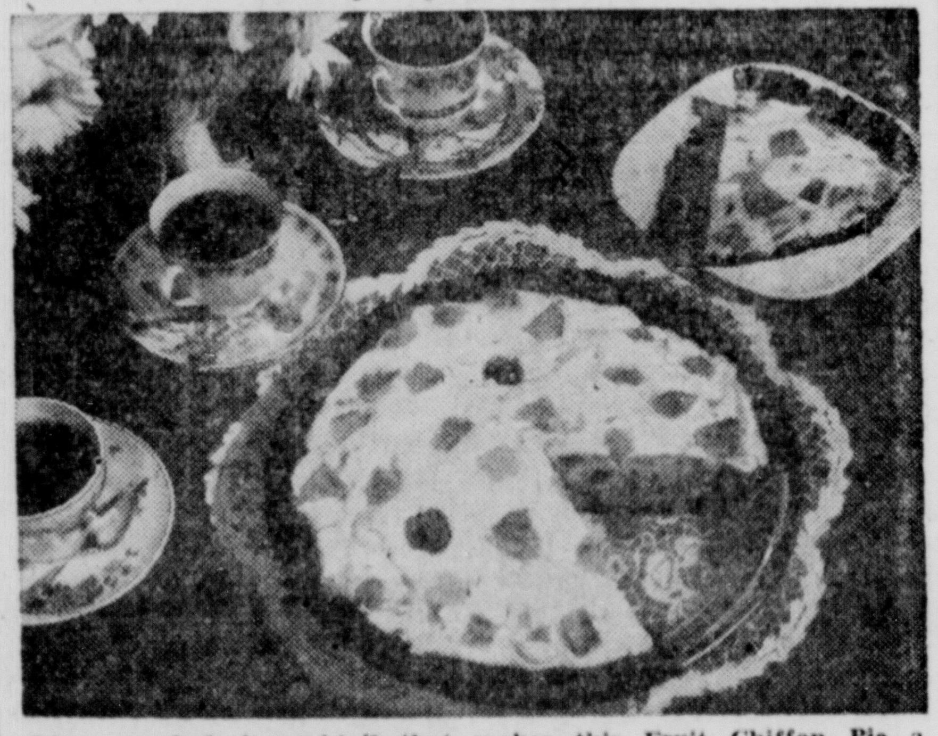
To be more gay, combine colored sugars and sprinkle over the cookies just before baking. The ice cream may come in vanilla or strawberry or other flavors as you desire. In any case, the result is a tray of assorted clowns ready for the surprise dinner dessert or party refreshment. Here is the recipe for the sugar cookies. By using lard, the cookies will stay fresh for days in your cooky jar.

Old-Fashioned Sugar Cookies

½ cup lard
1 cup sugar
1 egg
3 cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Thoroughly cream shortening and sugar; add egg and beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk and vanilla extract; mix thoroughly. Roll ⅛ inch thick on lightly floured surface. Cut with floured cooky cutter; sprinkle with sugar, if desired. Bake on greased cooky sheet in moderate oven (375° F.) about 15 minutes. Yield: 3 dozen cookies.

Flavor, Color Symphony In Fruit Pie



It's canned fruit cocktail that makes this Fruit Chiffon Pie a treat. The easy-to-make chocolate crumb crust compliments the delicate fruit filling to perfection. Serve it for party, company meal, or a family surprise.

The coolness and fluffiness of chiffon pies make them especially inviting during warm weather. Here's one that is delicately flavored and gaily colored. The cool, "light as a feather" fruit cocktail filling, nestled in an easy-to-make chocolate crumb crust, is excellent dessert choice for your warm weather meals.

And because Fruit Chiffon Pie can be made early and stored in the refrigerator, it is the dessert answer for parties and company meals when you want to come out of the kitchen to mingle with guests.

FRUIT CHIFFON PIE

1½ cups chocolate cooky crumbs
⅓ cup melted butter, or margarine
2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 16-oz. can fruit cocktail
2 tablespoons sugar
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup whipping cream

Mix crumbs and butter thoroughly and press firmly on bottom and sides of buttered pie pan. Place in refrigerator to chill. Soak gelatin in water for 5 minutes. Drain syrup from fruit and heat to boiling. Add gelatin and sugar, stir until dissolved. Add lemon rind and juice. Chill until slightly thickened; whip with rotary beater until light and fluffy. Fold in fruit and whipped cream. Pour into pie shell and chill. Makes one 9-inch pie.

Banquet Frankfurters

12 frankfurters; ¼ cup prepared mustard; 2 cups seasoned mashed potatoes; ¼ finely chopped onion; 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento; ¼ cup chopped parsley.

Slit frankfurters lengthwise and spread with mustard. Combine remaining ingredients and spread on cut-surface of 6 frankfurters. Place remaining frankfurters on top, cut side down. Bake in moderate oven (350 degree F.) for 20 minutes. 6 servings.

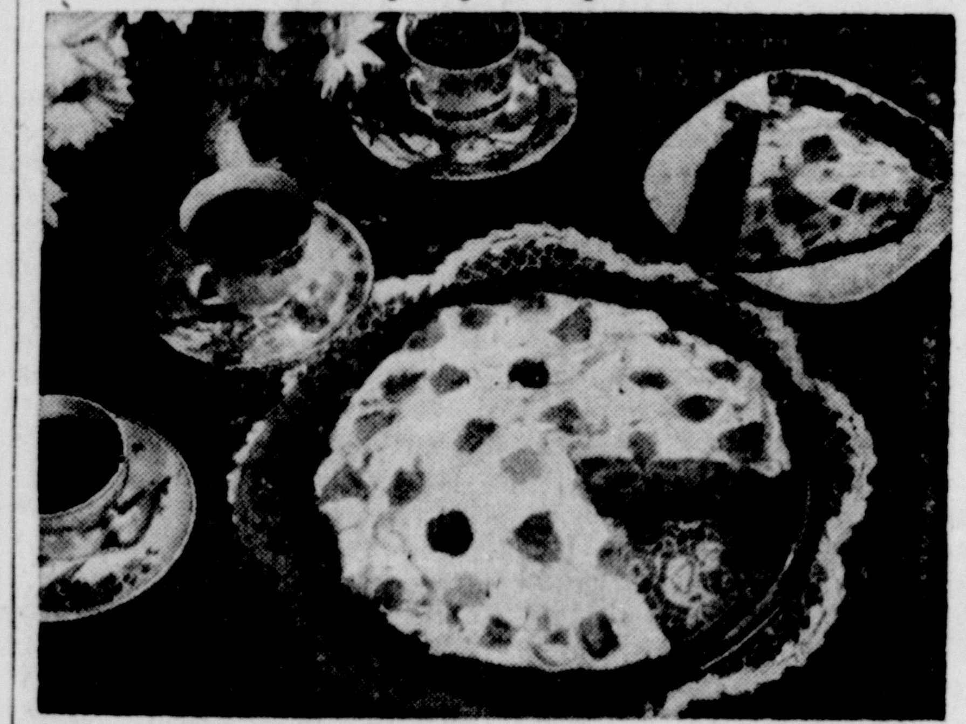
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Thoroughly cream shortening and sugar; add egg and beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk and vanilla extract; mix thoroughly. Roll ⅛ inch thick on lightly floured surface. Cut with floured cooky cutter; sprinkle with sugar, if desired. Bake on greased cooky sheet in moderate oven (375° F.) about 15 minutes. Yield: 3 dozen cookies.

Flavor, Color Symphony In Fruit Pie



It's canned fruit cocktail that makes this Fruit Chiffon Pie a treat. The easy-to-make chocolate crumb crust compliments the delicate fruit filling to perfection. Serve it for party, company meal, or a family surprise.

The coolness and fluffiness of chiffon pies make them especially inviting during warm weather. Here's one that is delicately flavored and gaily colored. The cool, "light as a feather" fruit cocktail filling, nestled in an easy-to-make chocolate crumb crust, is excellent dessert choice for your warm weather meals.

And because Fruit Chiffon Pie can be made early and stored in the refrigerator, it is the dessert answer for parties and company meals when you want to come out of the kitchen to mingle with guests.

FRUIT CHIFFON PIE

1½ cups chocolate cooky crumbs
⅓ cup melted butter, or margarine
2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 16-oz. can fruit cocktail
2 tablespoons sugar
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup whipping cream

Mix crumbs and butter thoroughly and press firmly on bottom and sides of buttered pie pan. Place in refrigerator to chill. Soak gelatin in water for 5 minutes. Drain syrup from fruit and heat to boiling. Add gelatin and sugar, stir until dissolved. Add lemon rind and juice. Chill until slightly thickened; whip with rotary beater until light and fluffy. Fold in fruit and whipped cream. Pour into pie shell and chill. Makes one 9-inch pie.

Banquet Frankfurters

12 frankfurters; ¼ cup prepared mustard; 2 cups seasoned mashed potatoes; ¼ finely chopped onion; 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento; ¼ cup chopped parsley.

Slit frankfurters lengthwise and spread with mustard. Combine remaining ingredients and spread on cut-surface of ⅙ frankfurters. Place remaining frankfurters on top, cut side down. Bake in moderate oven (350 degree F.) for 20 minutes. 6 servings.

Kraut Dish Is Easy To Prepare

This Mushroom-Krautfurter Casserole recipe almost makes any woman who prepares it a lady of leisure because there's no last minute cooking. It's definitely in the second-helping class, it's so good. You'll enjoy the flavor that both the cream of mushroom soup and the snappy seasoning impart to the kraut. The mushroom soup simplifies matters and cuts down the time you'd ordinarily have to spend making a mushroom sauce. Parsleyed green lima beans go nicely with this dish.

Mushroom-Krautfurter Casserole

(Makes 4-6 servings)

2 tablespoons butter or margarine; 2 tablespoons chopped onions; 1 10½-ounce can cream of mushroom soup; 1 No. 2½ can sauerkraut; ½ teaspoon paprika; few drops Tabasco; 6 frankfurters.

In a saucepan, melt butter or margarine over low heat. Add onions and saute until golden brown. Add sauerkraut, soup and seasoning, mixing thoroughly. Pour sauerkraut mixture into a shallow 1½-quart casserole. Cut each frankfurter into thirds. Arrange in pairs around top of casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 30 minutes. Serve immediately.

Veal Birds

1½ pound veal steak, cut ⅜ to ½ inch thick; 4 slices white bread; 2 tablespoons drippings; 1 tablespoon grated onion; ¼teaspoon sage; ¼ teaspoon nutmeg; 1 teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper; 3 tablespoons flour; 2 tablespoons lard or drippings; ½ cup water.

Cut veal in pieces about 5x3 inches. Remove bone. Make stuffings as follows: Dry and toast bread in a slow oven. Crush fine, add melted drippings, onion, sage and nutmeg. Add enough water so that mixture will hold together when squeezed between the fingers. To make birds, spread mixture on center of each piece of veal. Roll individually and tie with string. Mix salt, pepper and flour and roll veal birds in the mixture. Brown in lard or drippings. Add water, cover tightly and simmer until meat is tender, about 45 minutes. Six servings.

Ham-Potato Bake

WELCOME to the table on a cold night is Ham Potato Bake made with cream of celery soup. Team it with spiced peach halves and a favorite green vegetable.

Make May 30 A Kitchen Holiday Too

A holiday from the daily routine of cooking can be easily managed by the homemaker on Decoration Day, if most of the food for meals is readied in advance.

A dinner of cold baked ham, fresh asparagus, hot baked potato-cheese casserole and jellied tomato aspic salad served with sliced rye bread, dill pickles, mustard and—to give the meal a smart, gay holiday atmosphere—tall, sophisticated pilsener glasses of cold beer, is suggested.

On the day before the holiday, boil the potatoes and make the cheese sauce for the baked casserole. Mix the aspic; bake the ham; clean the asparagus and place all food in the refrigerator to keep chilled until dinnertime next day.

Plan supper to be an informal "snack meal" and check to be sure there's an ample supply of bread, butter, beer, crackers, potato chips and cheese on hand for family and unexpected guests. Planning the day's meals in advance means that the homemaker too can share in the full enjoyment and leisure of the holiday. Here is a simply prepared and excellent recipe for the tomato aspic mentioned above.

Tomato Aspic Salad

2 cups tomato juice
1 small onion, sliced
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 cup chopped, mixed celery and green pepper

Heat tomato juice with onion, salt and Worcestershire; let simmer 10 minutes. Strain out onion. Soften gelatine in cold water; dissolve in hot tomato juice. Add vinegar. Chill until partially set; stir in chopped vegetables. Chill until firm. Serve on lettuce with salad dressing. Serves 4.

Dried Beef Sandwich Filling

1 2½-ounce jar dried beef
1 3-ounce package cream cheese
1 teaspoon minced onion
Pepper, if desired
Bread or crackers

Cut dried beef into thin strips with scissors. Combine with remaining ingredients. Spread on bread. 4 sandwiches.

Ham-Potato Bake Is Real Rib Sticker

The "lady of the house" as well as her family will like the combination—it's so easy, so good. The celery soup, which serves as a ready-made sauce for scalloping, has a special flavor all its own.

Teamed with the potatoes, a little bit of ham goes a long way in this dish. If you don't have ham, use canned luncheon meat for equally good results.

Ham-Potato Bake

3 cups thinly sliced, cooked potatoes (4-6 medium potatoes)
1 to 2 cups cubed cooked ham or canned luncheon meat
1 small onion, finely chopped
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 can (1¼ cups) condensed cream of celery soup
½ cup milk

Mix together the cooked potatoes, ham (save some for the top), chopped onion, and parsley in a 1½-quart casserole. Blend together the celery soup and milk; gently stir this liquid through the potato mixture. Put some of the cubed ham oevr the top. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) for 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Canadian-Style Bacon—Fruit En Brochette

8 slices Canadian-style bacon, cut ½ inch thick
4 spiced crabapples
8 cooked prunes, pitted
1 No. 2 can pineapple chunks
2 teaspoons butter or margarine
4 wooden or metal skewers

Thread fruit on skewers as follows: pineapple, prune, pineapple, crabapple, pineapple, prune, and pineapple. Place bacon and fruit on broiler rack. Brush fruit with fat. Place broiler pan in broiler so the top surface of the meat is 2 to 3 inches from the heat. When the bacon is lightly browned (5 to 6 minutes) turn meat and fruit. Continue broiling until meat is lightly browned and fruit heated through. Allow 8 to 10 minutes total broiling time. 4 servings.

A real rib-sticking dish to build a meal around is this one of scalloped potatoes made with condensed cream of celery soup.

The "lady of the house" as well as her family will like the combination—it's so easy, so good. The celery soup, which serves as a ready-made sauce for scalloping, has a special flavor all its own.

Teamed with the potatoes, a little bit of ham goes a long way in this dish. If you don't have ham, use canned luncheon meat for equally good results.

Ham-Potato Bake

8 cups thinly sliced, cooked potatoes (4-6 medium potatoes)
1 to 2 cups cubed cooked ham or canned luncheon meat
1 small onion, finely chopped
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 can (1¼ cups) condensed cream of celery soup
½ cup milk

Mix together the cooked potatoes, ham (save some for the top), chopped onion, and parsley in a 1½-quart casserole. Blend together the celery soup and milk; gently stir this liquid through the potato mixture. Put some of the cubed ham oevr the top. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) for 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Canadian-Style Bacon—Fruit En Brochette

8 slices Canadian-style bacon, cut ½ inch thick
4 spiced crabapples
8 cooked prunes, pitted
1 No. 2 can pineapple chunks
2 teaspoons butter or margarine
4 wooden or metal skewers

Thread fruit on skewers as follows: pineapple, prune, pineapple, crabapple, pineapple, prune, and pineapple. Place bacon and fruit on broiler rack. Brush fruit with fat. Place broiler pan in broiler so the top surface of the meat is 2 to 3 inches from the heat. When the bacon is lightly browned (5 to 6 minutes) turn meat and fruit. Continue broiling until meat is lightly browned and fruit heated through. Allow 8 to 10 minutes total broiling time. 4 servings.

Tempting Dessert

Like all Americans, the rhubarb plant is an immigrant. It came to the Americas very early in our history by way of Italy and Asia. The botanist classes rhubarb as a vegetable, but since it has many excellent qualities as a dessert ingredient most of us think of it as a fruit.

One can hardly think of crisp, pink rhubarb without also thinking of its culinary partner—the strawberry. These two delightful occupants of early spring gardens can be combined in so many taste-tempting ways.

For a new rhubarb-time dessert try the recipe for Rhubarb-Strawberry Cobblerettes. It is quick and easy to prepare and its simple elegance will find favor with your family.

Rhubarb-Strawberry Cobblerettes

2 cups water! 2 cups sugar; 1 teaspoon vanilla; 2 cups diced rhubarb. 2 cups sliced strawberries.

Topping

1 cup sifted enriched flour; 2 tablespoons sugar; ½ teaspoon salt; 1½ teaspoons baking powder ¼ cup margarine; ½ cup milk; 8 teaspoons margarine; 8 teaspoons sugar.

Prepare simple sirup by cooking the water and sugar together for 5 minutes. Add vanilla. Mix together the diced rhubarb and sliced strawberries. Divide fruit equally between 8 well-margarined individual baking dishes. Pour sirup over fruit.

To make Topping: Sift together flour, sugar, salt and baking powder. Cut in fortified margarine as for biscuits. Add milk, stirring only until flour disappears. Drop by spoonfuls over fruit, making a single mound in each baking dish. Make a dent in each mound. Drop in a teaspoon of fortified margarine and a teaspoon sugar. Bake in a 450 degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Serve warm with cream. Yield: 8 cobblerettes.

Memorial Day Entertaining

Try a porch picnic on Decoration Day! It's festive and fun. Set up a tray of assorted crackers and breads . . . and let your guests "make their own" with these well-flavored spreads. Cold cuts too—a green salad and fruit in season and you have a simple, attractive buffet meal.

Turn the calendar pages and look—it's almost Decoration Day. What do we think of when this special holiday looms in the offing? Food comes to mind—good food, and for choice, the kind you can eat outdoors. We like picnics, and when we're feeling lazy, we stay close to home and picnic on the porch.

There's nothing easier than a buffett service to take care of the family and all the friends who drop in. Set up a tray of assorted crackers and breads—and serve them with a choice of well flavored spreads. Team with cold cuts, a green salad and fruit in season—and you have a simple and attractive buffet meal.

It's important to focus on good spreads. You'll fix them yourself and want them good. Here are some timely suggestions. These spreads are delicious, economical and easy to make up.

OLIVE MUSTARD SPREAD

¼ cup margarine
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon minced onion
1 tablespoon olives, chopped

Cream margarine thoroughly. Blend in remaining ingredients. Chill and serve on crackers. Approx. ¼ cup spread.

MARGARINE LIVER SPREAD

¼ lb. (½ cup) margarine
4 tablespoons liver paste
2 tablespoons relish

Cream margarine. Blend in remaining ingredients. Approx. 1 cup spread.

CHEESE NUT SPREAD

¼ cup margarine
2 tablespoons grated Cheddar cheese
¼ cup chopped walnuts
3 tablespoons chopped watercress

Cream margarine thoroughly. Blend in remaining ingredients. Chill and serve on crackers. Approx. ⅓ cup.

Special Birthday Drink

Every day is someone's birthday. And, deep down, who doesn't look for a little recognition on a birthday? From grandparents right down to the tiniest tot a birthday celebration, however small it may be, is an important matter.

Whether it is a family dinner or an informal gathering of friends to mark the day, a special cake is always the center of attraction. A special beverage, too, adds to the festive spirit, and one made with pale dry ginger ale is a pleasing and refreshing accompaniment to the cake. Tall glasses of thoroughly chilled ginger ale are always welcome and if you want to serve a real party drink, you might try this recipe which serves six.

Happy Birthday

2 eggs; ½ cup sugar; 2 limes, juice; 1 cup pineapple juice; 1 cup peach nectar; Pale dry ginger ale.

Beat eggs and sugar until thick and lemon colored. Add fruit juices beating until blended. Divide among 6 tall glasses. Fill glasses with ice cold pale dry ginger ale. Stir gently to mix.

White pepper is simply well-ripened black pepper.

Rifle And Bayonet Are Still Most Important Weapons, Puller Says

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—The rifle and the bayonet are still the most important weapons any army has, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. (Chesty) Puller, assistant commander of the First Marine Division, declared on his return from Korea.

Puller gave his opinion of the effectiveness of fighting weapons at a press conference before leaving for Washington, D. C. After leave, Puller is to assume command of the Third Marine Brigade, now training at Camp Pendleton.

His ideas of training indicate a tough time ahead for the brigade, and a tough outfit when they have satisfied their general.

Target practice and physical training are Puller's fetishes.

"A Marine must be qualified to hit the bullseye with whatever weapon he is armed," the General declared. "He must be able to make a forced march of 20 miles, the last five at double time, and arrive on a jump-off line in such physical condition that he can go into battle immediately."

He offered the idea, that insofar as effectiveness is concerned, the "idea of push-button war might as well have been proposed in the days of Julius Caesar."

"The bulldozer was the secret weapon of World War II," he said, "but the tent stove has been the secret weapon of the Korean war, and it wasn't developed by a scientist, but a blacksmith."

Asked what he thought of the Chinese Communist forces, Puller said:

"The three-year retreat of the Communist army from the east coast south of Shanghai to the northwest, during which more than 100 battles were fought, was one of the "great military operations" in history.

"It is not for us American officers to underestimate any Asiatic army and its generals," he declared.

But in a pitched battle, the General observer, the Chinese now are 'good for about three days," because the infantryman carries all the artillery shells to the front on his back and three days supply is about the limit which can be brought up at one time. Then the Americans can knock them out before more men and munitions can arrive.

Puller, who proudly noted that the Marines never pulled back without orders, complimented the British, French and Turkish troops of the Allies as being the "best I saw."

"The Turks," he said, were just as good as the Marines."

Puller went in with the First Marines at the Inchon landing last Sept. 15 and was with them at Seoul, Wonsan landing and Chosin reservoir. He has been awarded four Navy Crosses during his career of 33 years with the corps. He left Korea under the Marine Corps rotation plan May 20 and will report to Camp Pendleton in about 30 days.

Farouk Likes "Trance Dance"

LONDON — (INS) — Egyptian "Shimmy Queen" Dawlath Soliman said last night between a bump and a grind that it wasn't easy to become a favorite dancer of King Farouk. It took "plenty of muscle, skill and hard work."

The tiny, dark-eyed dancer donned a scanty costume for the benefit of bug-eyed newsmen, flexed her bare midriff and showed how torso-tossing develops muscles.

As a demonstration she performed the King's favorite kootch, "The Night."

Dawlath explained as she swayed that she goes into a trance during the dance and "just does what's natural."

She also said of the 31-year-old monarch:

"Sometimes he is like a big boy. He likes lots of fun."

Dawlath, who opens a nightclub engagement in London next week and soon hopes to visit Hollywood, explained democratically that Farouk is no different from an ordinary admirer except he occasionally gets "a little awkward."

More liquor is consumed per capita in Washington, D. C., than in any other city in the country.

Rifle And Bayonet Are Still Most Important Weapons, Puller Says

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—The rifle and the bayonet are still the most important weapons any army has, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. (Chesty) Puller, assistant commander of the First Marine Division, declared on his return from Korea.

Puller gave his opinion of the effectiveness of fighting weapons at a press conference before leaving for Washington, D. C. After leave, Puller is to assume command of the Third Marine Brigade, now training at Camp Pendleton.

His ideas of training indicate a tough time ahead for the brigade, and a tough outfit when they have satisfied their general.

Target practice and physical training are Puller's fetishes.

"A Marine must be qualified to hit the bullseye with whatever weapon he is armed," the General declared. "He must be able to make a forced march of 20 miles, the last five at double time, and arrive on a jump-off line in such physical condition that he can go into battle immediately."

He offered the idea, that insofar as effectiveness is concerned, the "idea of push-button war might as well have been proposed in the days of Julius Caesar."

"The bulldozer was the secret weapon of World War II," he said, "but the tent stove has been the secret weapon of the Korean war, and it wasn't developed by a scientist, but a blacksmith."

Asked what he thought of the Chinese Communist forces, Puller said:

Ride the Tiny, Mile-Long WF & P Road!

This copy of a big coal-burner is so life-like that only by comparing its size with the boy in the picture do you realize it's a miniature.

By GROVER BRINKMAN
Central Press Correspondent

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—How big can a hobby grow? This one, like Jack's mythical beanstalk, grew and grew, until today it is an entire railroad, replete with four stations, repair and tool shops, a roundhouse, personnel and passengers by the score. However, it's all in miniature.

It's the most unique railroad system in America—the narrow-gauge Wabash, Frisco and Pacific, situated at the intersection of Brown and Natural Bridge roads, in St. Louis county, Missouri. It was built, and is operated solely for pleasure by a group of adult railroad fans. Down to the last detail, it is run exactly like a big transcontinental road.

Each Sunday on this hilly Missouri farm, at exactly 11 a. m., rain or shine, Train No. 400 toots out on its narrow-gauge track to make its one-mile run. Not even blizzards stop it. Sometimes as many as a hundred people are in line, waiting to board it—all for free.

The road has never been in receivership. There are no labor troubles or strikes. Its officials believe that it is the only miniature road in the world that is organized, incorporated, managed and operated just like our big systems.

* * *

VALUED at better than $50,000, the WF&P is owned by 30 men representing many trades and professions, whose consuming hobby is railroading. They love the smell of smoke, the insistent clicking of a telegraph key, the clank of steel riding steel. Once a week they forget about their troubles and go railroading—and how!

The road was started in 1939 when a nearby machinist said he had a one-foot gauge type 4-4-0 coal-burning locomotive, and didn't know what to do with it. The enthusiasts obtained the locomotive and also acquired a few hundred feet of track.

Today there are three locomotives, and more than a mile of track, a roundhouse, yards, spurs, section houses, trestles, and both freight and passenger cars, even to a caboose.

Set up on the 80-acre farm of Wilfred Schrade, retired customs-house broker, whose son, Carlisle, was one of the early R. R. enthusiasts, the road is an exact replica of a major system.

The steam locomotives are about eight and one-half feet long and 30 inches high, and the larger of the three weighs about 5,000 pounds. The line's turntable is thought to be the world's only one in narrow gauge, and the stations are probably the smallest anywhere.

The road was named after three of the big roads coming into Union station in St. Louis. The men who own it work and play at all phases of railroading, from grading right-of-way and laying new ties, to wiping down the brass on the steam locomotives.

* * *

THE LINE'S roadbed is all ballasted with cinders and crushed limestone. Rails are 12 and 16-pound, and tires are four-by-four inches. The right-of-way has 21 switches, regulation signaling devices, telegraph and telephone communications between stations, a machine shop, tool house — and even a 26-foot trestle spanning a deep gully.

To board one of the miniature trains, you "buy" a ticket in one of the four stations, surrender it to a uniformed conductor, and enjoy the scenery at 15 miles an hour.

That is, if you're lucky enough to get aboard the passenger. If you ride one of the freights, the speed is 10 miles an hour. More adults ride the trains than children.

There are train orders and split-second dispatching. It is a non-profit organization, incorporated under the laws of Missouri. Believe it or not, the road has its own surgeon, attorney, boiler inspectors and safety engineers.

The safety record of the Lilliputian road is tops, for the cowcatchers of the miniature locomotives have yet to scoop up a cow, or some wayward youngster on the tracks.

Looking at one of these locomotives is like viewing a mountain-type giant through the wrong end of a pair of binoculars. The little locomotives can pull as many as 100 passengers at a time, and they pour forth clouds of smoke just like the big mountain-climbing moguls. One of the locomotives is an exact model of the Canadian Pacific's big 2300 series, even to the tiniest part.

East Germans See U. S. Through Red Glasses In Eisler's New Magazine

BERLIN — (AP) — Gerhart Eisler, East Germany's acid little propaganda chief, is publishing a magazine about the United States—as seen through Red glasses.

Eisler jumped bail and fled from America in 1949 and retains a deep hatred for it. The propaganda boss has the final say about the magazine's contents, though his name does not appear on the publication.

The articles are tailored to fit the Kremlin's portrait of the United States as a country of lynchings, lawlessness and greed ruled by war-bent "billionaires."

The magazine is called "U. S. A. In Wort Und Bild" (U. S. A. In Words And Pictures). As a synical twist, the publication is sometimes quoted deadpan in the Communist press as though it had American origin.

You can buy it for 30 pfennings (about 10 cents) but the Communists are glad to let you have it gratis. It frequently is distributed at Eisler news conferences.

A typical recent issue had an American cover girl peering out wistfully from behind prison bars. Inside, the magazine carried a batch of photographs showing women wrestlers in West Germany under the caption:

"This is how American body culture corrupts sports in Marshall Plan countries."

There was an article by American Negro Singer Paul Robeson on the subject: "Who Is A Real American?" The approximate answer: Someone the Kremlin likes.

Another piece quoted U. S. newspaper articles on conditions in some state mental hospitals and gloated over disclosures of inadequate care and facilities.

A Korean Communist named Tkhai Dian Choun was among the contributors. He came up with a little play on the questioning of a Korean girl, In Sen, captured by the Americans. In Sen is being interrogated by a "Maj. Pelham."

The beginning sets the tone for the entire opus:

In Sen (excitedly): "Don't torture me any longer. You've heard you'll get nothing from me. I know what is behind your words—lies, lies, lies. Your threats can't scare me."

(She makes a step toward the window. Maj. Pelham, seated at a desk, grabs the pistol lying before him and shoots her).

In Sen is only wounded, however, "Maj. Pelham" threatens her with torture. After he kills her in a fresh outburst of rage, "people's partisans' 'arrived, imprison the major and vow to chase the Americans out of Korea.

Add a dash of nutmeg to your usual lemon sauce for cottage pudding for a good flavor change.

Oregon's millions of acres of forest produce seven billion feet of timber annually.

Ride the Tiny, Mile-Long WF & P Road!

This copy of a big coal-burner is so life-like that only by comparing its size with the boy in the picture do you realize it's a miniature.

By GROVER BRINKMAN
Central Press Correspondent

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—How big can a hobby grow? This one, like Jack's mythical beanstalk, grew and grew, until today it is an entire railroad, replete with four stations, repair and tool shops, a roundhouse, personnel and passengers by the score. However, it's all in miniature.

It's the most unique railroad system in America—the narrow-gauge Wabash, Frisco and Pacific, situated at the intersection of Brown and Natural Bridge roads, in St. Louis county, Missouri. It was built, and is operated solely for pleasure by a group of adult railroad fans. Down to the last detail, it is run exactly like a big transcontinental road.

Each Sunday on this hilly Missouri farm, at exactly 11 a. m., rain or shine, Train No. 400 toots out on its narrow-gauge track to make its one-mile run. Not even blizzards stop it. Sometimes as many as a hundred people are in line, waiting to board it—all for free.

The road has never been in receivership. There are no labor troubles or strikes. Its officials believe that it is the only miniature road in the world that is organized, incorporated, managed and operated just like our big systems.

• • •

VALUED at better than $50,000, the WF&P is owned by 30 men representing many trades and professions, whose consuming hobby is railroading. They love the smell of smoke, the insistent clicking of a telegraph key, the clank of steel riding steel. Once a week they forget about their troubles and go railroading—and how!

The road was started in 1939 when a nearby machinist said he had a one-foot gauge type 4-4-0 coal-burning locomotive, and didn't know what to do with it. The enthusiasts obtained the locomotive and also acquired a few hundred feet of track.

Today there are three locomotives, and more than a mile of track, a roundhouse, yards, spurs, section houses, trestles, and both freight and passenger cars, even to a caboose.

Set up on the 80-acre farm of [illegible], retired customs-house [illegible], whose son, Carlisle, was one of the early R. R. enthusiasts, the road is an exact replica of a major system.

The steam locomotives are about eight and one-half feet long and 30 inches high, and the larger of the three weighs about 5,000 pounds. The line's turntable is thought to be the world's only one in narrow gauge, and the stations are probably the smallest anywhere.

The road was named after three of the big roads coming into Union station in St. Louis. The men who own it work and play at all phases of railroading, from grading right-of-way and laying new ties, to wiping down the brass on the steam locomotives.

• • •

THE LINE'S roadbed is all ballasted with cinders and crushed limestone. Rails are 12 and 16-pound, and tires are four-by-four inches. The right-of-way has 21 switches, regulation signaling devices, telegraph and telephone communications between stations, a machine shop, tool house—and even a 26-foot trestle spanning a deep gully.

To board one of the miniature trains, you "buy" a ticket in one of the four stations, surrender it to a uniformed conductor, and enjoy the scenery at 15 miles an hour.

That is, if you're lucky enough to get aboard the passenger. If you ride one of the freights, the speed is 10 miles an hour. More adults ride the trains than children.

There are train orders and split-second dispatching. It is a non-profit organization, incorporated under the laws of Missouri. Believe it or not, the road has its own surgeon, attorney, boiler inspectors and safety engineers.

The safety record of the Lilliputian road is tops, for the cowcatchers of the miniature locomotives have yet to scoop up a cow, or some wayward youngster on the tracks.

Looking at one of these locomotives is like viewing a mountain-type giant through the wrong end of a pair of binoculars. The little locomotives can pull as many as 100 passengers at a time, and they pour forth clouds of smoke just like the big mountain-climbing moguls. One of the locomotives is an exact model of the Canadian Pacific's big 2300 series, even to the tiniest part.

East Germans See U.S. Through Red Glasses In Eisler's New Magazine

BERLIN — (AP) — Gerhart Eisler, East Germany's acid little propaganda chief, is publishing a magazine about the United States—as seen through Red glasses.

Eisler jumped bail and fled from America in 1949 and retains a deep hatred for it. The propaganda boss has the final say about the magazine's contents, though his name does not appear on the publication.

The articles are tailored to fit the Kremlin's portrait of the United States as a country of lynchings, lawlessness and greed ruled by war-bent "billionaires."

The magazine is called "U. S. A. In Wort Und Bild" (U. S. A. In Words And Pictures). As a synical twist, the publication is sometimes quoted deadpan in the Communist press as though it had American origin.

You can buy it for 30 pfennings (about 10 cents) but the Communists are glad to let you have it gratis. It frequently is distributed at Eisler news conferences.

A typical recent issue had an American cover girl peering out wistfully from behind prison bars. Inside, the magazine carried a batch of photographs showing women wrestlers in West Germany under the caption:

There was an article by American Negro Singer Paul Robeson on the subject: "Who Is A Real American?" The approximate answer: Someone the Kremlin likes.

Another piece quoted U. S. newspaper articles on conditions in some state mental hospitals and gloated over disclosures of inadequate care and facilities.

A Korean Communist named Tkhai Dian Choun was among the contributors. He came up with a little play on the questioning of a Korean girl, In Sen, captured by the Americans. In Sen is being interrogated by a "Maj. Pelham."

The beginning sets the tone for the entire opus:

In Sen (excitedly): "Don't torture me any longer. You've heard you'll get nothing from me. I know what is behind your words—lies, lies, lies. Your threats can't scare me."

In Sen is only wounded, however, "Maj. Pelham" threatens her with torture. After he kills her in a fresh outburst of rage, "people's partisans' 'arrived, imprison the major and vow to chase the Americans out of Korea.

Disgusted Reds In France Form "Titoist" Party

By CARL HARTMAN

VALENCIENNES, France — (AP) — A "Titoist" party is trying to get started in this grimy coal-mining section of Northern France which produced Communist Boss Maurice Thorez.

It is seeking backing from the 5[illegible]-odd Frenchmen who vote Communist—especially from those who would fight a Russian invasion of France. Nobody knows how many there are.

The French Communist movement was launched officially on the great labor festival of May Day. A formal manifesto declared:

"The Communist Party, our hope of yesterday, has been delivered unconditionally to Moscow by a despotic beaurocracy. In its eyes the deep interest of the French people comes after the interest of the Soviet Union."

American officers say that in a war with Russia one of their chief worries would be a Red uprising in France. Many French Communists got effective guerrilla training in the underground war against the Germans. In another war they could make life hard for any army fighting Russia.

The regular French Communist Party already has prepared the way by pushing the slogan: "We will never make war against the Soviet Union."

Edouard Pesin, for the moment leader of the F. C. M., is a Communist who rejects that slogan. At 54, he has seen two invasions of his country. He maintains that France, if invaded again, must fight back.

A German court-martial sentenced him to five years in prison for hiding British soldiers from the occupying army of World War I. The Germans sent him away again in World War II. He has reason now to think the Russians would do worse if it came to World War III.

"The Communists have already threatened to beat me up," he told this reporter, "to bash my face in, if you want it bluntly."

Pesin is the school principal and mayor of Herin, an impoverished mining town, just outside Valenciennes.

"We're just getting organized," Pesin explained. "A lot depends on whether we can get the money together for a campaign—leaflets, posters, meetings, ballots, all that costs a lot."

Pesin speaks quickly and nervously, as if problems were piling up on him too fast. He apparently has given little thought to international matters—beyond the basic problem of loyalty to France or Russia.

A life-long Socialist, Pesin joined the Communist Patry in 1945.

"I was never really very enthusiastic for them," he explained. "But a lot of the friends and comrades who came back with me from Germany—they turned out to be Communists. A lot of those who never came back, they were Communists too."

The Communists elected him mayor of Hornaing, a smaller town about five miles further west, and then of Herin. He quit the party in November 1949. Why?

"It was that Stockholm peace appeal," he said. "I want disarmament, but I want everybody to disarm. And mostly I don't like the way they deform the truth."

Believed sympathetic to the F. C. M. though keeping officially apart from it is Charles Lemoine, a barrel-chested coal miner who left the Communists when Germany and Russia signed their 1939 pact. The party expelled him a month before he returned from captivity in Germany, but the 1,000 miners of the Schneider pit at Lourches have enthusiastically elected and reelected him as their delegate in the Communist-led union.

Lemoine wants to let Pesin do the talking at this stage, but he clearly makes a much more effective brand of political medicine. At 43 he is a former member of the Communist youth organization's central committee. He has made a trip to Moscow. At least half a dozen union delegates from mines in the region are ready to follow his lead.

Lemoine and Pesin have had talks looking toward a union with Darius Le Corre, another Communist who couldn't stomach the Nazi-Soviet pact. Le Corre was a member of the Chamber of Deputies when he quit the party in 1940. Recently he has been heading a Titoist splinter movement with headquarters in Paris.

Le Corre is writing open letters to regular Communist candidates in the parliamentary election next month. Among other questions, he is asking:

"Will you defend France against aggression, even against Stalinist Russia?"

Given the tight discipline of the French Communist Party, it seems likely that will get few favorable answers. But how many candidates can be put up, even by a combined Lemoine-Pesin-Le Corre group, is a moot question.

Forest Officials Tour Rec Area

The Dan's Mountain Recreation Area, which is being set up near Lonaconing, was inspected Wednesday afternoon by Joseph Kaylor, director of the Maryland Department of Forests and Parks, and a number of forestry officials.

Kaylor met with the executive committee of the MacFarland-Meyers Recreation Association at the Good Will Fire Company hall in Lonaconing after the inspection.

The group, which backed the program for a recreation area for the Georges Creek section, was told by Kaylor that a shelter to be built of native stone will be completed this summer. He also said that an additional 20 men will be put on the job of building shelters, parking areas and fireplaces.

A temporary water system is being built and one parking section is being provided for the initial phase of the project.

The Lonaconing group organized to obtain a recreation area following the tragic deaths last summer of two Central High School students in a highway mishap while they were enroute to Minke's swimming pool on the Christie Road.

Concert Is Scheduled At Methodist Church

Ann Fisher Gorman, pianist, and Tech. Sgt. George F. Kirby, tenor singer, will present a concert Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the First Methodist Church on Bedford Street.

The pianist is from Cumberland while Sgt. Kirby is a recruiter for the Army in Oakland. The local concert is being presented for the benefit of the fund to purchase new robes for the senior choir of the church. There will be no admission, but a silver offering will be taken.

The concert will be repeated June 6 in Lonaconing.

Buddy Poppy Sale Planned Tomorrow

The annual Buddy Poppy sale will be held tomorrow by Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, according to Mrs. Grace Cross, chairman of the program for the Ladies Auxiliary.

The poppies are made by veterans in hospitals. The activity termed among the best morale builders and occupational therapy treatments. Poppies were first sold in 1922 and each year various VFW posts throughout the nation sell them and funds derived are used for the veterans in hospitals.

Poppies were selected as the emblem of the dead and dying on the fields of Flanders in 1918 and are a reminder to the American people of sacrifices of U. S. soldiers.

The VFW also uses the funds for its rehabilitation service to needy veterans.

Winners Announced In Oratory Contest

Leo Stakem and James O'Rourke won first honors in the LaSalle High School oratorical contest Wednesday. Stakem, in the Senior Class division, used "Monsignor Fulton J. Sheen's Easter Message" as his topic.

O'Rourke, a Junior, spoke on "A Toast to the American Flag." There were three finalists in each class. Stakem will receive his fourth medal for oratory at the commencement June 10. John Vocke introduced the Senior contestants and Robert Cosgrove presented the Juniors.

Trucker Dies From Injuries

A 23-year-old trucker, Bertram E. Sager, Jr., of Hanging Rock, W. Va., was killed Sunday in a motor mishap on North River Road of Secondary Route 11 in Hampshire county.

State Police said Sager apparently lost control of the machine which turned over several times on the gravel road. He was thrown clear of the wreckage but suffered a broken neck.

Dr. W. C. McDonald, of Augusta, W. Va., examined Sager. His death marked the sixth fatality in Hampshire county this year.

Sager was the son of Bertram E. Sager, Washington attorney, and Mrs. Flora (Miller) Sager, of Hanging Rock. Also surviving is a sister in Miami, Fla.

Burial was in Ebenezer Cemetery with Masonic rites accorded by Clinton Lodge No. 86, A.F. and A.M., Romney, W. Va.

District 16 To Plan For New Honor Roll

Residents of District 16 will meet in the District 16, North Branch, Fire Hall today at 8 p. m. to discuss plans for a permanent honor roll for veterans of the community.

The present honor roll is wooden and residents plan to erect a more substantial one.

Presbyterian Group Installs Officers

New officers were installed and a charter was presented at a meeting of the Men's Club of First Presbyterian Church Wednesday night in the church hall.

Rev. Merle Swihart, pastor of Community Presbyterian Church, Glenshaw, Pa., was the speaker and presented the charter to Russell Pancake, past vice president. Pancake acted in the absence of the past president, John Conley, who is out of town.

The new officers elected and installed were R. W. Daugherty, president; Chester Williams, vice president; H. W. Burchard, treasurer, and George Harman, secretary.

Directors are F. E. Tepper, Russell Rice, Robert Pence, Al Tosh, John H. Stitley and John Harris.

Romney Man Backed For VFW Position

Harold Welker, of Romney, former resident of here, was pledged backing by the Fourth District, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of West Virginia, for department junior vice commander.

The district posts will support Welker when the state VFW election is held June 3 in Clarksburg, W. Va.

At the annual meeting of the district held this week in Charles Town, W. Va., Kenneth Sager was reelected president.

Marriage Licenses Show Increase Here

During the first quarter of this year a total of 722 marriage licenses were issued in Allegany county while 703 were sold during the same period last year.

There were 58 divorces in the first quarter this year and 50 last year in the same period.

Garrett county sold 424 marriage licenses during the quarter this year while last year the figure was 399, an increase of 25 licenses. There were only four divorces this year as compared to six in the same period of 1950.

A majority of the marriage licenses sold in this country are to residents of nearby states, while the divorces are obtained only by residents of the county.

During the first quarter of this year a total of 722 marriage licenses were issued in Allegany county while 703 were sold during the same period last year.

There were 58 divorces in the first quarter this year and 50 last year in the same period.

Garrett county sold 424 marriage licenses during the quarter this year while last year the figure was 399, an increase of 25 licenses. There were only four divorces this year as compared to six in the same period of 1950.

A majority of the marriage licenses sold in this country are to residents of nearby states, while the divorces are obtained only b residents of the county.

Retiring Central School Teacher Feted By Faculty At Dinner

Miss Meyer's Record Spans Half Century

LONACONING — Miss Elizabeth Meyers, fourth grade teacher at Central School, who is retiring at the close of the school term June 19, was honored last night, at a turkey dinner held in her honor at Anton's Big Savage Inn, Savage Mountain.

The faculty said of her in their specially prepared programs, "She has given freely of her best, and the lives of hundreds of pupils who have come under her guidance are richer because of her. To the school and the community she leaves a real heritage."

Miss Daisy Cline acted as toastmistress. "Harmony" was the first group presentation. "Lest You Forget Us" was the praise given by R. O. McCullough, school principal.

Committee Named

The committee was Miss Catherine Manley, chairman, Miss Esther Holzshu, Miss Margaret Hamilton and William W. Saylor. Booklet covers were made by Mary McAlpine, Esther Steele and Violet Beeman. The program typing was done by Lucy Lee.

The village school to which Miss Meyers has walked each day for 50½ years holds many happy memories for her.

It was February 1, 1901, that Miss Meyers began teaching in a one-room school for seven negro children on Castle Hill, Lonaconing. To this day, two of her first pupils, still keep in touch with their teacher.

September, 1902, she came to Central School to teach elementary grades. Arthur F. Smith was principal at that time and the building had eight grades, including two high school classes.

Same Class Room

Since 1911 when a new addition was made to Central, she has been in her present classroom No. 105. At the beginning of this year, five of the ten teachers who were in the school system during her early days of teaching were still living. They were Miss Emma Bradley, Miss Nora Geary, Miss Minnie Eichhorn and Miss Mary Walsh. Miss Walsh died in January; Miss Eichhorn died this month.

John T. White was superintendent of schools for Allegany county when Miss Meyers received her appointment to teach in Lonaconing. She taught under four superintendents since then. John Edwards, A. C. Willison, Edward Webb, and Dr. Charles L. Kopp.

Her classroom enrollment has been as high as 56 pupils with that being the normal number in the past decades. Now she has 35 pupils in her room. She remarks that the school system of teaching has changed very greatly during her teaching years.

She has been happy to give all of her teaching experience to her hometown community. Principals during her career at Central have been Smith, who died October 13, 1947, after being principal at Central 45 years; Lewyn C. Davis, who is now junior high school supervisor; and Raymond O. McCullough, who has been principal at Central for three years.

Travel Planned

Upon retirement she plans to spend part of her leisure in traveling. This summer she plans to visit relatives in Chicago, and later to visit other relatives in Baltimore, Washington and Philadelphia. She said that she will need to make the adjustment of being without the school children. She also likes sewing and embroidering and will continue these hobbies. She resides with her sisters, Misses Mary Ann, Christine and Teresa Meyers on St. Mary's terrace, Lonaconing.

A farewell gift of luggage was presented to Miss Meyers at the dinner held last night in her honor. She was also given a special admission card which invites her and her guests to attend any of Central's activities in the future.

Those who attended the farewell dinner were Dr. and Mrs. Charles L. Kopp, Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Rizer, Mr. and Mrs. Lewyn C. Davis, Miss Jane E. Botsford, Principal and Mrs. Raymond O. McCullough, Miss Marie Merrbach, David Kirk, Miss Christine Alderton, Miss Lilias C. Abbott, James Huston, Miss Daisy Cline, Mrs. Elsie Stokes, Joseph Derry, Miss Margaret Hamilton, Mrs. Marabel F. Haran, Mrs. Freida Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph K. Haugen, Miss Esther Holzshu, Kendrick Y. Hodgdon, Miss Evelyn Rae Frankfort, Miss Elizabeth T. Love, John C. Meyers, Miss Catherine Manley, Mr. and Mrs. John Meazger, Mrs. Pauline Hamilton, Mrs. Evelena Nolan, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Saylor, Mrs. Margaret B. Sloan, Miss Margaret H. Sloan, Mrs. Veronica Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Sowers, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Whitefield, Miss Deborah Birdsall, Mrs. Hilda Byers, Miss Emma Bradley, Mrs. Pearl Mello, Mrs. Monica McPartland, Miss Annetta Yates and Mrs. Kathleen Winner.

The turkey dinner was served with the tables tastefully decorated with candles and flowers. Bridge, 500 and Canasta were played during the evening.

Memorial Day Parade Plans To Be Made

Tri-Towns Group Meets Tomorrow

PIEDMONT, W. Va. — The committees making program arrangements for Memorial Day in the Tri-Towns will meet tomorrow night at 7 o'clock in the Council Chamber.

Eugene W. Paxton, city councilman, will preside in the absence of J. William Beck, general chairman, who will be out of town.

The parade will form near the Piedmont High School at 9:30 a. m. and begin marching at 10 a. m. It will proceed to Philos Cemetery, Westernport, where veterans graves will be decorated and an appropriate program will be presented.

The address will be delivered by Rev. Robert E. Cassell, pastor of Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, Westernport.

J. William Beck, general chairman, who will preside announces that the program will also include invocation by Rev. Robert M. Campbell, pastor of the Piedmont Presbyterian Church; pledge of allegiance, led by Chairman Beck; a selection by Boyce-Houser American Legion Band, Keyser, which will also lead the parade.

Selection by band; rifle salute and taps by members of Kelly-Mansfield Post No. 52, American Legion and Victory Post No. 155, American Legion, Westernport.

The benediction will be given by Rev. J. E. Dettra, pastor of the Westernport Church of the Brethren and following the benediction the band will play "The Star Spangled Banner."

Keyser Yeoman Club Elects 1951 Officers

KEYSER, W. Va. — William Stickley was elected president of the Yeoman Club at a meeting held Wednesday at the Blue Jay.

Other officers named are: W. Donald Gingerich, vice-president; W. W. Wolfe, secretary-treasurer; Richard Davis, Ray Umstot and Harry J. Reese, Board of Governors. Jack Bosley, who is completing his term as president in June, will automatically become a member of the board of governors.

The committee named to prepare and enter a float in the B&O exposition parade is Marshall Hixenbaugh, chairman; Edgell Grayson, Edward Staggs, Ray Umstot and Oran Brown.

The newly elected officers will be installed at the next regular meeting Tuesday, June 5 at Ted Kessner's Camp, Minco Park.

Keyser Personals And Briefs

Fru Magnhild Schulerud, Oslo, Norway, is visiting Mrs. Frank Snider.

Cpl. O. G. Webley, Keyser State Police Attachment, has returned from a four-day school session at the State Police Academy at Dunbar, W. Va.

'Religion, True and False," will be the subject of a public address Sunday at 2 p. m., DST in the Odd Fellows Hall. The speaker will be Carl Kallmyer, under the auspices of the Watchtower Society.

Potomac State Honor Society Holds Dinner

Dr. George H. Hand Is Guest Speaker

KEYSER, W. Va. — Dr. George H. Hand, president of Fairmont State College, was guest speaker at the formal banquet given by Sigma Phi Omega Honor Society in Davis Hall at Potomac State School last night.

Members of the faculty and Sigma Phi Omega attended the affair in honor of the 25 new members recently elected to the society.

The speaker received his doctorate in economics at Princeton University in 1939. Prior to that time he had received his Bachelor of Arts degree in economics from West Virginia University in 1928. He was awarded his Master of Arts degree from Princeton in 1933. A member of the American Economics Association, he served as professor and chairman of the Department of Economics and Business at the University of Vermont, at Burlington, in 1944-45.

He was recently listed in "Who's Who in America." He is a member of the American Association of University professors, the National Education Association, Rotary Club and Sigma Phi Epsilon social fraternity.

Dr. E. E. Church, president of Potomac State School, introduced the speaker, and Dean K. S. McKee gave the invocation. The program was concluded by Edward Welsh speaking in behalf of the 1950-51 members of Sigma Phi Omega, and Robert Hess, president-elect, presented the 1951-52 Honor Society members.

Committee chairman of the affair were Virginia Kemp, programs; Barbara Colabrese, decorations, and Betty Judy, invitations. All active members will assist in receiving and seating the guests.

Tri-Towns Briefs

Mr. and Mrs. Guthrie Wilt and son, David, Salem, N. J., are spending their vacation with his parents and her sister, Mrs. Mike Francis, Piedmont.

Creative Writings Published By Lonaconing School Group

LONACONING — "Pen Productions" is the second publication of creative work of the students of Central High School which will be issued within the next two weeks.

It is an exhibit of the many different types of creative work done in English classes and is published to preserve their written expressions. Poetry, essays, character sketches, autobiographies, stories, limericks and letters are included for this mimeographed magazine.

Produced under the direction of student committees, the publication is supervised by the English classes. Each student filed creative work, committees selected and arranged articles for the magazine. Stencils were cut and the art committee designed pictures.

Miss Esther Holzshu is director; Kenneth Smith is faculty director of mimeographing and typing; Miss Daisy Cline, Senior English teacher; Miss Esther Holzshu, Junior and Sophomore English teacher, William Saylor, ninth grade English teacher, Miss Christine Alderton, eighth grade English teacher.

Committee on selecting and arranging were Carol Klipstein, Kay Winner, Flora Machin, Jo Riha, Marion Davis, Norma Jean Bradley, Dorothy Merrbaugh, Shirley Warnick, and Patsy Seib. Proof readers are David Dunn, Robert Dawson, Imogene Lancaster, Helen Crable, Shirley Green, Carol Thompson and Shirley Burt.

Illustrators are Michael Clark, Raymond Bittinger, Billy Nine, Elizabeth Atkinson, Mary McAlpine, Jack Spiker and Eldon Nicol. Jo Riha acted as secretary; Bill Robertson, Margaret Leake, Carl Stakem, Albert Llewellyn and Bill McGann, business managers.

Exhibits Arrive For Exposition

KEYSER, W. Va.—Two freight cars, loaded with models, paintings and other equipment to be displayed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company during exposition week starting Monday, arrived here yesterday.

This is the first consignment of articles to arrive. The car was unloaded and the crates were distributed to points of vantage.

Church Plans Victory Sunday

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—Rev. J. B. Dryfield, pastor of the Moorefield Methodist Church, announces that a campaign to reach all members of the local congregation, is now in process.

Object of the campaign is twofold: to better acquaint the church member with the work of the Methodist denomination's World Service; and to give each one an opportunity to share regularly in the humanitarian work around the world as well as to support his church in the local and conference responsibilities.

"Victory Sunday" will be observed Sunday June 3, and letters will be mailed to members of the congregation during the week.

Rev. Dryfield indicated that the local budget for this year, exclusive of the building program of the church, will approximate $7,000, which is the largest budget in the history of the local church. Members and friends subscribed $2,650 of this amount last Sunday. Last year Methodists gave $7,672,359.89 to the missionary and general benevolence work of the denomination around the world.

Keyser Seniors Plan Unusual Class Night

Program Scheduled At 8 P. M. Tonight

KEYSER, W. Va.—The annual class night program at Keyser High School will be different this year from others in the past.

The evening's affair will be presented in the usual manner, but with something new as the afterpart. The program will be presented in the school auditorium this evening at 8 o'clock.

The first part will have the usual type of setting and activity with the president, Eugene Woodworth, delivering the address of welcome, followed by a band. A quartet will present a number after which the valedictorian. John Dennison, will speak, followed by Deloris Stickley, salutatorian; Peggie Burgess, class historian, and song numbers by the junior & senior class.

From this point on a new type of class activity will be presented, a play, titled "Seniors At the Bar."

In this skit the seniors have learned that they will not be given their diplomas for lack of a half credit, and they take their grievance to the court, where they present the situation in an outstanding manner.

The court judge is played by John Dennison; James Oates is the students attorney and Vernon Ryan appears as the attorney for the faculty. James Grubbs portrays the part of Owen Shaffer, chemical teacher at Keyser High, and Willuise Martin appears playing the part of Miss Alice White, English teacher. The sheriff's role is played by James Rotruck; Charles Warnick appears as the clerk and Aaron Wilson, plays the part of the football team captain.

The part of R. R. Lowe, principal of the school is played by Frank Raschella. Other seniors in the cast will play parts of jurors and others active in the trial.

Lester McDowell has been sponsor of this year's senior class for the past three years.

Best Actresses Selected At Central School Assembly

LONACONING — Joyce Thorpe and Clara Jean Dick were judged the best actresses and "Telephoning Under Difficulties" was judged the winner of four one-act plays presented at a junior high school assembly Wednesday afternoon in the Central School auditorium.

JOYCE THORPE

CLARA JEAN DICK

Margaret Ann Murphy as Martha Bascomb, lady of the house; Shelva Wilson as Beulah Green, the maid; and Ray Trost as voice of junior, off stage, enacted the one-act play which was declared the winner.

"Wanted — A Haunted House" was presented. James Bragg, a real estate broker, was portrayed by Harry Hadley, Miss Hilda Snooks, his assistant, was played by Lesta Eichhorn; Perry Winkle and Miss Ima Peach, customers, were performed by Earl Steiding and Clara Jean Dick.

"Mary Jane and the Census Man" was enacted by Virginia Hardegan as Mary Jane Pettingill; Marion Thompson as Madge, her daughter; and, Bill Richmond as Clarence Hubbs, census taker.

"Jemima's Peddlers" had Joyce Thorpe as Jemima Dewberry; Bobby Mundeno as Sam Slick; Bobby Dickinson as Moses Goldstein; Jack Crable as Rev. Goodman in the cast of characters.

Potomac State Honor Society Holds Dinner

Dr. George H. Hand Is Guest Speaker

KEYSER, W. Va. — Dr. George H. Hand, president of Fairmont State College, was guest speaker at the formal banquet given by Sigma Phi Omega Honor Society in Davis Hall at Potomac State School last night.

Members of the faculty and Sigma Phi Omega attended the affair in honor of the 25 new members recently elected to the society.

The speaker received his doctorate in economics at Princeton University in 1939. Prior to that time he had received his Bachelor of Arts degree in economics from West Virginia University in 1928. He was awarded his Master of Arts degree from Princeton in 1933. A member of the American Economics Association, he served as professor and chairman of the Department of Economics and Business at the University of Vermont, at Burlington, in 1944-45.

He was recently listed in "Who's Who in America." He is a member of the American Association of University professors, the National Education Association, Rotary Club and Sigma Phi Epsilon social fraternity.

Dr. E. E. Church, president of Potomac State School, introduced the speaker, and Dean K. S. McKee gave the invocation. The program was concluded by Edward Welsh speaking in behalf of the 1950-51 members of Sigma Phi Omega, and Robert Hess, president-elect, presented the 1951-52 Honor Society members.

Committee chairman of the affair were Virginia Kemp, programs; Barbara Colabrese, decorations, and Betty Judy, invitations. All active members will assist in receiving and seating the guests.

Creative Writings Published By Lonaconing School Group

LONACONING — "Pen Productions" is the second publication of creative work of the students of Central High School which will be issued within the next two weeks.

It is an exhibit of the many different types of creative work done in English classes and is published to preserve their written expressions. Poetry, essays, character sketches, autobiographies, stories, limericks and letters are included for this mimeographed magazine.

Produced under the direction of student committees, the publication is supervised by the English classes. Each student filed creative work, committees selected and arranged articles for the magazine. Stencils were cut and the art committee designed pictures.

Miss Esther Holzshu is director; Kenneth Smith is faculty director of mimeographing and typing; Miss Daisy Cline, Senior English teacher; Miss Esther Holzshu, Junior and Sophomore English teacher, William Saylor, ninth grade English teacher, Miss Christine Alderton, eighth grade English teacher.

Committee on selecting and arranging were Carol Klipstein, Kay Winner, Flora Machin, Jo Riha, Marion Davis, Norma Jean Bradley, Dorothy Merrbaugh, Shirley Warnick, and Patsy Seib. Proof readers are David Dunn, Robert Dawson, Imogene Lancaster, Helen Crable, Shirley Green, Carol Thompson and Shirley Burt.

Illustrators are Michael Clark, Raymond Bittinger, Billy Nine, Elizabeth Atkinson, Mary McAlpine, Jack Spiker and Eldon Nicol. Jo Riha acted as secretary; Bill Robertson, Margaret Leake, Carl Stakem, Albert Llewellyn and Bill McGann, business managers.

Exhibits Arrive For Exposition

KEYSER, W. Va.—Two freight cars, loaded with models, paintings and other equipment to be displayed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company during exposition week starting Monday, arrived here yesterday.

This is the first consignment of articles to arrive. The car was unloaded and the crates were distributed to points of vantage.

Church Plans Victory Sunday

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—Rev. J. B. Dryfield, pastor of the Moorefield Methodist Church, announces that a campaign to reach all members of the local congregation, is now in process.

Object of the campaign is twofold: to better acquaint the church member with the work of the Methodist denomination's World Service; and to give each one an opportunity to share regularly in the humanitarian work around the world as well as to support his church in the local and conference responsibilities.

"Victory Sunday" will be observed Sunday June 3, and letters will be mailed to members of the congregation during the week.

Rev. Dryfield indicated that the local budget for this year, exclusive of the building program of the church, will approximate $7,000, which is the largest budget in the history of the local church. Members and friends subscribed $2,650 of this amount last Sunday. Last year Methodists gave $7,672,359.89 to the missionary and general benevolence work of the denomination around the world.

Keyser Seniors Plan Unusual Class Night

Program Scheduled At 8 P. M. Tonight

KEYSER, W. Va.—The annual class night program at Keyser High School will be different this year from others in the past.

The evening's affair will be presented in the usual manner, but with something new as the afterpart. The program will be presented in the school auditorium this evening at 8 o'clock.

The first part will have the usual type of setting and activity with the president, Eugene Woodworth, delivering the address of welcome, followed by a band. A quartet will present a number after which the valedictorian, John Dennison, will speak, followed by Deloris Stickley, salutatorian; Peggie Burgess, class historian, and song numbers by the junior & senior class.

In this skit the seniors have learned that they will not be given their diplomas for lack of a half credit, and they take their grievance to the court, where they present the situation in an outstanding manner.

The court judge is played by John Dennison; James Oates is the students attorney and Vernon Ryan appears as the attorney for the faculty. James Grubbs portrays the part of Owen Shaffer, chemical teacher at Keyser High, and Willuise Martin appears playing the part of Miss Alice White, English teacher. The sheriff's role is played by James Rotruck; Charles Warnick appears as the clerk and Aaron Wilson, plays the part of the football team captain.

The part of R. R. Lowe, principal of the school is played by Frank Raschella. Other seniors in the cast will play parts of jurors and others active in the trial.

Lester McDowell has been sponsor of this year's senior class for the past three years.

Best Actresses Selected At Central School Assembly

LONACONING — Joyce Thorpe and Clara Jean Dick were judged the best actresses and "Telephoning Under Difficulties" was judged the winner of four one-act plays presented at a junior high school assembly Wednesday afternoon in the Central School auditorium.

West Virginia Gets No Bids On Bonus Bonds

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 24 (AP) — West Virginia failed to receive a single bid Wednesday on its proposed issuance of $67,500,000 in revenue bonds to pay its veterans of two World Wars a state bonus.

Governor Okey L. Patterson said other methods of paying the bonus would be studied.

The absence of bids was attributed to a recent order of the National Voluntary Credit Restraint Committee to investment houses not to bid on the bonds.

The committee, which has federal government sanction, ruled the issuance inflationary.

While the committee's rulings are not binding, most investment syndicates were expected beforehand to abide by the ruling.

Director T. H. (Pat) McGovran of the Veterans Affairs Department said that a tentative date of July 6 for accepting bonus applications is out.

The 1951 Legislature set up new taxes on cigarettes and beer and higher prices for liquor sold at state stores, all to become effective July 1 to pay off the bonds.

Those taxes will go into effect as usual, with receipts to be held for what ever time the bonus machinery goes into effect.

14 Oldtown FFA Boys Judge Eggs And Poultry

If there is such a thing as safety in numbers, an Oldtown boy should win the Allegany County Future Farmers of America Poultry and Egg Judging Contest when the results finally are tabulated.

The reason is that 14 of the 23 boys who competed in the contest last night at the Steinla Motor Car Company garage, 218 South Mechanic Street, were from the Oldtown FFA. Six others were from Flintstone, two from Beall and one from Fort Hill. Allegany, the fifth county school with an FFA Club, was not represented.

James H. House, supervisor of vocational agriculture in the county schools, arranged the contest. Charles A. Smith, superintendent of the Poultry Department of the Cumberland Fair Association, was official poultry judge. Robert E. L. Ross, Flintstone vo-ag teacher, directed the egg judging.

The officials indicated it might be several days before the judging records could be checked and the contest winners named. Each boy was called upon to judge four New Hampshire Reds, four Rhode Island Reds and four white Leghorns as well as candle and judge a dozen white and a dozen brown eggs.

Thomas Church Group Elects 1951 Officers

Mothers Feted At Dinner Held By Keyser Group

Program Includes Pledge Ceremony

KEYSER, W. Va.—The Iota Pi Chapter, Tau Phi Lambda Sorority of the Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, held a Mother-Daughter banquet and pledge ceremony Monday evening at the Old Homestead Hotel, Burlington.

Luetta Dantzic was toastmistress. The doxology was given in unison; the invocation was given by Kathleen Harrison; introductory toast by Luetta Dantzic; Mary Kight gave the toast to daughters; Frances Hartman sang a solo, "Mother"; Loretta Keener gave a reading, "If"; Mrs. Clyde Hott and her daughter, Doris Nesbit played a piano duet, "Narcissis"; Angela Dorsey read a poem, "Your Home"; A duet by Mary and Juanita Rotruck.

Luetta Dantzic presided at a "Queen for the Day" ceremony when each daughter crowned her mother. Alma Payne gave a humorous reading concluding the program.

The pledge ceremony was held with Juanita Rotruck as president; Phyllis Dorsey as warden; Doris Nesbitt as musician. Alice Ravenscroft and Frances Hartman were pledged into the sorority with Mary Kathryn Neville and Mary Rotruck acting as pledge mothers.

A Spring flowers theme was carried out in the decorations. Favors were miniature hats of pink and green, the sorority colors.

Guests were Mesdames Clarence Friend, Walter Kephart, John T. Dorsey, James Clise, C. R. Feathers, I. L. Ravenscroft, Edward Mills, M. C. Rotruck, Luther Rotruck, Thomas Payne, Dennis Collins, C. W. Smith Clyde Hott, Harold Harrison; Misses Nora Snively and Di Anne Kight.

Pledges and members included Alice Ravenscroft, Frances Hartman, Mary Kight, Mary Kathryn Neville, Betty Murray, Adrian Dixon, Phyllis Dorsey, Betty Kephart, Kathleen Harrison, Doris Nesbitt, Loretta Keener, Alma Payne, Mary Rotruck, Luetta Dantzic, Juanita Rotruck and Mary Ellen Carpenter.

Kenny Will Be Banquet Speaker

PIEDMONT, W. Va. — Hamill Kenny, a member of the Piedmont High School Alumni Association will be principal speaker at its annual banquet Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. in the High School auditorium.

Kenny received his A. B. and M. A. Degrees at Columbia University, New York City.

In recent years he wrote and published a book "Place Names" and is now preparing his thesis "Indian Place Names in Maryland" which he will soon publish. He will receive the degree of Doctor of Philosophy next month at the University of Maryland.

For the past five years he has been associated with the University of Maryland as a teacher and student and during this time has travelled in Africa, the Orient and European countries.

Dr. James H. Wolverton, Jr., also an alumnus, will act as toastmaster. A program is being arranged by Edward Seaman, a member of the high school faculty. The annual election of officers will also be held.

Red Cross Drive Ends In Tucker

PARSONS, W. Va. — Mrs. H. U. Freeman, chairman of the Tucker County Red Cross, has given the final report for the 1951 drive. A total of $1,483.90 was received, far exceeding last year's drive.

Mrs. Freeman has requested that any other donations to be made to the Red Cross will be appreciated but are to be mailed direct to Luther Bennett, County Chairman.

The drive in Davis was sponsored by the Woman's club with Miss Marguerite Chrystal as chairman and reported $351.69; Fairfax, by the Lions Club with Dr. T. A. Currey, chairman, $356.15. Parsons with the Woman's Club as sponsors and Mrs. B. F. Long, Sr. and Mrs. H. D. Shiflet as co-chairmen, $663.57. Included was $100.08 given by donations direct to the fund chairman and $25 given by the Tucker County Bank in honor of Mrs. Anna Lake.

Other reports included Mrs. Ralph Rowland, chairman of Bretz, with $9.50; Hambleton-Hendricks English Club with Mrs. Paul Mateer chairman, $51.60; St. George with Mrs. John Auvil as chairman, $20; Porterwood with Mrs. Ruby Powers, chairman, $2.43; Red Creek with Mrs. Raines as chairman, $19.02; the Holly Meadows and the Limestone Farm Woman's club each donated $5.

Fit for a King

APPROVED by England's King George, a new hat adopted by the British Women's Royal Air Force is worn for the first time at a rehearsal for the forthcoming presentation of the colors. Here, Betty Morgan helps her sister-in-arms, June Buckfield, adjust the new military chapeau. (International)

West Virginia Gets No Bids On Bonus Bonds

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 24 (AP) — West Virginia failed to receive a single bid Wednesday on its proposed issuance of $67,500,000 in revenue bonds to pay its veterans of two World Wars a state bonus.

Governor Okey L. Patterson said other methods of paying the bonus would be studied.

The absence of bids was attributed to a recent order of the National Voluntary Credit Restraint Committee to investment houses not to bid on the bonds.

The committee, which has federal government sanction, ruled the issuance inflationary.

While the committee's rulings are not binding, most investment syndicates were expected beforehand to abide by the ruling.

Director T. H. (Pat) McGovran of the Veterans Affairs Department said that a tentative date of July 6 for accepting bonus applications is out.

The 1951 Legislature set up new taxes on cigarettes and beer and higher prices for liquor sold at state stores, all to become effective July 1 to pay off the bonds.

Those taxes will go into effect as usual, with receipts to be held for what ever time the bonus machinery goes into effect.

14 Oldtown FFA Boys Judge Eggs And Poultry

If there is such a thing as safety in numbers, an Oldtown boy should win the Allegany County Future Farmers of America Poultry and Egg Judging Contest when the results finally are tabulated.

The reason is that 14 of the 23 boys who competed in the contest last night at the Steinla Motor Car Company garage, 218 South Mechanic Street, were from the Oldtown FFA. Six others were from Flintstone, two from Beall and one from Fort Hill. Allegany, the fifth county school with an FFA Club, was not represented.

James H. House, supervisor of vocational agriculture in the county schools, arranged the contest. Charles A. Smith, superintendent of the Poultry Department of the Cumberland Fair Association, was official poultry judge. Robert E. L. Ross, Flintstone vo-ag teacher, directed the egg judging.

The officials indicated it might be several days before the judging records could be checked and the contest winners named. Each boy was called upon to judge four New Hampshire Reds, four Rhode Island Reds and four white Leghorns as well as candle and judge a dozen white and a dozen brown eggs.

Thomas Church Group Elects 1951 Officers

PARSONS, W. Va. — Mrs. James Schoonover was named president of the Wesleyan Service Guild of the Thomas Methodist Church at a meeting held at the home of Mrs. Bert Pase. Other officers are Mrs. Charles Shrader, vice-president; Mrs. Elwood Root, secretary; Mrs. Marie Chenowith, treasurer and Mrs. Harley Kight, reporter.

The member voted to sponsor the Children's Day Parade at the annual Firemen's Homecoming being held in Thomas in June and also madep lans to serve the Masonic Dinner on June 2. The devotional services were presented by Mrs. Verda Helmick, Mrs. Evelyn Shrader and Mrs. Ruth Helmick.

Swanton Briefs And Personals

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Friend were Mr. and Mrs. Weston Friend, Patsy Gary, Dennis Friend, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Friend and sons, David and Stephen; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Tichinel and Sonny Tichinel, Altamont; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Romesburg.

Walter Friend of Cumberland is visiting relatives here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Sweitzer, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Warnick and daughter, Jackie, and Darlene Rhodes visited Mrs. Sweitzer's sister, Mrs. Clara Sweitzer, in Morgantown, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harvey and family have moved to Sulphur City from their home in the Walnut Bottom vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Wright, who have been living at Lakes Filling Station for the last few months, have purchased the Henry Johnston property in Swanton and will move in within the next few days.

Mr. and Mrs. James Kellar and children of Franklin visited Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilson.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilson on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Machin, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Machin and daughter, Robert Bray, Tressa Friend, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilson and sons called on Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Friend, Deer Park, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. James Baker, Pittsburgh, Pa., visited Mr. and Mrs. Lenuel Friend over the weekend.

Floyd Delmar and David Wilson spent the weekend visiting their grandparents at Deer Park.

Mrs. Hattie Brobst, Paul, George, Charles Craver and Tressa Friend were in Oakland Tuesday.

Doris Shillinburg spent a few days recently in Franklin.

Lonaconing Briefs

Ronald T. Warnick was elected president of the Boys 4-H club; Richard Cutter was elected vice president; and Carlton Robertson was elected secretary at their club meeting on Tuesday evening.

The Fashion Show by the Home Economics department will be presented Thursday, May 31, at 8 p. m. by the Central High School home ec girls.

It's funny how some people spend all day getting out of doing a morning's work.

"As the first plant location in this country, and for many years the only one, especially during the long years of experimentation and product development which really lasted until 1938, Cumberland supplied many of the people who grew with the Company and continue to furnish part of the leadership as it expands beyond the borders of the United States and becomes an important international enterprise. People are the most important part of human institutions; with so many Cumberland people in our management it may truthfully be said that the character of Cumberland is firmly imprinted upon the Company. That is by far the most important contribution of Cumberland to the Company.

"Cumberland is the fountainhead of this great and growing Company. This community is one of our chief partners in progress. What is good for one is good for the other. The fact that a business enterprise expands and grows larger does not destroy the basis philosophy of a partnership with a community. A company is much like an individual taking up new residence in a town. He has a self-interest in civic affairs, in the economic and social atmosphere. He raises his family, pays taxes, discharges his community obligations and remains there a long time if he can make a comfortable living. The mere fact that some member of the family locates in another town, as often happens, does not affect his original residence and relationship.

Mutual Obligation

"Now, partnership is a mutual obligation. Both must look after the health and happiness of the other lest misunderstanding impair the mutual satisfaction. Celanese Corporation has an obligation to try to provide steady employment at competitive wages to the number of people required to carry on its normal business. It can try to carry inventory across dull periods of business activity, to the limit of its ability, in an effort to avoid seasonal layoffs. We have succeeded in the one but we have not yet been able to cope with a nation-wide depression. Perhaps sometime we will learn how, but to date we are only able to survive such emergencies by living temporarily on the earnings of good business periods.

"We also feel an obligation to support local business. The large amount of coal, power, water and supplies that the Company purchases locally provide additional jobs and bring more money into the community. As a good industrial citizen, the Company does its share in giving financial support to nonsectarian community projects. It also encourages its local management to assist in community and civic enterprises as good citizens. From its inception and over a period of fourteen years, our Mr. Small took an active part, as you well remember, in promoting and assisting in carrying to a successful conclusion the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Control. He also assisted in drawing up the Ordinance of Smoke Control and the Planning Commission and made engineering talent available to the commission.

"There are several ways in which the community can help the Company. In fact, I think the community has a definite obligation to provide an atmosphere favorable to the economic health of its partner, the business enterprise. There are such things as taxes. It may sound all right to soak the corporations, as some of our more prominent demagogs advocate, but high taxes not only discourage business enterprise from taking risks in expansion, but often destroy it altogether thereby destroying the means of making a living on the part of the citizen, the real victim. The community should bear in mind that high local taxes adversely affect Amcelle's cost of production and can put the factory at a disadvantage with respect to factories in competitive communities.

Water Supply Stressed

"The subject of the water supply has been mentioned. It is a serious problem for Cumberland's partner and should be kept constantly in mind.

"Of great but often neglected importance is legislation unfavorable to an atmosphere of business confidence. There are current tendencies to vote benefits in dubious value, and increase the taxes on industry to pay for them. Industry cannot effectively fight such proposals today, due to the long indoctrination of the people in socialistic and communistic ideas, and too many of these unwise schemes are enacted at public expense for lack of opposition from local business and professional groups. Sometimes the public mind seems to be so poisoned by un-American, foreign propaganda, such as the communistic theory that the world owes everybody a living, that big companies are made the whipping boy by the agitators, called an enemy of the people. It's like killing the goose that lays the golden egg.

"On the other hand, there are many desirable community projects which provide a better and fuller life for the people. Such things are also of benefit to the Company because they provide the human satisfaction that make people happy in their community and their jobs and are cause for pride and self-respect.

Business Responsibility

"The community, especially the business section of it, can do much to foster the type of labor relations that will permit the Company fully to utilize the large sums that will continually be spent to keep the Amcelle plant as modern and competitive as any in the industry. It is all very simple. All that needs to be done is to repeat the truths about the Company. You know the Company's attitudes. They are published in newspapers, mailed out in letters from the manager, and printed in Company publications. No one else is in a position to state the Company's policies. I think we have a right to this kind of truthful support from the members of the Chamber of Commerce and from all the community. After all, we are mutually dependent for our welfare upon correct understanding of each other's ideas.

"We have said that people are more important than material things. It is a fact that a corporation is but the lengthened shadow of a man, of many men. A corporation is not a heartless thing without soul or conscience as is sometimes thoughtlessly represented. A corporation is merely the legal tie which binds together the ordinary men and women who strive together in combined effort to make a living. This legal tie permits them to be joined or followed by other men and women as time passes, either as owners or wage earners, or both. A corporation is only a legal means of carrying on and perpetuating combined effort. It has the same quality of heart and soul and it is as human as the people who comprise it because it is the people.

Citizens Promoted

"As Celanese Corporation grew beyond the borders of Cumberland, while still remaining a vital, integral part of it, in like manner many Cumberland men and women have moved away from Cumberland to take more important positions in the Company than they had here. Some have become general officers and directors, some managers of great plants in this country and abroad. You know them, so I take pride in mentioning a few — Schneider, Small, Cooper, Martin, Allan, Howorth, Killackey, Anwyl, Hanlon, Roberts, Mitchell, Seymour, Burns, Croft, Dice, Bassett and Babst. There is room for many more. Cumberland should take pride in the splendid procession of its sons that leave for more important positions in the Company because they have advanced solely on merit.

"One aspect in which I wish more of the individual citizens of the community had been partners with the Company is that of financial partnership. Many local people have invested savings in the Company's securities to their considerable profit. It is probably a pity that some of us feel a natural reticence to advise on investments. Moreover, I have a conviction that people of limited means should not invest their savings in securities of fluctuating values. I mention this because we are frequently approached by associates working in our plants who want to buy some of the Company's stock. We can only refer them to established investment houses. Perhaps we ought to make them more aware of the opportunities of investing in growth companies in growth industries than by mailing out financial statements in Annual Reports, but we do not dare to do any more. We have studied and continue to study the subject of stock purchase plans, but we do not believe in special privilege and we have not yet found a suitable solution to the problem. Securities of a publicly-owned company should be bought and sold only in the open and legally constituted markets.

"I have brought up this subject in order to point out that the success of the Cumberland-Celanese partnership is important to others as well as local citizens and local management. More than 35,000 shareholders in all parts of the country have a stake in the partnership. There are twice as many owners as employees in the Company. Many of them are banks, trust companies, insurance companies, churches, hospitals, colleges, and pension funds. In fact, over 38% of the common stock is institutionally owned. I daresay there is not an individual in this room this evening who does not have at least indirectly an interest in this partnership, if he carries any insurance or has a savings account.

"In closing, I feel impelled to make a statement on a subject that comes up every now and then and causes increasing irritation. It is such a silly, stupid idea that I even hesitate to mention it at all. I refer to the pernicious rumor that crops up that Celanese Corporation might leave Cumberland. Once and for all time, I state that the Company has no intention of leaving Cumberland. We have been here over a quarter of a century and we intend to stay here. We own our land, pay our taxes, and have as much right to stay here as anybody. Moreover, we like the people and the community and we don't intend to be moved out by careless gossip. Our roots are down deep in Cumberland. Both partners in this great enterprise are people — not streets and buildings and machinery and empty names. We belong to each other. We are completely a part of each other. Here and elsewhere Cumberland men and women are Celanese Corporation. With vigor, understanding, pride in our accomplishment and affection for each other, we shall march up the long road of the future together."

"As the first plant location in this country, and for many years the only one, especially during the long years of experimentation and product development which really lasted until 1938, Cumberland supplied many of the people who grew with the Company and continue to furnish part of the leadership as it expands beyond the borders of the United States and becomes an important international enterprise. People are the most important part of human institutions; with so many Cumberland people in our management it may truthfully be said that the character of Cumberland is firmly imprinted upon the Company. That is by far the most important contribution of Cumberland to the Company.

"Cumberland is the fountainhead of this great and growing Company. This community is one of our chief partners in progress. What is good for one is good for the other. The fact that a business enterprise expands and grows larger does not destroy the basis philosophy of a partnership with a community. A company is much like an individual taking up new residence in a town. He has a self-interest in civic affairs, in the economic and social atmosphere. He raises his family, pays taxes, discharges his community obligations and remains there a long time if he can make a comfortable living. The mere fact that some member of the family locates in another town, as often happens, does not affect his original residence and relationship.

Mutual Obligation

"Now, partnership is a mutual obligation. Both must look after the health and happiness of the other lest misunderstanding impair the mutual satisfaction. Celanese Corporation has an obligation to try to provide steady employment at competitive wages to the number of people required to carry on its normal business. It can try to carry inventory across dull periods of business activity, to the limit of its ability, in an effort to avoid seasonal layoffs. We have succeeded in the one but we have not yet been able to cope with a nation-wide depression. Perhaps sometime we will learn how, but to date we are only able to survive such emergencies by living temporarily on the earnings of good business periods.

"We also feel an obligation to support local business. The large amount of coal, power, water and supplies that the Company purchases locally provide additional jobs and bring more money into the community. As a good industrial citizen, the Company does its share in giving financial support to nonsectarian community projects. It also encourages its local management to assist in community and civic enterprises as good citizens. From its inception and over a period of fourteen years, our Mr. Small took an active part, as you well remember, in promoting and assisting in carrying to a successful conclusion the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Control. He also assisted in drawing up the Ordinance of Smoke Control and the Planning Commission and made engineering talent available to the commission.

"There are several ways in which the community can help the Company. In fact, I think the community has a definite obligation to provide an atmosphere favorable to the economic health of its partner, the business enterprise. There are such things as taxes. It may sound all right to soak the corporations, as some of our more prominent demagogs advocate, but high taxes not only discourage business enterprise from taking risks in expansion, but often destroy it altogether thereby destroying the means of making a living on the part of the citizen, the real victim. The community should bear in mind that high local taxes adversely affect Amcelle's cost of production and can put the factory at a disadvantage with respect to factories in competitive communities.

Water Supply Stressed

"The subject of the water supply has been mentioned. It is a serious problem for Cumberland's partner and should be kept constantly in mind.

"Of great but often neglected importance is legislation unfavorable to an atmosphere of business confidence. There are current tendencies to vote benefits in dubious value, and increase the taxes on industry to pay for them. Industry cannot effectively fight such proposals today, due to the long indoctrination of the people in socialistic and communistic ideas, and too many of these unwise schemes are enacted at public expense for lack of opposition from local business and professional groups. Sometimes the public mind seems to be so poisoned by un-American, foreign propaganda, such as the communistic theory that the world owes everybody a living, that big companies are made the whipping boy by the agitators, called an enemy of the people. It's like killing the goose that lays the golden egg.

"On the other hand, there are many desirable community projects which provide a better and fuller life for the people. Such things are also of benefit to the Company because they provide the human satisfaction that make people happy in their community and their jobs and are cause for pride and self-respect.

Business Responsibility

"The community, especially the business section of it, can do much to foster the type of labor relations that will permit the Company fully to utilize the large sums that will continually be spent to keep the Amcelle plant as modern and competitive as any in the industry. It is all very simple. All that needs to be done is to repeat the truths about the Company. You know the Company's attitudes. They are published in newspapers, mailed out in letters from the manager, and printed in Company publications. No one else is in a position to state the Company's policies. I think we have a right to this kind of truthful support from the members of the Chamber of Commerce and from all the community. After all, we are mutually dependent for our welfare upon correct understanding of each other's ideas.

"We have said that people are more important than material things. It is a fact that a corporation is but the lengthened shadow of a man, of many men. A corporation is not a heartless thing without soul or conscience as is sometimes thoughtlessly represented. A corporation is merely the legal tie which binds together the ordinary men and women who strive together in combined effort to make a living. This legal tie permits them to be joined or followed by other men and women as time passes, either as owners or wage earners, or both. A corporation is only a legal means of carrying on and perpetuating combined effort. It has the same quality of heart and soul and it is as human as the people who comprise it because it is the people.

Citizens Promoted

"As Celanese Corporation grew beyond the borders of Cumberland, while still remaining a vital, integral part of it, in like manner many Cumberland men and women have moved away from Cumberland to take more important positions in the Company than they had here. Some have become general officers and directors, some managers of great plants in this country and abroad. You know them, so I take pride in mentioning a few — Schneider, Small, Cooper, Martin, Allan, Howorth, Killackey, Anwyl, Hanlon, Roberts, Mitchell, Seymour, Burns, Croft, Dice, Bassett and Babst. There is room for many more. Cumberland should take pride in the splendid procession of its sons that leave for more important positions in the Company because they have advanced solely on merit.

"One aspect in which I wish more of the individual citizens of the community had been partners with the Company is that of financial partnership. Many local people have invested savings in the Company's securities to their considerable profit. It is probably a pity that some of us feel a natural reticence to advise on investments. Moreover, I have a conviction that people of limited means should not invest their savings in securities of fluctuating values. I mention this because we are frequently approached by associates working in our plants who want to buy some of the Company's stock. We can only refer them to established investment houses. Perhaps we ought to make them more aware of the opportunities of investing in growth companies in growth industries than by mailing out financial statements in Annual Reports, but we do not dare to do any more. We have studied and continue to study the subject of stock purchase plans, but we do not believe in special privilege and we have not yet found a suitable solution to the problem. Securities of a publicly-owned company should be bought and sold only in the open and legally constituted markets.

"I have brought up this subject in order to point out that the success of the Cumberland-Celanese partnership is important to others as well as local citizens and local management. More than 35,000 shareholders in all parts of the country have a stake in the partnership. There are twice as many owners as employees in the Company. Many of them are banks, trust companies, insurance companies, churches, hospitals, colleges, and pension funds. In fact, over 38% of the common stock is institutionally owned. I daresay there is not an individual in this room this evening who does not have at least indirectly an interest in this partnership, if he carries any insurance or has a savings account.

"In closing, I feel impelled to make a statement on a subject that comes up every now and then and causes increasing irritation. It is such a silly, stupid idea that I even hesitate to mention it at all. I refer to the pernicious rumor that crops up that Celanese Corporation might leave Cumberland. Once and for all time, I state that the Company has no intention of leaving Cumberland. We have been here over a quarter of a century and we intend to stay here. We own our land, pay our taxes, and have as much right to stay here as anybody. Moreover, we like the people and the community and we don't intend to be moved out by careless gossip. Our roots are down deep in Cumberland. Both partners in this great enterprise are people — not streets and buildings and machinery and empty names. We belong to each other. We are completely a part of each other. Here and elsewhere Cumberland men and women are Celanese Corporation. With vigor, understanding, pride in our accomplishment and affection for each other, we shall march up the long road of the future together."

Cards, Optimists And Times-News Chalk Up Wins

Athletics, Rotary And Jaycees Lose

The Cardinals took the measure of the Athletics, 10 to 3 in the Little League, and the Times-News and Optimist Club were returned winners in Hot Stove League games played yesterday.

The Times-News nine downed the Rotary Club last night at Penn Avenue Field, 5-3, after the Cardinals had won the opening game on the tripleheader program.

Yesterday at Community Park, Manager Earl Nonnenmann's Optimists won over the Jaycees by the score of 7-6.

Tied For 1st Place

Times-News is now tied with the Lions for first place in the Hot Stove League (2-0) while the Cardinals are setting the pace in the Whiz Kids Division of the Little League with a 2-0 record.

Markley fired the third strike past 12 Athletics' batsmen as the Cardinals triumphed last night. Charlie Smith, A's relief pitcher, struck out 11 after supplanting Gerry Farrell in the first frame. Markley also led the winners at the plate with a double and two singles in three official trips. Smith, Farrell and Bob Page rapped two hits each for the A's who suffered their second straight setback. Bob Lewis tossed a 4-hitter and whiffed eight as the Optimists handed the Jaycees their second defeat in the Hot Stove loop. Lewis and Crawford shared four of the winners 11 hits.

Frank Page struck out an even dozen in the Times-News victory and let the Rotarians down with three hits, including a triple by Puffenburger. Murray, Rotary pitcher fanned nine and gave up six hits, one being a three-bagger by Bittner. George Crass, Times-News left fielder, contributed the fielding highlight when he threw out Bean at the plate in the 5th inning.

The Senators and Giants will play the opening game on tonight's program at 6:15 o'clock and the Hot Stove League game between Exchange and Kiwanis will start at 7:45. P. E. and C. & P. Telephone play in the third game at 9:15. Yesterday's results:

Allan Sheetz posted his fourth consecutive victory of the Rocking Chair Softball League season yesterday but the pace-setting F. O. Eagles were forced to play nine innings to win eighth consecutive game over the Outdoor Club at East Side Field. The score was 3-1.

Sheetz has yielded only four runs in as many games this season.

Al paved the way for the winning run in the second overtime frame when he singled, moved to second on Mulvey's hit and came home on "Doc" Summers' base wallop. Lou Riehl's outfield fly sent Mulvey over with the extra tally. Jones' double a Cubbage's single produced the O. D. C. tally in the 6th. Lou Riehl led the stickers with a pair of two-baggers.

The B. P. O. Elks smacked out 13 hits and handed the Knights of Columbus an 11-1 walloping at Campobello. Bill Underdonk tossed a 5-hitter to notch win No. 6 against two losses. Loibel suffered his 7th loss against a single victory. It was the 7th straight loss for the Knights.

Orndorff, Reel and Roy Whiteman shared six of the Elk's 13 blows.

The Moose wounded Gene Scaletta in the first inning and went on to beat the Amvets at Fort Hill by the score of 8-4.

Scaletta suffered an injured knee when struck by a line drive in the first inning and was supplanted by Al Delbrugge who finished on the mound. Lou Bell suffered a twisted knee, Suter Kegg was hit in the mouth by a lively ball and George Geatz was cracked on the head before the game got under way.

Harry Minnicks and "Fats" Weltman garnered three hits each for the winners. Bell and Daughtery had two safeties apiece for the Amvets. The scores:

John Morris And Frank Smith Win East, West Side Marbles Titles

Columbia Street Will Hold Tourney Today

John Morris won the East Side marbles championship yesterday from Kenny Raines. In the preliminaries Raines, Morris, Ronald Diehl and Richard Phillips shot their way to the semi-finals and then Raines defeated Phillips while Morris triumphed over Diehl.

Other preliminary games winners were Robert Fogtman, David Brown, Billy Thomas, James Reed, Harvey Sharon, Charles Calhoun, Carl Uphole and Harold Gounihan.

Frank Smith won the West Side title in a thrilling finals series with Bobby Richardson, after 12 semi-finalists (out of 65 entrants) had won preliminary games.

Columbia Street's tournament this afternoon will bring the school tournaments to the half way mark, teh of 20 school champs being selected to play for the Cumberland championship June 12 at Gephart playground. The winner there will get a week's free trip to the famous ocean resort of Asbury Park, N. J. where the U. S. Marbles championship will be decided during the week of June 24.

Chisox Sweep Through East

Score 7th Straight Win Over A's, 5 To 2

PHILADELPHIA, May 24 (AP) — The Chicago White Sox did something today no other American League club from the Windy City has been able to accomplish in modern times when they completed an unbeaten eastern invasion with a 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

The triumph, featured by Eddie Robinson's seventh home run of the season, was the seventh home run of the season, was the seventh straight for Manager Paul Richards' boys. They whipped Boston twice, New York once, Washington three times and Philadelphia once in that order.

Veteran Randy Gumpert, picking up his second straight mound triumph, was touched for 11 hits but went the route. Meantime, the Sox thumped starter Joe Coleman and Carl Scheib for the same number of blows. Box:

Sportsmanship Awards For Two Big Leagues

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Annual awards were set up today for good sportsmanship in major league baseball, the first such awards in the game's history.

The Bowman Gum Company of Philadelphia announced the Jack Singer Awards, carrying a $1,500 war bond, would be presented to the player in each league voted to have been the most gentlemanly on the field during the year.

They will be given in honor of Jack Singer, International News Service correspondent who was killed during World War III. A panel of seven ranking sports writers and broadcasters will serve as judges.

In addition to the top award of $1,500, a $500 bond will be given the player on each other team in the majors chosen for his outstanding deportment.

Mrs. Dorsey Ensor Wins Fourth Flight

Mrs. Dorsey Ensor won the fourth flight in the women's spring handicap tournament at the Cumberland Country Club by defeating Mrs. Ralph R. Webster in the finals, 4 and 3.

Mrs. Lynn Lashley advanced to the finals of the third flight by defeating Mrs. C. A. Brotemarkle, 4 and 3.

Tigers Collapse And Suffer 11-1 Loss To Yankees

Coleman, DiMaggio Wallop Home Runs

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—New York's Yankees took advantage of a sudden pitching and fielding collapse of the Detroit Tigers to belabor the Bengals, 11-1, today as southpaw Joe Ostrowski pitched his first complete game victory as a Yankee.

The Yankees made only nine hits to ten for their opponents. However, they included a three-run homer by Gerry Coleman, a two-run circuit clout by Joe DiMaggio and a base-clearing double by Phil Rizzuto. All the Tigers hits were singles.

The Tigers committed three errors, were guilty of two wild pitches and several mental lapses.

For instance, Mickey Mantle struck out twice yet reached base each time. Catcher Joe Ginsberg missed the third strike the first time. Pitcher Bob Cain threw wildly on the third strike the second time. Box:

Hyndman Tops Barton, 14-11 In Conference

Three Contests Today, AHS Host To LaSalle

Hyndman High School took over third place in the Bi-State Baseball Conference yesterday by winning a 14-11 slugfest from Barton High School at Hyndman.

Barton collected 16 hits, including five for extra bases. One of the blows was Arnold Tichnell's mighty home run which cleared the fence in left-center. The Barton pitcher-first sacker also belted a triple and single. Emory Wilson and Bailey of the visitors also got three hits each.

Clay Leydig paced Hyndman's 11-hit attack with a double and two singles.

Barton played erratic ball afield and was charged with nine miscues.

Buskirk was credited with the win, his fifth against four losses. It was Hyndman's 6th victory against five setbacks in the conference.

Three games are scheduled today. Beall's undefeated league leaders will play host to Central of Lonaconing, Bruce visits Fort Hill and LaSalle tests Allegany at Campobello. All games are scheduled for 4 o'clock.

Urzetta, Coe And Chapman Score In British Tourney

Reach Quarter Finals, Stranahan Is Beaten

BY BEN PHLEGAR

PORTHCAWL, Wales, May 24 (AP) — Sammy Urzetta, the "Wonder Kid" from Rochester, N. Y., and two other American Walker Cup stalwarts, Dick Chapman and Charlie Coe, battled their way through two gruelling rounds over the royal Porthcawl course today to reach the quarter-finals of the British amateur golf championship.

Four of their countrymen, including defending champion Frank Stranahan from Toledo, finally found the going too rough and bowed out. Stranahan, seeking his third British crown, was soundly beaten, 5 and 4, in the morning round by Joe Carr, of Ireland, a member of the British Walker Cup team.

Urzetta, the 25-year-old ex-caddy who won the American amateur crown last summer at Minneapolis, led the U. S. challenge into the round of eight with victories over Wilbur Muirhead of Scotland, 2 and 1, and Major D. A. Blair of Ireland, 2 up.

If the baby of the American cup team should reach and win the 36-hole final on Saturday it will mark the first time one player has held both the American and British amateur titles since Lawson Little swept both tournaments in 1934 and 1935.

Urzetta To Face Coe

By a cruel quirk of the draw, Urzetta must bang into his teammate, Coe, in tomorrow morning's quarter-final round. This meant that no more than two Americans possibly could reach the semi-final in the afternoon.

Coe, the lean Oklahoma City stylist won the American title in 1949, overcome W. A. Slark of England, 3 and 2, in today's morning round and then overwhelmed Jim McHale of Philadelphia, 4 and 3, with a burst of sub-par golf in the afternoon.

Chapman, who grabbed the U. S. crown at Winged Foot back in 1940 and has twice been runner-up for the British bauble, won through with victories over David Reid of Scotland, 4 and 3, and Laurence Rannels, also a Scot, 5 and 3.

His quarter-final opponent will be squadron leader C. H. Beamish of the Royal Air Force, an "unknown" who knocked off veteran Alex Kyle of the British Walker Cup team in today's fifth round, 4 and 3.

Bill Campbell Loses

In the lower bracket with Chapman and Beamish were Carr, the conqueror of Stranahan, and John DeBendern. Sharing the upper case with Coe and Urzetta were Albert Evans, a Welshman, and J. E. Gent of England.

Evans, a husky Welsh farmer attended to the two Americans today.

In the morning, for a warm-up, he defeated Francis (Bo) Winniger, the former Oklahoman now living at Pleasantville, N. J., on the 21st hole of a slambang match. Then in the afternoon, to prove it was no fluke, he disposed of Bill Campbell, the Walker Cupper from Huntington, W. Va., 4 and 2.

Campbell had won his morning tussle against Kenneth Frazier of England, 3 and 2. McHale, later to fall victim of Coe, scored over Keppel Enderby of Australia, 4 and 3, in the fourth round.

Ben Hogan Leads At Fort Worth

Texan Turns In 68 In Colonial Golf

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 24—(AP)—Fabulous Ben Hogan whipped par by two strokes today to lead the first round of the $15,000 Colonial National Invitation Tournament with a 68.

The National Open and Masters champion slashed over Colonial Country Clubs exacting 7035-yard par 35-35—70 with a 34-34.

Hogan was one stroke ahead of Bill Nary of Prairie View, Ill., Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and Toney Penna of Cincinnati.

Hogan, who lives in Fort Worth but registers out of Hershey, Pa., had one bad hole—No. 15. He chipped from 57 feet away and was seven feet from the pin. Then he two-putted to go one over on the hole.

But he had three birdies and used only 30 putts on the round.

A stroke back of Nary, Middlecoff and Penna was Tommy Bolt of Durham, N. C., with par 70 while tied at 71 were Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C.; E. J. Harrison of St. Andrews, Ill., Julius Boros, Mid Pines, N. C.; Byron Nelson of Roanoke, Tex., and Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., one of the tournament favorites.

Two other hot choices for first money in pre-tournament calculations—Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and Jim Ferrier of San Francisco—were well off the pace in the field of 42. Mangrum shot a 74 and Ferrier a 72.

Romney Plays Moorefield In Today's Game

Fiery's Blow Puts Wardensville Out; Pitchers Whiff 33

Martinsburg High School won its way into the finals of the West Virginia Region No. 4 baseball tournament at Moorefield yesterday by nosing out Wardensville High School of Hardy County in 16 innings, the longest game of the schoolboy season in the tri-state area. The score was 1-0.

The contest was billed as the opener of a doubleheader and after it lasted three hours and 45 minutes it was decided to postpone the other semi-final between Romney High's Pioneers and Moorefield's Yellow Jackets until today at 2 p. m., E.S.T. The championship game has been set back until Saturday at 2 p. m., E. S. T. The winner of the tourney will represent Region No. 4 in the state title tourney at Parkersburg.

Fiery's single scoring Ditlow from second base with the lone run of the thrilling contest. Ditlow opened the 16th with a single and after Allen struck out he pilfered second base. Stocker flied to centerfield. Then Fiery singled to left and Ditlow beat the throw to the plate.

Shobe and Stacker went all the way in yesterday's pitching duel. Martinsburg's Stocker fanned 19 and yielded seven hits while Shobe gave up eight safeties and whiffed 14.

Wardensville collected two hits in the 6th and two hits in the 11th and the only inning in which Martinsburg threatened in the 2nd and 7th frames but Shobe fanned the last two batsmen in each stanza to retire the side. A double play executed by Heishman, Merriman and Hulver also stopped the Berkeley Countians in the 11th. Wardensville loaded the bases in the 6th, after two out but Hulver flied out to end the threat.

Cards, Optimists And Times-News Chalk Up Wins

Athletics, Rotary And Jaycees Lose

The Cardinals took the measure of the Athletics, 10 to 3 in the Little League, and the Times-News and Optimist Club were returned winners in Hot Stove League games played yesterday.

The Times-News nine downed the Rotary Club last night at Penn Avenue Field, 5-3, after the Cardinals had won the opening game on the tripleheader program.

Yesterday at Community Park, Manager Earl Nonnenmann's Optimists won over the Jaycees by the score of 7-6.

Tied For Ist Place

Times-News is now tied with the Lions for first place in the Hot Stove League (2-0) while the Cardinals are setting the pace in the Whiz Kids Division of the Little League with a 2-0 record.

Markley fired the third strike past 12 Athletics' batsmen as the Cardinals triumphed last night. Charlie Smith, A's relief pitcher, struck out 11 after supplanting Gerry Farrell in the first frame. Markley also led the winners at the plate with a double and two singles in three official trips. Smith, Farrell and Bob Page rapped two hits each for the A's who suffered their second straight setback. Bob Lewis tossed a 4-hitter and whiffed eight as the Optimists handed the Jaycees their second defeat in the Hot Stove loop. Lewis and Crawford shared four of the winners 11 hits.

Frank Page struck out an even dozen in the Times-News victory and let the Rotarians down with three hits, including a triple by Puffenburger. Murray, Rotary pitcher fanned nine and gave up six hits, one being a three-bagger by Bittner. George Crass, Times-News left fielder, contributed the fielding highlight when he threw out Bean at the plate in the 5th inning.

The Senators and Giants will play the opening game on tonight's program at 6:15 o'clock and the Hot Stove League game between Exchange and Kiwanis will start at 7:45. P. E. and C. & P. Telephone play in the third game at 9:15. Yesterday's results:

Allan Sheetz posted his fourth consecutive victory of the Rocking Chair Softball League season yesterday but the pace-setting F. O. Eagles were forced to play nine innings to win eighth consecutive game over the Outdoor Club at East Side Field. The score was 3-1.

Sheetz has yielded only four runs in as many games this season.

Al paved the way for the winning run in the second overtime frame when he singled, moved to second on Mulvey's hit and came home on "Doc" Summers' base wallop. Lou Riehl's outfield fly sent Mulvey over with the extra tally. Jones' double a Cubbage's single produced the O. D. C. tally in the 6th. Lou Riehl led the stickers with a pair of two-baggers.

The B. P. O. Elks smacked out 13 hits and handed the Knights of Columbus an 11-1 walloping at Campobello. Bill Underdonk tossed a 5-hitter to notch win No. 6 against two losses. Loibel suffered his 7th loss against a single victory. It was the 7th straight loss for the Knights.

Orndorff, Reel and Roy Whiteman shared six of the Elk's 13 blows.

The Moose wounded Gene Scaletta in the first inning and went on to beat the Amvets at Fort Hill by the score of 8-4.

Scaletta suffered an injured knee when struck by a line drive in the first inning and was supplanted by Al Delbrugge who finished on the mound. Lou Bell suffered a twisted knee, Suter Kegg was hit in the mouth by a lively ball and George Geatz was cracked on the head before the game got under way.

Chisox Sweep Through East

Score 7th Straight Win Over A's, 5 To 2

PHILADELPHIA, May 24 (AP) — The Chicago White Sox did something today no other American League club from the Windy City has been able to accomplish in modern times when they completed an unbeaten eastern invasion with a 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

The triumph, featured by Eddie Robinson's seventh home run of the season, was the seventh home run of the season, was the seventh straight for Manager Paul Richards' boys. They whipped Boston twice, New York once, Washington three times and Philadelphia once in that order.

Veteran Randy Gumpert, picking up his second straight mound triumph, was touched for 11 hits but went the route. Meantime, the Sox thumped starter Joe Coleman and Carl Scheib for the same number of blows. Box:

Sportsmanship Awards For Two Big Leagues

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Annual awards were set up today for good sportsmanship in major league baseball, the first such awards in the game's history.

The Bowman Gum Company of Philadelphia announced the Jack Singer Awards, carrying a $1,500 war bond, would be presented to the player in each league voted to have been the most gentlemanly on the field during the year.

They will be given in honor of Jack Singer, International News Service correspondent who was killed during World War III. A panel of seven ranking sports writers and broadcasters will serve as judges.

In addition to the top award of $1,500, a $500 bond will be given the player on each other team in the majors chosen for his outstanding deportment.

Tigers Collapse And Suffer 11-1 Loss To Yankees

Coleman, DiMaggio Wallop Home Runs

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—New York's Yankees took advantage of a sudden pitching and fielding collapse of the Detroit Tigers to belabor the Bengals, 11-1, today as southpaw Joe Ostrowski pitched his first complete game victory as a Yankee.

The Yankees made only nine hits to ten for their opponents. However, they included a three-run homer by Gerry Coleman, a two-run circuit clout by Joe DiMaggio and a base-clearing double by Phil Rizzuto. All the Tigers hits were singles.

The Tigers committed three errors, were guilty of two wild pitches and several mental lapses.

For instance, Mickey Mantle struck out twice yet reached base each time. Catcher Joe Ginsberg missed the third strike the first time. Pitcher Bob Cain threw wildly on the third strike the second time. Box:

Hyndman Tops Barton, 14-11 In Conference

Three Contests Today, AHS Host To LaSalle

Hyndman High School took over third place in the Bi-State Baseball Conference yesterday by winning a 14-11 slugfest from Barton High School at Hyndman.

Barton collected 16 hits, including five for extra bases. One of the blows was Arnold Tichnell's mighty home run which cleared the fence in left-center. The Barton pitcher-first sacker also belted a triple and single. Emory Wilson and Bailey of the visitors also got three hits each.

Clay Leydig paced Hyndman's 11-hit attack with a double and two singles.

Barton played erratic ball afield and was charged with nine miscues.

Buskirk was credited with the win, his fifth against four losses. It was Hyndman's 6th victory against five setbacks in the conference.

Three games are scheduled today. Beall's undefeated league leaders will play host to Central of Lonaconing, Bruce visits Fort Hill and LaSalle tests Allegany at Campobello. All games are scheduled for 4 o'clock.

Urzetta, Coe And Chapman Score In British Tourney

Reach Quarter Finals, Stranahan Is Beaten

BY BEN PHLEGAR

PORTHCAWL, Wales, May 24 (AP) — Sammy Urzetta, the "Wonder Kid" from Rochester, N. Y., and two other American Walker Cup stalwarts, Dick Chapman and Charlie Coe, battled their way through two gruelling rounds over the royal Porthcawl course today to reach the quarter-finals of the British amateur golf championship.

Four of their countrymen, including defending champion Frank Stranahan from Toledo, finally found the going too rough and bowed out. Stranahan, seeking his third British crown, was soundly beaten, 5 and 4, in the morning round by Joe Carr, of Ireland, a member of the British Walker Cup team.

Urzetta, the 25-year-old ex-caddy who won the American amateur crown last summer at Minneapolis, led the U. S. challenge into the round of eight with victories over Wilbur Muirhead of Scotland, 2 and 1, and Major D. A. Blair of Ireland, 2 up.

If the baby of the American cup team should reach and win the 36-hole final on Saturday it will mark the first time one player has held both the American and British amateur titles since Lawson Little swept both tournaments in 1934 and 1935.

Urzetta To Face Coe

By a cruel quirk of the draw, Urzetta must bang into his teammate, Coe, in tomorrow morning's quarter-final round. This meant that no more than two Americans possibly could reach the semi-final in the afternoon.

Coe, the lean Oklahoma City stylist won the American title in 1949, overcome W. A. Slark of England, 3 and 2, in today's morning round and then overwhelmed Jim McHale of Philadelphia, 4 and 3, with a burst of sub-par golf in the afternoon.

Chapman, who grabbed the U. S. crown at Winged Foot back in 1940 and has twice been runner-up for the British bauble, won through with victories over David Reid of Scotland, 4 and 3, and Laurence Rannels, also a Scot, 5 and 3.

His quarter-final opponent will be squadron leader C. H. Beamish of the Royal Air Force, an "unknown" who knocked off veteran Alex Kyle of the British Walker Cup team in today's fifth round, 4 and 3.

Bill Campbell Loses

In the lower bracket with Chapman and Beamish were Carr, the conqueror of Stranahan, and John DeBendern. Sharing the upper case with Coe and Urzetta were Albert Evans, a Welshman, and J. E. Gent of England.

Evans, a husky Welsh farmer attended to the two Americans today.

In the morning, for a warm-up, he defeated Francis (Bo) Winniger, the former Oklahoman now living at Pleasantville, N. J., on the 21st hole of a slambang match. Then in the afternoon, to prove it was no fluke, he disposed of Bill Campbell, the Walker Cupper from Huntington, W. Va., 4 and 2.

Campbell had won his morning tussle against Kenneth Frazier of England, 3 and 2. McHale, later to fall victim of Coe, scored over Keppel Enderby of Australia, 4 and 3, in the fourth round.

Ben Hogan Leads At Fort Worth

Texan Turns In 68 In Colonial Golf

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 24—(AP)—Fabulous Ben Hogan whipped par by two strokes today to lead the first round of the $15,000 Colonial National Invitation Tournament with a 68.

The National Open and Masters champion slashed over Colonial Country Clubs exacting 7035-yard par 35-35—70 with a 34-34.

Hogan was one stroke ahead of Bill Nary of Prairie View, Ill., Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and Toney Penna of Cincinnati.

Hogan, who lives in Fort Worth but registers out of Hershey, Pa., had one bad hole—No. 15. He chipped from 57 feet away and was seven feet from the pin. Then he two-putted to go one over on the hole.

But he had three birdies and used only 30 putts on the round.

A stroke back of Nary, Middlecoff and Penna was Tommy Bolt of Durham, N. C., with par 70 while tied at 71 were Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C.; E. J. Harrison of St. Andrews, Ill., Julius Boros, Mid Pines, N. C.; Byron Nelson of Roanoke, Tex., and Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., one of the tournament favorites.

Two other hot choices for first money in pre-tournament calculations—Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and Jim Ferrier of San Francisco—were well off the pace in the field of 42. Mangrum shot a 74 and Ferrier a 72.

Romney Plays Moorefield In Today's Game

Fiery's Blow Puts Wardensville Out; Pitchers Whiff 33

Martinsburg High School won its way into the finals of the West Virginia Region No. 4 baseball tournament at Moorefield yesterday by nosing out Wardensville High School of Hardy County in 16 innings, the longest game of the schoolboy season in the tri-state area. The score was 1-0.

The contest was billed as the opener of a doubleheader and after it lasted three hours and 45 minutes it was decided to postpone the other semi-final between Romney High's Pioneers and Moorefield's Yellow Jackets until today at 2 p. m., E.S.T. The championship game has been set back until Saturday at 2 p. m., E. S. T. The winner of the tourney will represent Region No. 4 in the state title tourney at Parkersburg.

Fiery's single scoring Ditlow from second base with the lone run of the thrilling contest. Ditlow opened the 16th with a single and after Allen struck out he pilfered second base. Stocker flied to centerfield. Then Fiery singled to left and Ditlow beat the throw to the plate.

Shobe and Stacker went all the way in yesterday's pitching duel. Martinsburg's Stocker fanned 19 and yielded seven hits while Shobe gave up eight safeties and whiffed 14.

Wardensville collected two hits in the 6th and two hits in the 11th and the only inning in which Martinsburg threatened in the 2nd and 7th frames but Shobe fanned the last two batsmen in each stanza to retire the side. A double play executed by Heishman, Merriman and Hulver also stopped the Berkeley Countians in the 11th. Wardensville loaded the bases in the 6th, after two out but Hulver flied out to end the threat.

Lightweight Boxing Title At Stake In Garden Go Tonight

Ike Williams Is 3-1 Choice In Title Bout

Champion Is Favored Over Carter Tonight In 15-Round Route

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Although lightweight champion Ike Williams is going to have a tight squeeze making the 135 pound limit, the Trenton, N. J., negro ruled a big 3 to 1 favorite to defeat Jimmy Carter of the Bronx in their 15-round title bout in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

The 27-year old champion, making his first title defense in 17 months, started drying out today. He won't take any liquids until after he weighs in at noon tomorrow. Ike weighed 135¾ today and expects to hit the 135 marker right on the beam. He labored through 15 rounds of gymnastics to sweat off poundage.

If he doesn't make it at noon, he'll have until 1:30 to shed the surplus. If he can't make it, he'll forfeit his crown. The fight then will become a non-title affair and Carter will be recognized as the No. 1 challenger in New York.

The champion, sweating and straining to make 135 pounds for the first time since Dec. 5, 1949, has been mean and vicious in his workouts.

"It will probably be a tough fight for around seven or eight rounds," said Ike. "Then I hope to knock him out."

There has been more interest in Williams' battle with the scales than with the fight itself. There has been little betting and less enthusiasm at the ticket windows. The promoting International Boxing Club would be happy with a crowd of 7,500 and a gate of $25,000 at a $10 top.

The 15-rounder starts at 9 p. m. (EST) and will be broadcast and telecast nationally.

Carter, a mystery man in his home town, considers himself lucky to get the title shot and said "I may surprise."

The 27-year old negro won't make any prediction, however.

"This is my big opportunity," he said. "It may never come again. I think Ike can be beaten."

Indians Trounce Senators, Feller Twirls 2-Hitter

Tribe Gets 19 Hits, Score 16-0 Victory

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — Cleveland hung a 16-0 defeat on Washington today, backing Bob Feller's two-hit pitching with a 19-hit attack.

It was Feller's fifth triumph against one loss.

Sid Hudson, Washington's leading pitcher last year with 14 wins, made his 1951 debut after being idle since April 1 with a back injury. He was knicked for 11 runs on as many hits in the first three innings.

The only Washington hits were delivered by Gil Coan in the first inning and Eddie Yost in the sixth. Both were singles.

Bobby Avila led Cleveland's attack with a double and three singles but it was a concerted assault which saw Larry Doby blast a homer and single, Ray Boone three singles, Al Rosen two doubles, Bob Kennedy a pair of triples and Jim Hegan a triple, double and single. Box:

SPORTS SPUTTERINGS

By WALTER L. JOHNS

SPEED is really king this year as the 35th edition of the Indianapolis 500-mile race nears production stage.

All records for whizzing around the 2½-mile Speedway are expected to be broken as the hopefuls wind up qualifying for the 33 places in the race.

Already the speed generated by these daredevils of the wheels has cracked all existing marks, and, given good weather and a dry racing strip, the all-time 500-mile marks should be blistered off the boards.

• • • •

THE CARS and the drivers have come a long way since the first Indianapolis race, in 1911, when Ray Harroun, driving a Marmon, negotiated the distance in a six-cylinder car at the breakneck speed of 74.59 miles per hour.

As a comparison, Walt Faulkner, the Long Beach, Cal., driver, qualified for this year's race by buzzing the 10-mile grind in 136.872 miles per hour.

And, the record for the 500-mile distance, set in 1949 by Bill Holland, is 121.327 miles per hour. Last year Johnny Parsons turned in a mark of 124.002 miles per hour, but the race was cut short to 345 miles because of rain.

• • • •

IMPROVEMENTS in racing cars, in the strip and fuel have brought about new speed marks.

But there are many factors which determine the final marks and the weather is No. 1.

Others are accidents, fatigue, pit stops and pressure.

The records show, however, that, with few exceptions, faster speeds are attained each year.

In the last five races, the record has been smashed each year. Even in the early days of the 500, the time was lowered year after year.

This year, the pace in the early qualifying has been so fast that even the leading drivers with the tops cars have had to zip it up to make the lists.

The first 26 drivers to qualify did so at an average speed of 133.646 miles per hour. That compares with the former record of 131.033 miles per hour.

• • • •

THE END is not in sight. This modern age of jet propulsion and atomic developments undoubtedly will have an effect on future racing cars.

Giants Call Up Mays, Minor League Belter

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—The New York Giants today called up Willie Mays, hard-hitting young negro outfielder, from Minneapolis of the American Association and announced he'd be in centerfield against Philadelphia tomorrow night.

At the same time the Giants optioned Artie Wilson, negro infielder, to Ottawa of the International League.

In 35 games with Minneapolis, Mays is hitting .477. He has banged out 29 extra base hits, including eight home runs. Famed for his speed, he has stolen eight bases.

The 170-pounder, who throws and bats righthanded, was signed by the Giants last spring after he finished high school at Fairfield, Ala., near Birmingham. He is 20 years old.

Sleeping cars were introduced on American railroads in 1837.

Lightweight Boxing Title At Stake In Garden Go Tonight

Ike Williams Is 3-1 Choice In Title Bout

Champion Is Favored Over Carter Tonight In 15-Round Route

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Although lightweight champion Ike Williams is going to have a tight squeeze making the 135 pound limit, the Trenton, N. J., negro ruled a big 3 to 1 favorite to defeat Jimmy Carter of the Bronx in their 15-round title bout in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

The 27-year old champion, making his first title defense in 17 months, started drying out today. He won't take any liquids until after he weighs in at noon tomorrow. Ike weighed 135¾ today and expects to hit the 135 marker right on the beam. He labored through 15 rounds of gymnastics to sweat off poundage.

If he doesn't make it at noon, he'll have until 1:30 to shed the surplus. If he can't make it, he'll forfeit his crown. The fight then will become a non-title affair and Carter will be recognized as the No. 1 challenger in New York.

The champion, sweating and straining to make 135 pounds for the first time since Dec. 5, 1949, has been mean and vicious in his workouts.

"It will probably be a tough fight for around seven or eight rounds," said Ike. "Then I hope to knock him out."

There has been more interest in Williams' battle with the scales than with the fight itself. There has been little betting and less enthusiasm at the ticket windows. The promoting International Boxing Club would be happy with a crowd of 7,500 and a gate of $25,000 at a $10 top.

The 15-rounder starts at 9 p. m. (EST) and will be broadcast and telecast nationally.

Carter, a mystery man in his home town, considers himself lucky to get the title shot and said "I may surprise."

The 27-year old negro won't make any prediction, however.

"This is my big opportunity," he said. "It may never come again. I think Ike can be beaten."

Indians Trounce Senators, Feller Twirls 2-Hitter

Tribe Gets 19 Hits, Score 16-0 Victory

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Cleveland hung a 16-0 defeat on Washington today, backing Bob Feller's two-hit pitching with a 19-hit attack.

It was Feller's fifth triumph against one loss.

Sid Hudson, Washington's leading pitcher last year with 14 wins, made his 1951 debut after being idle since April 1 with a back injury. He was knicked for 11 runs on as many hits in the first three innings.

The only Washington hits were delivered by Gil Coan in the first inning and Eddie Yost in the sixth. Both were singles.

Bobby Avila led Cleveland's attack with a double and three singles but it was a concerted assault which saw Larry Doby blast a homer and single, Ray Boone three singles, Al Rosen two doubles, Bob Kennedy a pair of triples and Jim Hegan a triple, double and single. Box:

SPORTS SPUTTERINGS
By WALTER L. JOHNS

SPEED is really king this year as the 35th edition of the Indianapolis 500-mile race nears production stage.

All records for whizzing around the 2½-mile Speedway are expected to be broken as the hopefuls wind up qualifying for the 33 places in the race.

Already the speed generated by these daredevils of the wheels has cracked all existing marks, and, given good weather and a dry racing strip, the all-time 500-mile marks should be blistered off the boards.

• • • •

THE CARS and the drivers have come a long way since the first Indianapolis race, in 1911, when Ray Harroun, driving a Marmon, negotiated the distance in a six-cylinder car at the breakneck speed of 74.59 miles per hour.

As a comparison, Walt Faulkner, the Long Beach, Cal., driver, qualified for this year's race by buzzing the 10-mile grind in 136.872 miles per hour.

And, the record for the 500-mile distance, set in 1949 by Bill Holland, is 121.327 miles per hour. Last year Johnny Parsons turned in a mark of 124.002 miles per hour, but the race was cut short to 345 miles because of rain.

• • • •

IMPROVEMENTS in racing cars, in the strip and fuel have brought about new speed marks.

But there are many factors which determine the final marks and the weather is No. 1.

Others are accidents, fatigue, pit stops and pressure.

The records show, however, that, with few exceptions, faster speeds are attained each year.

In the last five races, the record has been smashed each year. Even in the early days of the 500, the time was lowered year after year.

This year, the pace in the early qualifying has been so fast that even the leading drivers with the tops cars have had to zip it up to make the lists.

The first 26 drivers to qualify did so at an average speed of 133.646 miles per hour. That compares with the former record of 131.033 miles per hour.

• • • •

THE END is not in sight. This modern age of jet propulsion and atomic developments undoubtedly will have an effect on future racing cars.

Giants Call Up Mays, Minor League Belter

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—The New York Giants today called up Willie Mays, hard-hitting young negro outfielder, from Minneapolis of the American Association and announced he'd be in centerfield against Philadelphia tomorrow night.

At the same time the Giants optioned Artie Wilson, negro infielder, to Ottawa of the International League.

In 35 games with Minneapolis, Mays is hitting .477. He has banged out 29 extra base hits, including eight home runs. Famed for his speed, he has stolen eight bases.

The 170-pounder, who throws and bats righthanded, was signed by the Giants last spring after he finished high school at Fairfield, Ala., near Birmingham. He is 20 years old.

Sleeping cars were introduced on American railroads in 1837.

Eight Bout Card Completed For Monday Amateur Fights

Mann To Seek 17th Victory In Semi-Final

Stott, Walker, Dawson And Blocher Appear In Preliminary Bouts

Eight bouts, topped by the five-rounder between Norvel Lee, Washington, D. C., two-times National AAU heavyweight champion, and Al Schlimm, 205-pound Baltimorean, will make up the card for Monday's amateur boxing show of the Liberty A. C.-National Guard at the State Armory.

Matchmaker Albert "Bobby" Greene announces that novices will appear in six of the seven preliminary matches scheduled for three rounds each.

The semi-final will bring together Bill Mann, only local "veteran" on the card, and Maurice Johnson, Washington, D. C. middleweight.

Mann started boxing here November 11, 1946 and in 4½ years of scrapping he has won 17 of 25 matches. Last year he copped four out of five, whipping John Land and Morris Rackey, Washington, D. C., Paul Simmons and Frankie Taranto, of Johnstown, and lost on a TKO to Joe Martino, Johnstown, when he suffered a hand injury and was forced to quit.

Lineup Of Prelims

The lineup of other three rounders is as follows:

John Land, Howard University, Washington, D. C., vs. Ray Stott, Frostburg, 150 pounds.

Bob Ware, United States Navy, vs. Willie Wilson, Baltimore, 135 pounds.

Jerry Sitch, Baltimore, vs. Jack Miller, Cumberland, 135 pounds.

Don Smith, Washington, D. C., vs. Gary Dawson, Cumberland, 135 pounds.

Coleman Adams, Baltimore, vs. Joe Blocher, Cumberland, 10 pounds.

hting since December, 1947, lost eight straight bouts be- licking Jim Hazlett, Johnstown, here last September. Mann decisioned Land in the last amateur show held here on November 13, 1950.

Dawson won one of three matches, while Bob Walker defeated Dick Dickson, Pittsburgh, and Blocher outpointed Earl Dippery, Lewistown, Pa., in November.

Ware, Wilson, Sitch, Miller, Smith, Mundell and Adams are newcomers to local boxing shows.

First Show 6½ Months

Monday's amateur program is the first one here in 6½ months and is expected to attract a good-sized crowd.

The doors open at 7 p. m., and the curtain raiser is billed for 8:30.

Zihlman Downs Klondyke, 8-2

Zihlman defeated the Klondyke Colts in a Pen-Mar Baseball League game yesterday by the score of 8-2 at Zihlman.

The winners banged 15 hits with George Thomas showing the way with four for four, all singles, while Robertson, Matese and Robeson larruped two safeties each. Junior Buskirk led Klondyke's 13-hit attack with a triple and double.

Leo Brady's running, one-handed catch of a long fly to right field was the fielding highlight. The score:

Klondyke	000	000	200—2	13	2
Zihlman	101	020	22x—8	15	0

Owens, Johnson (7) and Burner. Downton, Keister (8) and Thomas.

QUESTIONS

1—Three men have won the American Automobile Association's recognition as racing champion three years each. Name them.

2—What is the record for the longest winning streak by a big league baseball team? (Hint—it's a National league team that did it.)

3—Got that one? O.K.—what's the American league record for the longest winning streak and what team set it?

HOOHEE?

HE was born Joseph Loscatzo in 1909. After being recognized as flyweight champion in 1930 he fought a draw with Frankie Genaro, NBA champion. He was defeated by Small Montana in 1935, losing the U. S. flyweight crown. What was his ring name?

ANSWERS

3—Chicago White Sox won 19 in a row in 1906.

2—Twenty-six. Set by John McGraw's New York Giants in 1916.

1—Earl Cooper, 1913-1915-1917; Louis Meyer, 1928-1929-1933, and Ted Horn, 1946-1947-1948.

CLIPS TWO RECORDS IN 500-MILE RACE QUALIFIER

Kyle Rote, the ex-Southern Methodist football star, was voted the most valuable high school player in Texas in 1946.

The largest opening day crowd in major league history was 73,163 at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium on April 20, 1948.

Nineteen games were played in the Stanley Cup hockey playoffs of 1950. Six of these games were decided in overtime sessions.

Eight Bout Card Completed For Monday Amateur Fights

Mann To Seek 17th Victory In Semi-Final

Stott, Walker, Dawson And Blocher Appear In Preliminary Bouts

Eight bouts, topped by the five-rounder between Norvel Lee, Washington, D. C., two-times National AAU heavyweight champion, and Al Schlimm, 205-pound Baltimorean, will make up the card for Monday's amateur boxing show of the Liberty A. C.-National Guard at the State Armory.

Matchmaker Albert "Bobby" Greene announces that novices will appear in six of the seven preliminary matches scheduled for three rounds each.

The semi-final will bring together Bill Mann, only local "veteran" on the card, and Maurice Johnson, Washington, D. C. middleweight.

Mann started boxing here November 11, 1946 and in 4½ years of scrapping he has won 17 of 25 matches. Last year he copped four out of five, whipping John Land and Morris Rackey, Washington, D. C., Paul Simmons and Frankie Taranto, of Johnstown, and lost on a TKO to Joe Martino, Johnstown, when he suffered a hand injury and was forced to quit.

Lineup Of Prelims

The lineup of other three rounders is as follows:

John Land, Howard University, Washington, D. C., vs. Ray Stott, Frostburg, 150 pounds.

Bob Ware, United States Navy, vs. Willie Wilson, Baltimore, 135 pounds.

Jerry Sitch, Baltimore, vs. Jack Miller, Cumberland, 135 pounds.

Don Smith, Washington, D. C., vs. Gary Dawson, Cumberland, 135 pounds.

Richard Mundell, Washington, D. C., vs. Bob Walker, Cumberland, 145 pounds.

Coleman Adams, Baltimore, vs. Joe Blocher, Cumberland, 110 pounds.

hting since December, 1947, lost eight straight bouts be[illegible] licking Jim Hazlett, Johnstown, here last September. Mann decisioned Land in the last amateur show held here on November 13, 1950.

Dawson won one of three matches, while Bob Walker defeated Dick Dickson, Pittsburgh, and Blocher outpointed Earl Dippery, Lewistown, Pa., in November.

Ware, Wilson, Sitch, Miller, Smith, Mundell and Adams are newcomers to local boxing shows.

First Show 6½ Months

Monday's amateur program is the first one here in 6½ months and is expected to attract a good-sized crowd.

The doors open at 7 p. m., and the curtain raiser is billed for 8:30.

Zihlman Downs Klondyke, 8-2

Zihlman defeated the Klondyke Colts in a Pen-Mar Baseball League game yesterday by the score of 8-2 at Zihlman.

The winners banged 15 hits with George Thomas showing the way with four for four, all singles, while Robertson, Matese and Robeson larruped two safeties each. Junior Buskirk led Klondyke's 13-hit attack with a triple and double.

Klondyke	000	000	200—2	13	2
Zihlman	101	020	22x—8	15	0

Owens, Johnson (7) and Burner. Downton, Keister (8) and Thomas.

QUESTIONS

1—Three men have won the American Automobile Association's recognition as racing champion three years each. Name them.

2—What is the record for the longest winning streak by a big league baseball team? (Hint—it's a National league team that did it.)

3—Got that one? O.K.—what's the American league record for the longest winning streak and what team set it?

HOOHEE?

HE was born Joseph Loscatzo in 1909. After being recognized as flyweight champion in 1930 he fought a draw with Frankie Genaro, NBA champion. He was defeated by Small Montana in 1935, losing the U. S. flyweight crown. What was his ring name?

CLIPS TWO RECORDS IN 500-MILE RACE QUALIFIER

Kyle Rote, the ex-Southern Methodist football star, was voted the most valuable high school player in Texas in 1946.

The largest opening day crowd in major league history was 73,163 at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium on April 20, 1948.

Nineteen games were played in the Stanley Cup hockey playoffs of 1950. Six of these games were decided in overtime sessions.

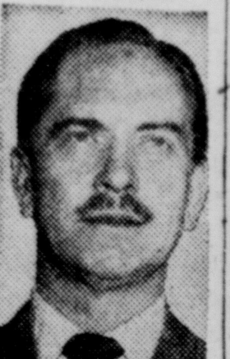
HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, May 24. (INS)—I am not checking this story because I konw it's true—that Fredric March is slated to play the Lee Cobb role in "Death Of A Salesman" for Stanley Kramer. The deal I hear is all wrapped up, signed, sealed and delivered.



Fredric March

This will be one of Kramer's first films on his Columbia picture program, and he really has an imposing cast. Mildred Dunnock, who played the wife on the stage, and Cameron Mitchell, who was one of the sons, will play their same roles in the picture.

Seems to me I remember — and correct me if I'm wrong — that originally Fredric March turned down "Death Of A Salesman" on Broadway and then regretted it after it became such a smash hit.

• — • — •

Paulette Goddard is due in Rome in October to co-star with a European actor yet to be selected, for the first of a series on Boccaccio's "Decameron." Paulette made this deal with Mike Frankovicth to film "Loves Of Boccaccio," one of the famous episodes, while she and Mike were in the east.

In the production of this classic, Mike will have the assistance of Dr. William Szekely and Renzo Rossellini, brother of Ingrid Bergman's Rossellini, for the music, taken from the opera "Boccaccio."

• — • — •

The extraordinary story of Mal Boyd will be filmed by Ida Lupino and Collier Young. Mal, a successful Hollywood press agent and TV producer of Buddy Rogers' show, out of the blue gave up his career to become an Episcopalian minister.

Ida and Collier, who have had luck making films from "true to life" situations, have asked Mal to write his own story. Mal achieved what most young men consider success in Hollywood—a big salary, car, home with a swimming pool, working with celebrated people.

But, somewhere along the line he found that the material things in life are not the real secret of happiness and right at the height of his success he turned to the spiritual values.

• — • — •

Chit chat:

Johnny Johnson telephoned me from New York that he is not asking Kathryn Grayson for any community property.

"All I want," said Johnny, "is my car. Some of my money went into the house, but I am not even asking for that. Kathryn can have the divorce without any strings just as soon as she turns over my car."

Well, that seems reasonable. As for Kathryn, she hasn't said anything. She has been so busy working I don't think she has had time. Johnny is a great success in "A Tree Grows In Brooklyn" on Broadway, and his whole attitude seems changed. That's the wonderful thing about success.

The very first independent production ever to be released on the Warner Brothers program is Abbott and Costello's "Jack And The Beanstalk."

When Bud and Lou outlined the story to Jack Warner he thought it was so good that he plans to release it next Easter, because he believes it will be a great thing for children, as well as grownups.

This glorified fairy tale, with emphasis on the comedy, is to be made by Abbott and Costello's Cosman Productions, their own company.

Saw Spike Jones, who is one the anxious seat of expectant fathers. His attractive wife expects her second baby any day.

Bruce Cabot, back in town, telephoned me to say he is sorry his marriage to Francesca De Scaffa hadn't worked out. He says he hasn't made a nickel since they were married, so he doesn't know what they are going to do about community property because there ain't none. Meanwhile, he is the house guest of Pat De Cicco.

"The Great Caruso" is the highest MGM grosser since "The Great Ziegfeld," and is making pretty music at the box office at New York's Music Hall Theatre.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

By JOHN CROSBY

Les Aventures de Ken Maynard

John Crosby

PARIS—

It is a very tiny, though typical, liar, La Valiere, at 3 Buede Buci in the Latin Quarter and the barman would like to think that it is the only bar in Paris with a television set. But it isn't. There are a few others in Montmartre, though you'd have to look pretty hard to find them.

Still, a television set in a bar, so common in America, is so rare in Paris that La Voliere is a curiosity indeed. It is an inexpensive spot, frequented by Frenchmen with very little money in their pockets and, with a little stretching, a man at one end of the bar could shake hands with one at the other end. When we arrived, it was fairly crowded, which means perhaps 12 customers.

Television in France goes on at 9 p. m. till about 11. Just before 9, there was a stir of expectancy. But not for the television. The hour of 9 is the hour for dinner. Roughly half the customers arose, paid their checks and departed just two minutes before the set was turned on. We debated a moment as to whether it was the stomach or the prospect of television which drove these people away and decided it was a bit of both. The French patronize a bar only partly for drink, chiefly for conversation. Television is an intrusion and it is my guess that it will never become a part of French saloon life.

Finally, there arrives on the screen a picture, a 12 inch picture no better, I should say, and no worse than our own. It is a girl reading the program for the week, a tedious operation, even though she is a very pretty girl indeed. Before her there reposes a cat who sums up the French indifference to television. He flatly refuses to look at the camera. The reading of the program finally bores him so greatly that he rises haughtily, stretches and departs—just like the customers.

By this time there are, besides ourselves, only five patrons—three of them engrossed in television, two of them, a man and a woman, engrossed in each other. Comes the news, Journal Televise, a filmed operation. President Auriol presenting the Legion of Honor to war veterans and kissing each one heartily. French sports planes. A basketball game, of all things, an honest one, I am told.

Then there arrives what I had come all the way to France to see—"Les Aventures de Ken Maynard." A bit of wild gunplay and the William Tell overture which sound no different in French than in English. The dialogue is something else again. Will the diligence (the stagecoach) be held up or will it not?

• — • — •

"J'ai eu une idee facheuse," declares Mr. Maynard in typical western dialect. "Je te la confiera—en secret. Allons rechercher les gars." Mr. M. has had a wild idea. He wants to roundup les gars, which is roughly translatable as the boys, the fellows, the gang.

His idea, it later develops, is simple et mathematique, namely that the chef de la bande, the head bandit, is working hand in glove with le banquier. Mr. Maynard's companion is suitably astonished. "Tu veux dire le banquier est le voleur?" he exclaims. "C'est difficile a imaginer."

The whole thing, as matter of fact, is pretty difficult to imagine. The French language, expressive as it is, is not at all adaptable to the chaps, the smoking guns and the general appearance of our western and especially of Ken Maynard. Any moment I expected Arthur Godfrey to appear and start spouting en Francaise.

The French, however, don't know the difference. They have always eaten up our westerns—in print, in films, and now on television. I don't know whether Hopalong has arrived here yet but he'll be very popular. The audience had now dwindled to four but all four were enthralled with Monsieur Maynard. I was not. It was as if I'd never left home.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

ACT AS IF YOU KNEW IT

YOUR only chance to make the contract may depend upon a particular key card being in the hand of a particular defender. When that is the case, the rubber player with a game at stake has no alternative. He must act exactly as if he knew the vital card is exactly where he has to find it. Failure to do that involves giving up his chance for the game.

Pass	3 NT

Bidding like South's on that minimum hand is justified in rubber bridge when you consider your opponents no better players of the cards than your own side. That deal would have been a pass-out, losing a game for North and South if the latter had not seen fit to do as he did. Later on he had to act as if he knew something which he did not know at all, simply because doing so constituted his sole hope of success.

East took the heart 4 lead with the K and returned the 9 to the A, the 2 then being won by the Q. Knowing West now had two established hearts, South saw that he couldn't let that worthy regain the lead. If West had the diamond A, he could not be shut out. So South had to proceed as if he knew East held that card. To minimize West's chance of getting the lead with a club, he led the 10 and sent it through to the J after West played low.

Striving desperately to give West the lead, East underled the diamond A with the 5. South came in with the K accompanied by his prayer that East held the A. Next came the club A and a return to his hand with the spade A. As he laid down the club K now, he hoped both defenders would have to follow suit. When they did, his game was sure. He cashed two more clubs and the dummy's spades to have ten tricks, one over game.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

C K K N, C K K N—M V K Y K B K H K Y L U Y K P Y
N U W B, O V U A A Y K U L V V K Y W B B P L K B J
V K U Y J U X U W B—Q P P Y K

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Les Aventures de Ken Maynard

PARIS—

It is a very tiny, though typical, liar, La Valiere, at 3 Buede Buci in the Latin Quarter and the barman would like to think that it is the only bar in Paris with a television set. But it isn't. There are a few others in Montmartre, though you'd have to look pretty hard to find them.

John Crosby

Still, a television set in a bar, so common in America, is so rare in Paris that La Voliere is a curiosity indeed. It is an inexpensive spot, frequented by Frenchmen with very little money in their pockets and, with a little stretching, a man at one end of the bar could shake hands with one at the other end. When we arrived, it was fairly crowded, which means perhaps 12 customers.

Television in France goes on at 9 p. m. till about 11. Just before 9, there was a stir of expectancy. But not for the television. The hour of 9 is the hour for dinner. Roughly half the customers arose, paid their checks and departed just two minutes before the set was turned on. We debated a moment as to whether it was the stomach or the prospect of television which drove these people away and decided it was a bit of both. The French patronize a bar only partly for drink, chiefly for conversation. Television is an intrusion and it is my guess that it will never become a part of French saloon life.

Finally, there arrives on the screen a picture, a 12 inch picture no better, I should say, and no worse than our own. It is a girl reading the program for the week, a tedious operation, even though she is a very pretty girl indeed. Before her there reposes a cat who sums up the French indifference to television. He flatly refuses to look at the camera. The reading of the program finally bores him so greatly that he rises haughtily, stretches and departs—just like the customers.

By this time there are, besides ourselves, only five patrons—three of them engrossed in television, two of them, a man and a woman, engrossed in each other. Comes the news, Journal Televise, a filmed operation. President Auriol presenting the Legion of Honor to war veterans and kissing each one heartily. French sports planes. A basketball game, of all things, an honest one, I am told.

Then there arrives what I had come all the way to France to see—"Les Aventures de Ken Maynard." A bit of wild gunplay and the William Tell overture which sound no different in French than in English. The dialogue is something else again. Will the diligence (the stagecoach) be held up or will it not?

• • •

"J'ai eu une idee facheuse," declares Mr. Maynard in typical western dialect. "Je te la confiera—en secret. Allons rechercher les gars." Mr. M. has had a wild idea. He wants to roundup les gars, which is roughly translatable as the boys, the fellows, the gang.

His idea, it later develops, is simple et mathematique, namely that the chef de la bande, the head bandit, is working hand in glove with le banquier. Mr. Maynard's companion is suitably astonished. "Tu veux dire le banquier est le voleur?" he exclaims. "C'est difficile a imaginer."

The whole thing, as matter of fact, is pretty difficult to imagine. The French language, expressive as it is, is not at all adaptable to the chaps, the smoking guns and the general appearance of our western and especially of Ken Maynard. Any moment I expected Arthur Godfrey to appear and start spouting en Francaise.

The French, however, don't know the difference. They have always eaten up our westerns—in print, in films, and now on television. I don't know whether Hopalong has arrived here yet but he'll be very popular. The audience had now dwindled to four but all four were enthralled with Monsieur Maynard. I was not. It was as if I'd never left home.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

ACT AS IF YOU KNEW IT

YOUR only chance to make the contract may depend upon a particular key card being in the hand of a particular defender. When that is the case, the rubber player with a game at stake has no alternative. He must act exactly as if he knew the vital card is exactly where he has to find it. Failure to do that involves giving up his chance for the game.

Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	1 NT	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 NT

Bidding like South's on that minimum hand is justified in rubber bridge when you consider your opponents no better players of the cards than your own side. That deal would have been a pass-out, losing a game for North and South if the latter had not seen fit to do as he did. Later on he had to act as if he knew something which he did not know at all, simply because doing so constituted his sole hope of success.

East took the heart 4 lead with the K and returned the 9 to the A, the 2 then being won by the Q. Knowing West now had two established hearts, South saw that he couldn't let that worthy regain the lead. If West had the diamond A, he could not be shut out. So South had to proceed as if he knew East held that card. To minimize West's chance of getting the lead with a club, he led the 10 and sent it through to the J after West played low.

Striving desperately to give West the lead, East underled the diamond A with the 5. South came in with the K accompanied by his prayer that East held the A. Next came the club A and a return to his hand with the spade A. As he laid down the club K now, he hoped both defenders would have to follow suit. When they did, his game was sure. He cashed two more clubs and the dummy's spades to have ten tricks, one over game.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

C K K N, C K K N—M V K Y K B K H K Y L U Y K P Y
N U W B, O V U A A Y K U L V V K Y W B B P L K B J
V K U Y J U X U W B—Q P P Y K

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: NATURE PAINTS THE BEST PART OF THE PICTURE, CARVES THE BEST PART OF THE STATUE—EMERSON.

Cards of Thanks

We are taking this means to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness during the death and bereavement of Harry D. Berry of Barton, Md.

We also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes and donated the use of their automobiles for the funeral.

The Family of the late Harry D. Berry.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Harry Vernall, who died May 25, 1950.

Some may think we have forgotten,
When, at times they see us smile;
But they do not know the heartaches
We suffer all the while
They say time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget
But time, so far, has only proved
How much we miss you yet.
The world may change from year to year;
Our lives from day to day;
But still the memory of you,
Shall never pass away.

Loving Wife, Sons & Grandchildren.

Cards of Thanks

We are taking this means to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness during the death and bereavement of Harry D. Berry of Barton, Md.

We also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes and donated the use of their automobiles for the funeral.

The Family of the late Harry D. Berry.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Harry Vernall, who died May 25, 1950.

Some may think we have forgotten,
When, at times they see us smile;
But they do not know the heartaches
We suffer all the while
They say time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget
But time, so far, has only proved
How much we miss you yet.
The world may change from year to year;
Our lives from day to day;
But still the memory of you,
Shall never pass away.

Loving Wife, Sons & Grandchildren.

Market Rebounds After Big Selling Drive Drops Prices

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—A terrific selling drive today knocked stock market prices down sharply, but strong buying support sparked a late recovery that regained a major portion of the loss.

At the worst part of the fall leaders were down as much as $6 a share with losses bunched in the $1-$3 range.

But at the close the minus signs seldom went to as much as $2 among leaders, and gains in a few major divisions were more than $2.

Rails, steels, motors, chemicals, oils, and rubbers were among the hardest hit sections, and it was in this broad alignment of issues that the recovery found staunch support.

Radio-television as a group and merchandising stocks displayed the most notable resistance to selling, and in the end stood well ahead of the remainder of the list.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 50 cents at $90.60 with the industrial component off 50 cents, rails off 40 cents (again at a new low for the year), and utilities off 30 cents.

Trading totaled 2,580,000 shares, the heaviest since Feb. 5. Yesterday the total came to only 1,540,000 shares.

A long list of 1,211 individual issues was drawn into the market, among the broadest lists of the year. The record stands at 1,260 issues traded June 27, 1950, at the beginning of the Korean war.

An exceedingly large number of new lows were touched on the fall—213—and only two new highs for the year were reached.

New York Central jumped rapidly between a gain and a loss through most of the day and closed up ⅛ at 17⅞, the most active issue in the list with sales of 48,200 shares.

Following were General Motors off ⅝ at 48, Baltimore & Ohio off ⅛ at 19⅛, U. S. Steel off ¾ at 40⅝, International Telephone up 1 at 15⅜, and Radio Corp. up ⅝ at 19⅛.

Some issues fell into the decline and didn't come out on the rebound. Among them were Carpenter Steel off 2¼ at 50¼, Newmont Mining 2½ at 101, Cotton Belt Railroad 15 at 290, Rohm & Haas 6½ at 123½, and Railroad Securities 6 at 55.

Position Of Treasury

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—The position of the Treasury May 22:

ORDER NISI

Alberta M. Llewellyn, adm., etc. vs. Alberta M. Llewellyn, et vir., No. 22,175 Equity, in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDERED this 23rd day of May, 1951, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, sitting in Equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by William J. Gunter, Trustee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 25th day of June, 1951, provided a copy of this Order be published in Allegany County once a week for three successive weeks before the 18th day of June, 1951.

The report states the amount of sale to be Three Thousand One Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($3,150.00).

JOSEPH E. BODEN, Clerk.

NOTICE TO PAVING CONTRACTORS

Sealed Proposals addressed to the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, and endorsed, "Proposal for Surfacing Roads in Constitution Park" will be received at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Cumberland, Maryland, on or before twevle o'clock noon, E.D.S.T., June 4, 1951, on which date they will be publicly opened and read.

The work consists of the resurfacing of certain roads in Constitution Park with black top paving material, said surface to be one inch thick after compression, together with the necessary tack coat. The bidder is asked to submit separate proposals as follows:

Resurfacing approximately 2,335 square yards—approximately 130 tons, 1" thick after compression, plus necessary tack coat.

Resurfacing approximately 2,950 square yards—approximately 164 tons, 1" thick after compression, plus necessary tack coat.

Each Proposal must be accompanied by a certified check drawn to the order of the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, in the sum of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars, which check will be forfeited as liquidated damages in case an award is made and the contract is not promptly and properly executed. The checks of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned after the contract is awarded.

The Mayor and City Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids, or to award all or any part of this work.

Market Rebounds After Big Selling Drive Drops Prices

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—A terrific selling drive today knocked stock market prices down sharply, but strong buying support sparked a late recovery that regained a major portion of the loss.

At the worst part of the fall leaders were down as much as $6 a share with losses bunched in the $1-$3 range.

But at the close the minus signs seldom went to as much as $2 among leaders, and gains in a few major divisions were more than $2.

Rails, steels, motors, chemicals, oils, and rubbers were among the hardest hit sections, and it was in this broad alignment of issues that the recovery found staunch support.

Radio-television as a group and merchandising stocks displayed the most notable resistance to selling, and in the end stood well ahead of the remainder of the list.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 50 cents at $90.60 with the industrial component off 50 cents, rails off 40 cents (again at a new low for the year), and utilities off 30 cents.

Trading totaled 2,580,000 shares, the heaviest since Feb. 5. Yesterday the total came to only 1,540,000 shares.

A long list of 1,211 individual issues was drawn into the market, among the broadest lists of the year. The record stands at 1,260 issues traded June 27, 1950, at the beginning of the Korean war.

An exceedingly large number of new lows were touched on the fall—213—and only two new highs for the year were reached.

New York Central jumped rapidly between a gain and a loss through most of the day and closed up ⅛ at 17⅞, the most active issue in the list with sales of 48,200 shares.

Following were General Motors off ⅝ at 48, Baltimore & Ohio off ⅛ at 19⅛, U. S. Steel off ¾ at 40⅝, International Telephone up 1 at 15⅝, and Radio Corp. up ⅝ at 19⅛.

Some issues fell into the decline and didn't come out on the rebound. Among them were Carpenter Steel off 2¼ at 50½, Newmont Mining 2½ at 101, Cotton Belt Railroad 15 at 290, Rohm & Haas 6½ at 123½, and Railroad Securities 6 at 55.

Position Of Treasury

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—The position of the Treasury May 22:

Net budget receipts, $343,903,615.14; budget expenditures, $210,666,911.25; cash balance, $6,660,225,998.38; customs receipts for month, $38,860,617.30; budget rcts fiscal yr July 1, $40,363,088,262.85; budget expenditures fiscal year, $37,067,836,903.40; budget surplus, $3,295,251,359.25; total debt, $254,769,320,418.93; increase over previous day, $12,235,706.22; gold assets, $2,755,410,077.45.

ORDER NISI

Alberta M. Llewellyn, adm., etc. vs. Alberta M. Llewellyn, et vir., No. 22,175 Equity, in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDERED this 23rd day of May, 1951, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, sitting in Equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by William J. Gunter, Trustee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 25th day of June, 1951, provided a copy of this Order be published in some newspaper published in Allegany County once a week for three successive weeks before the 18th day of June, 1951.

The report states the amount of sale to be Three Thousand One Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($3,150.00).

JOSEPH E. BODEN, Clerk.
May-N-25-June-N-1-8

NOTICE TO PAVING CONTRACTORS

Sealed Proposals addressed to the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, and endorsed, "Proposal for Surfacing Roads in Constitution Park" will be received at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Cumberland, Maryland, on or before twelve o'clock noon, E.D.S.T., June 4, 1951, on which date they will be publicly opened and read.

The work consists of the resurfacing of certain roads in Constitution Park with black top paving material, said surface to be one inch thick after compression, together with the necessary tack coat. The bidder is asked to submit separate proposals as follows:

Resurfacing approximately 2,335 square yards—approximately 130 tons, 1" thick after compression, plus necessary tack coat.

Resurfacing approximately 2,950 square yards—approximately 164 tons, 1" thick after compression, plus necessary tack coat.

Each Proposal must be accompanied by a certified check drawn to the order of the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, in the sum of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars, which check will be forfeited as liquidated damages in case an award is made and the contract is not promptly and properly executed. The checks of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned after the contract is awarded.

The Mayor and City Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids, or to award all or any part of this work.

NOTICE TO PAVING
CONTRACTORS

Sealed Proposals addressed to the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, and endorsed, "Proposal for Flood Control street repaving in the City of Cumberland" will be received at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Cumberland, Maryland, on or before twelve o'clock noon, E. D. S. T., June 4, 1951, on which date they will be publicly opened and read.

The work consists of certain items of street pavement, sidewalks, curbs and appurtenances, including macadam base course, concrete pavement and bituminous plant mixed pavement incident to the restoration of street surfaces at various locations throughout the City of Cumberland in connection with the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Protection Project, as directed by the Flood Control Liaison Engineer. Bids shall be submitted on standard forms which will be available at the office of Mrs. Lucile Roeder, Commissioner of Streets & Public Property, City Hall, and which forms will list all necessary information for bidding.

The successful bidder will be required to enter into a contract with the City, and a bond in the amount of Twenty Thousand ($20,000.00) Dollars will be required for the faithful performance thereof.

Each Proposal must be accompanied by a certified check drawn to the order of the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, in the sum of Five Hundred ($500.00) Dollars, which check will be forfeited as liquidated damages in case an award is made and the contract and bond are not promptly and properly executed. The checks of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned after the contract is awarded.

The Mayor and City Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Celanese Plant To Remain In City, Blancke Declares

Chamber Told Amcelle, City Are Partners

President Recounts Many Joint Benefits

Celanese has no intention of leaving Cumberland.

Scotching what he termed a pernicious rumor, Harold Blancke, president of the Celanese Corporation of America, declared in a speech before the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce that the roots of Celanese are deep in this city.

The company and the community, he said, will march up the long road of the future together.

Blancke, head of the firm founded in this city 33 years ago, spoke on "Cumberland and Celanese — partners in a Business Enterprise" at the meeting attended by some 150 leaders of the area.

His speech follows:

"The title of our remarks to the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce this evening — 'Cumberland And Celanese — Partners In A Business Enterprise' — was chosen after a great deal of thought. The innermost kernal of truth in the established fact of our co-existence is that the people of Cumberland are in full partnership with a large business venture. This community of Cumberland and its out-lying towns have been partners with and the vital core of this growing Company for twenty-seven years — long enough to experience all the benefits and vicissitudes of intimate companionship, all the annoyances and misunderstandings of family life, the joys and prosperity resulting from successful partnership.

"The subject which concerns me the most at present is that of mutual understanding. Sometimes I wonder if we understand each other as well as we should. I shall speak to you as the conscience of the Company and discuss with you, the members of the Chamber of Commerce representing the civic conscience of Cumberland, the Company's point of view, its aspirations, policies, and hopes for perfect understanding for our mutual benefit.

Mutual Benefits

"It is probably natural for me to wish to recount, at the beginning of this talk, some of the mutual benefits which we have shared.

"In the first place, we all prospered because the Company has prospered. It is a growing Company in a dynamic growth industry. The chemical fiber industry is one of the most promising parts of the chemical industry and we consider cellulose acetate one of the most satisfactory of the fibers. It has achieved a basic position in the great textile market. This has occurred because of the fiber's inherent qualities which have made it possible for people to own more and better clothing at better values.

"From a material point of view, the Company quickly became the life blood of Cumberland as the coal mining industry, which was here originally, slowly became marginal and diminished in importance and failed to provide sufficient support to maintain the people. How many of us are aware that since 1924 the Company, in wages and salaries alone, has paid the people of Cumberland nearly $300,000,000? By the end of this year it should amount to over $300,000,000, for the annual payroll alone is now running over $17,000,000 a year. You recently saw in one of our community advertisements, published in the local papers as part of our effort to improve mutual understanding and appreciation of each other, an analysis of the sum of about $21,000,000 which the Company now pays into this area each year.

"You may recall that it showed the Company spends over $1,500,000 for coal purchased locally, nearly $1,125,000 for water, gas, electricity and telephones, well over $300,000 for county taxes, over $350,000 for hospital and medical services for employees and their families covered by the Celanese Group Insurance program, and over $435,000 for small miscellaneous purchases, such as lumber, hardware, paper, gasoline, foodstuffs, etc.

Rapid Growth

"In the twenty-six years of our partnership at the end of 1950 the population of Cumberland had increased 10,000; the number of high school students had increased 170% from 800 to over 2,100, and bank deposits had increased 230% from some $15,000,000 to more than $50,000,000. In 1923 there were six houses between the plant and Cumberland. There were a few dozen at Cresaptown. There was no Potomac Park. There are now flourishing communities of considerable size. Obviously, the community is better off than it has ever been before.

"I am well aware that considerable unemployment exists in Cumberland. I am also aware that the Company is held responsible for it. While we warned of the dangers ahead I regret that I must state, in all candor, my opinion that the Company has failed to impress the business community with the truth of the situation in order that the local business men and civic leaders might explain the conditions of those presumably less able to understand the economic facts of life and to plan for new employment.

Celanese Officials Greeted

False Security Cited

"Possibly the many years of steady employment at better-than-average wages caused our partners to take the Company for granted, to expect paternalistic support which lulled them into a sense of false security. It is true that the Amcelle plant grew too big, employed too large a segment of the population for the good of the community. When basic economic change affected the Company's course of development there was a grave danger that the Company could not continue to take such a disproportionate part in the support of the community. It is not good for the community nor for a business enterprise to become so completely dependent upon each other.

"Unfortunately for Cumberland, this disproportionate dependence on one enterprise was increased by the loss of two glass factories, the tinplate mill, and the leather plant without very much being done to restore the desirable diversity of employment represented by these enterprises.

"For a time during the last war the Company employed about 12,500 people in the local plant. That was out of all reason with respect to the safety of the economic life in Cumberland. Much of this employment was of a war-time nature. Some of it was just plain unprofitable. Certain of our textile operations in Cumberland could not compete with the same type of textile operations elsewhere. Plainly speaking, the wages and work-loads for those particular parts of the business were out of line. Since management is responsible for the safety of the money invested in a company by the public, including plain people like us, its clear duty is to protect the investment by closing down or moving unprofitable operations lest the investment of people's savings, having become unproductive, be lost altogether.

"Today, Celanese employs some 5,200 people in this area. As presently operated, it is a healthy organization. It probably provides indirect employment to an additional 7,500 — 10,000 people. It is the largest employer and the most important economic force in the life of the community. All of us have a right to expect it to maintain this important partnership as now constituted. We do not expect it or desire it to diminish in importance.

Modernization Outlined

"Since the end of the war the Company has spent $23,000,000 to modernize the plant and its equipment and make it as efficient as our other plants. We shall continue to do our part to keep this great factory competitive. Right now, this year, we are spending an additional $4,500,000 to improve the plant by installing additional air conditioning. This will improve the cleanliness of the yarn and also make the factory a more comfortable place in which to work. This newest expenditure should improve quality and reduce costs by reducing the percentage of second quality, soiled yarn. You can always depend upon Celanese Corporation of America to do its part to keep this great plant in Cumberland in a healthy condition, to keep it a vital, strong element in the community.

"Celanese continues to occupy as important a place in the economic and business life of Cumberland as it should. Unthinking persons are inclined to say that a big company should grow even bigger and employ everybody. Others equally unenlightened will say that a big company doesn't want other businesses near it because they would compete for labor and drive wages up. Thinking people recognize that a community should have many different types of business for its support. We live in a complex society and for a generation have been subjected to the false and pernicious propaganda of the socialists about the capitalist system, the system of competitive enterprise which alone sustains our liberties to live as free men and self-supporting, self-respecting citizens. We must endeavor to keep our economic thinking straight, although at times it may be difficult to do so.

City Needs Industries

"Cumberland's problem is unemployment and poor publicity. Now, the amount of unemployment in Cumberland must be reduced. It can best be reduced by attracting other industries into Cumberland. Celanese Corporation wants the people of Cumberland to have the diversified industry it needs.

"We contribute money to the Cumberland and Alleghany Industrial Promotion Company. Our manager, Mr. Harry Givens, gives time and work to the project. We encourage people who come to us to establish businesses in Cumberland. Thus far, the effort hasn't been very successful. But it will be if we persevere and act intelligently. We hear people say, "What's the matter with Cumberland? Why don't other companies set up plants there?

"We say, There's nothing the matter with Cumberland. We get along nicely now. There's plenty of room for other businesses. There are plenty of people able and willing to turn out good work to meet competition from any other decent place.

"We are told, There seems to be something wrong with the people there. Don't you have a lot of labor trouble? We hear a lot about it in the papers.

"We say, Today our labor relations were never better and we expect them to remain that way. In the past, long ago, we had troubles when a subversive, communistic group got partial control of the local union, but the union cleaned house and for years has had local officers who exercised reason. Moreover, we're forced to admit that part of the trouble was our fault, too. Management is composed of human beings also and sometimes fails to use common sense. Today the people in charge of our relations with the Unions are realistic men who came up through the ranks themselves and we expect a long era of industrial peace. As for adverse publicity, none of us can control that if we really deserve it. Moreover, none of us can control the selfish attitude of some publicists who are always ready to disturb industrial dislocations in order to sprawl across the attention of the public.

Must Promote City

"Ladies and gentlemen, for the sake of our mutual welfare, the citizens of Cumberland and Celanese Corporation must continue in our efforts to diversify our business life here and conduct ourselves in a manner calculated to show our best side to prospective neighbors. We must promote Cumberland.

"I also want to talk about the continued growth of Celanese Corporation. From the humble beginnings in the former cornfield west of town, the Company multiplied until today it owns and operates twelve plants in the United States, three in foreign countries, and is building five more outside the United States. Lest some think that the Company should have tried to build all this great production in Cumberland, let me remind you of limitations in addition to what I have just said about the danger of a community being too dependent upon a single enterprise.

"The most serious physical limitation to expansion beyond present size in Cumberland is the supply of water. The Amcelle plant is largely dependent upon an ample supply of Cumberland city water. It is very expensive from an industrial point of view and it would not be economical to try to expand that supply. We cannot use river water without disastrous effects on the quality of the product, largely due to the quality of the river water, to say nothing of pollution by the time it reaches the plant. When a drought curtails the supply of city water available to the plant, as occurred a few years ago, and river water must be used, the resulting poorer quality of the cellulose acetate causes immediate loss of business to competitors.

Built Other Plants

"So the Company built large plants, the size of Amcelle, in Virginia and South Carolina. Since these plants have now reached or are about to reach optimum size, it will be necessary to start construction of additional plants in other locations soon. We also have built and will continue to build plants outside the United States. The Company can better serve the people of the world by establishing plants in their own countries than by trying to export from the United States. As a mater of fact, tariffs, artificial trade barriers, and world-wide shortages of our basic raw materials make any other method of expansion impossible. All this growth, I emphasize, is due to the excellence of cellulose acetate as a chemical fiber and a plastic, as a basic fiber in a dynamic industry which is destined to grow more and more in importance as the years pass because it has and continues to help make possible better clothing at better

Collett Improving

The condition of Armand J. Collett was reported as "slightly improved" late last night by attaches of Miners Hospital, Frostburg, where he was admitted early Monday morning. The 25-year-old Kelly chemist, of Braddock Road, was critically injured in a highway accident near Guntertown.

License Issued

A beer, wine and liquor license was issued yesterday by the Allegany County Liquor Control Board to Joseph K. Burns for premises at 47 Main Street, Westernport.

Streets Dept. Will Purchase Bucket Loader

Designed To Speed Up Construction Work

A bucket loader to be purchased for the Department of Streets and Public Property will enable the department to use its "snow loader" 12 months out of the year.

The Mayor and Council this week referred to Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of Streets and Public Property, a bid of $2,180 for the equipment.

The loader, designed to be used with the present snow loader, consists of a chain operated series of buckets to be used in loading sand, gravel, crushed stone, cinders or dirt, with a boom to direct the materials into waiting trucks.

It is similar in operation to the snow loader but instead of light paddles, is equipped with heavy duty steel buckets.

Toothed spirals 30 inches in diameter and six feet, six inches wide feed the material to be loaded into the buckets.

The equipment was designed as an economical and prcatical unit for handling road materials.

Use of the equipment will speed up the department's construction work by virtually eliminating the need for hand loading of materials.

Royalty Gets Crown Despite Her Measles

North End Pageant Goes On Schedule

Fate at first seemed to decree otherwise but 10-year-old Mary Ethel Knieriem received her crown as junior May Queen at the North End Playground Association's Pageant last night despite rain and the measles.

The coronation was originally scheduled for Wednesday night but was postponed one day because of inclement weather. Then Mary Ethel came down with the measles yesterday and it seemed she would have to miss the program.

But with permission of her doctor Mary Ethel attended the coronation and pageant in an isolated truck and Adrian Mackert substituted for her in the line of procession, receiving the loving cup and crown from Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property. Adrian then presented Mary Ethel with the crown and cup through the window of the truck and the little girl watched the remainder of the program from the vehicle.

Leona Michaels, 16, senior queen, was also crowned and boy winners of the recent membership drive were awarded athletic prizes by Mrs. Roeder. A square dance for the public ended the festivities.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The King and Queen of the Cresaptown Junior High School's 17th annual May Health Day Festival will be crowned this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the school. Miss Margaret Morrissey will crown James Moore, Jr., and Doris Clayton to reign at the festivities.

Algonquin Forest No. 140, Tall Cedars of Lebanon will hold their regular meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the Loyal Order of Moose Home, Beall Street.

Equity Suits Filed

Two equity suits were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bills of complaint were titled Charlotte Kesler vs John I. Kesler and Arthur Nester vs. Julia Nester.

Faith In Future Of Celanese Is Expressed By President Of Firm

Blancke Addresses Meeting Of Chamber

Faith in the future of the Celanese Corporation of America, which began in this city 33 years ago, was expressed last night by Harold Blancke, president of the giant textile, plastics and chemical firm.

In response to a query by Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., on prospects for the future development, the Celanese official said the organization is a healthy one.

"When you have a healthy organization", he added, "there is no reason why such an organization should not grow."

Blancke added it is impossible to say in what direction the growth might occur.

The statement was made following Blancke's address before the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

The other question asked from the floor was whether, in his opinion, "we are still suffering from poor publicity?"

Blancke said tremendous progress has been made and that publicity is quite satisfactory now. Many times in the past, he added, it was "not based on fact".

Cumberland, he added, must continually see that there is no bad publicity. It is going in the right direction, he concluded, "but there's a long row to hoe."

Assurance that the future water problems of the Amcelle plant are in the process of being solved was expressed by Owen E. Hitchins, chairman of the Upper Potomac River Commission.

Hitchins said the Savage River Dam, which goes into operation this year, will assure adequate water supplies throughout the year for the plant.

Some 250 members of the Chamber and their guests attended the dinner.

Joseph M. Naughton, president of the Chamber, presided and Rev. H. M. Richardson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, gave the invocation.

Among the guests were E. N. Cleaves and Fred T. Small, Celanese vice presidents; H. C. Givens, Jr., Amcelle plant manager; Rep. J. Glenn Beall, the Mayor and Council of Cumberland and the Board of Allegany County Commissioners.

Siding Argument Cited In Suits

A $1,000 breach of contract suit and a $1,500 assault suit, both stemming from a disagreement over the placing of composition siding on a house near Flintstone, were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Allan Krauss and Ben Abramson, trading as Alben Homecraft Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., filed suit through Attorney James Alfred Avirett yesterday against Ellery D. Smith and his wife, charging that the defendants signed a contract April 2 to have inselbric placed on their house and then ordered the workmen away after work already had started on the house near Flintstone. This suit sought $1,000 damages.

The second suit, also filed by Attorney Avirett, listed Alan Turner as plaintiff and Smith as defendant. Avirett said that Turner was a salesman for the Alben Homecraft Company. This suit, which seeks $1,500 damages, charges that on April 6, when work was started on the siding project, Smith struck Turner in the mouth with his fist, causing three upper front teeth to be broken off at the roots. Turner, through his attorney, contended he was compelled to undergo oral surgery, to have temporary and permanent partial plates made and was unable to work as a salesman for two weeks.

Korean War Dead Are Placed On Honor Roll Here

The names of four Allegany County servicemen who paid the supreme sacrifice in Korean service have been placed upon the Allegany County Honor Roll in City Hall.

They are James W. Rafferty, Frostburg; Alton McDonald and Donald L. Bishop, both of this city, and Isaac M. Bradburn, Lonaconing.

Still to be placed on the roll is the name of Ralph E. Wilson, Mt. Savage.

Thomas F. Conlon, chairman of the Honor Roll committee, asked yesterday that the names of those who gave their lives in Korean service since June 24, 1950, be sent to the committee so they may be placed on the honor roll. He added the information may also be submitted by calling Cumberland 190.

Accident Report Given By Police

Seventeen accidents, including one fatility and injuries to nine persons, occurred in Allegany County last month. According to the Traffic Collision Statistical Report of the Maryland State Police the number of property damage accidents was 11.

A total of 179 arrests was made and 197 warnings issued to motorists. On a day by day basis the largest number of arrests was made on Saturdays with the lowest on Thursdays.

The hour of the day when most arrests were made was between 11 p. m. and 11:59 p. m. and the least arrests in the early morning hours. According to statistics the heaviest number of arrests and warnings come between the hours of 7 p. m. and midnight.

The largest number of violations involved in mishaps during April was due to reckless driving, with failure to obey traffic control a close second.

Judge To Resentence Black Here Today

Robert H. Black, 17, Baltimore, who has been held in Allegany County jail here since he was sentenced earlier this month to the Maryland Reformatory for Males for a year for unauthorized use of an automobile stolen from a Frostburg man, will be returned to Trial Magistrates Court at 10:30 a. m. this morning for resentencing, Judge J. Milton Dick said yesterday.

An investigation of facts pertinent to the case was made by Thomas P. McCarthy, deputy chief probation officer of the Probation Department of Supreme Bench of Baltimore City, and the disclosure of additional information in the case warranted the move, Dick said.

Wood Products Firm To Expand Operations Here

Spicer, Fahey To Make Knife Handles

The manufacture of wood handles, which has been a minor industry here for several decades, will be accelerated within the next month.

Two local men, Stanley F. Spicer, 17 Lamont Street, and Richard E. Fahey, 1411 Olive Avenue, have secured a permit to build a one story building, 25 by 50 feet, on Olive Avenue, for the work.

Spicer said they hope to have the building up and be ready for operation within the next 30 days.

Spicer and Fahey have been affiliated with the manufacture of handles and other wood products since they began to work at the James Nixon firm in the rear of Shriver Avenue some 20 years ago.

Spicer, who was superintendent when the firm employed some 65 men in 1944, revived the work about two years ago, making handles in the cellar of his home, and recently with Fahey, has been operating a small shop at the rear of Bowen Street.

At present, the men are manufacturing cutlery handles of American walnut, beechwood and rosewood and Concola wood from Brazil.

They said they are at present selling the handles to firms in New York, Ohio and Chicago and that cutlery firms have asked increased quotas.

The three workers employed at present will be increased to six when the building is completed.

Spicer said the local firm is making a product here, with machinery designed and made locally, which is able to meet the competition of completely automatic shapers.

Building Permits Show Decline

Building permits in Cumberland during April took a noticeable drop from the same period last year. In the past month $77,375 was shown as compared to $108,250 in 1950. In the first quarter period of 1951, $323,935 was listed while in April of last year $341,395 was noted.

The report of the Research Department of the Federal Reserve Bank, Richmond, shows the sharpest drop in Frederick. During 1950 $193,725 was noted while in the same period of this year $47,015 was shown.

Salisbury figures show a definite increase with a $354,874 being shown last month in comparison to $135,852 in the same period last year. The first four month's figure for this year in Salisbury was $722,478 as compared to $415,592. In Frederick the figure for the first four months of 1951 shows the amount of $533,540, a sharp drop from $1,138,875 in the similar period last year.

During last month in Hagerstown $281,015 in building permits was shown as compared to $267,280 in 1950. The first four months figure in 1950 was $660,870 as compared to $643,185 in the past four months.

WEATHER

The sun shone brightly yesterday although the air was a little chilly. Many lawn mowers were oiled up and put into action by the more eager residents of the Queen City. Constitution Park weather station reported a high of 70 degrees and a low of 50, with temperature of 63 at 8:35 o'clock last night. Dewpoint was 41.3 and humidity 43.5 percent. Cumberlanders are promised fair and warmer weather today by the forecaster.

Scotching what he termed a pernicious rumor, Harold Blancke, president of the Celanese Corporation of America, declared in a speech before the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce that the roots of Celanese are deep in this city.

The company and the community, he said, will march up the long road of the future together.

Blancke, head of the firm founded in this city 33 years ago, spoke on "Cumberland and Celanese — partners in a Business Enterprise" at the meeting attended by some 150 leaders of the area.

His speech follows:

"The title of our remarks to the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce this evening — 'Cumberland And Celanese — Partners In A Business Enterprise' — was chosen after a great deal of thought. The innermost kernal of truth in the established fact of our co-existence is that the people of Cumberland are in full partnership with a large business venture. This community of Cumberland and its out-lying towns have been partners with and the vital core of this growing Company for twenty-seven years — long enough to experience all the benefits and vicissitudes of intimate companionship, all the annoyances and misunderstandings of family life, the joys and prosperity resulting from successful partnership.

"The subject which concerns me the most at present is that of mutual understanding. Sometimes I wonder if we understand each other as well as we should. I shall speak to you as the conscience of the Company and discuss with you, the members of the Chamber of Commerce representing the civic conscience of Cumberland, the Company's point of view, its aspirations, policies, and hopes for perfect understanding for our mutual benefit.

Mutual Benefits

"It is probably natural for me to wish to recount, at the beginning of this talk, some of the mutual benefits which we have shared.

"In the first place, we all prospered because the Company has prospered. It is a growing Company in a dynamic growth industry. The chemical fiber industry is one of the most promising parts of the chemical industry and we consider cellulose acetate one of the most satisfactory of the fibers. It has achieved a basic position in the great textile market. This has occurred because of the fiber's inherent qualities which have made it possible for people to own more and better clothing at better values.

"From a material point of view, the Company quickly became the life blood of Cumberland as the coal mining industry, which was here originally, slowly became marginal and diminished in importance and failed to provide sufficient support to maintain the people. How many of us are aware that since 1924 the Company, in wages and salaries alone, has paid the people of Cumberland nearly $300,000,000? By the end of this year it should amount to over $300,000,000, for the annual payroll alone is now running over $17,000,000 a year. You recently saw in one of our community advertisements, published in the local papers as part of our effort to improve mutual understanding and appreciation of each other, an analysis of the sum of about $21,000,000 which the Company now pays into this area each year.

"You may recall that it showed the Company spends over $1,500,000 for coal purchased locally, nearly $1,125,000 for water, gas, electricity and telephones, well over $300,000 for county taxes, over $350,000 for hospital and medical services for employees and their families covered by the Celanese Group Insurance program, and over $435,000 for small miscellaneous purchases, such as lumber, hardware, paper, gasoline, foodstuffs, etc.

Rapid Growth

"In the twenty-six years of our partnership at the end of 1950 the population of Cumberland had increased 10,000; the number of high school students had increased 170% from 800 to over 2,100, and bank deposits had increased 230% from some $15,000,000 to more than $50,000,000. In 1923 there were six houses between the plant and Cumberland. There were a few dozen at Cresaptown. There was no Potomac Park. There are now flourishing communities of considerable size. Obviously, the community is better off than it has ever been before.

"I am well aware that considerable unemployment exists in Cumberland. I am also aware that the Company is held responsible for it. While we warned of the dangers ahead I regret that I must state, in all candor, my opinion that the Company has failed to impress the business community with the truth of the situation in order that the local business men and civic leaders might explain the conditions of those presumably less able to understand the economic facts of life and to plan for new employment.

False Security Cited

"Possibly the many years of steady employment at better-than-average wages caused our partners to take the Company for granted, to expect paternalistic support which lulled them into a sense of false security. It is true that the Amcelle plant grew too big, employed too large a segment of the population for the good of the community. When basic economic change affected the Company's course of development there was a grave danger that the Company could not continue to take such a disproportionate part in the support of the community. It is not good for the community nor for a business enterprise to become so completely dependent upon each other.

"Unfortunately for Cumberland, this disproportionate dependence on one enterprise was increased by the loss of two glass factories, the tin-plate mill, and the leather plant without very much being done to restore the desirable diversity of employment represented by these enterprises.

"For a time during the last war the Company employed about 12,500 people in the local plant. That was out of all reason with respect to the safety of the economic life in Cumberland. Much of this employment was of a war-time nature. Some of it was just plain unprofitable. Certain of our textile operations in Cumberland could not compete with the same type of textile operations elsewhere. Plainly speaking, the wages and work-loads for those particular parts of the business were out of line. Since management is responsible for the safety of the money invested in a company by the public, including plain people like us, its clear duty is to protect the investment by closing down or moving unprofitable operations lest the investment of people's savings, having become unproductive, be lost altogether.

"Today, Celanese employs some 5,200 people in this area. As presently operated, it is a healthy organization. It probably provides indirect employment to an additional 7,500 — 10,000 people. It is the largest employer and the most important economic force in the life of the community. All of us have a right to expect it to maintain this important partnership as now constituted. We do not expect it or desire it to diminish in importance.

Modernization Outlined

"Since the end of the war the Company has spent $23,000,000 to modernize the plant and its equipment and make it as efficient as our other plants. We shall continue to do our part to keep this great factory competitive. Right now, this year, we are spending an additional $4,500,000 to improve the plant by installing additional air conditioning. This will improve the cleanliness of the yarn and also make the factory a more comfortable place in which to work. This newest expenditure should improve quality and reduce costs by reducing the percentage of second quality, soiled yarn. You can always depend upon Celanese Corporation of America to do its part to keep this great plant in Cumberland in a healthy condition, to keep it a vital, strong element in the community.

"Celanese continues to occupy as important a place in the economic and business life of Cumberland as it should. Unthinking persons are inclined to say that a big company should grow even bigger and employ everybody. Others equally unenlightened will say that a big company doesn't want other businesses near it because they would compete for labor and drive wages up. Thinking people recognize that a community should have many different types of business for its support. We live in a complex society and for a generation have been subjected to the false and pernicious propaganda of the socialists about the capitalist system, the system of competitive enterprise which alone sustains our liberties to live as free men and self-supporting, self-respecting citizens. We must endeavor to keep our economic thinking straight, although at times it may be difficult to do so.

City Needs Industries

"Cumberland's problem is unemployment and poor publicity. Now, the amount of unemployment in Cumberland must be reduced. It can best be reduced by attracting other industries into Cumberland. Celanese Corporation wants the people of Cumberland to have the diversified industry it needs.

"We contribute money to the Cumberland and Alleghany Industrial Promotion Company. Our manager, Mr. Harry Givens, gives time and work to the project. We encourage people who come to us to establish businesses in Cumberland. Thus far, the effort hasn't been very successful. But it will be if we persevere and act intelligently. We hear people say, "What's the matter with Cumberland? Why don't other companies set up plants there?

"We say, There's nothing the matter with Cumberland. We get along nicely now. There's plenty of room for other businesses. There are plenty of people able and willing to turn out good work to meet competition from any other decent place.

"We are told, There seems to be something wrong with the people there. Don't you have a lot of labor trouble? We hear a lot about it in the papers.

"We say, Today our labor relations were never better and we expect them to remain that way. In the past, long ago, we had troubles when a subversive, communistic group got partial control of the local union, but the union cleaned house and for years has had local officers who exercised reason. Moreover, we're forced to admit that part of the trouble was our fault, too. Management is composed of human beings also and sometimes fails to use common sense. Today the people in charge of our relations with the Unions are realistic men who came up through the ranks themselves and we expect a long era of industrial peace. As for adverse publicity, none of us can control that if we really deserve it. Moreover, none of us can control the selfish attitude of some publicists who are always ready to disturb industrial dislocations in order to sprawl across the attention of the public.

Must Promote City

"Ladies and gentlemen, for the sake of our mutual welfare, the citizens of Cumberland and Celanese Corporation must continue in our efforts to diversify our business life here and conduct ourselves in a manner calculated to show our best side to prospective neighbors. We must promote Cumberland.

"I also want to talk about the continued growth of Celanese Corporation. From the humble beginnings in the former cornfield west of town, the Company multiplied until today it owns and operates twelve plants in the United States, three in foreign countries, and is building five more outside the United States. Lest some think that the Company should have tried to build all this great production in Cumberland, let me remind you of limitations in addition to what I have just said about the danger of a community being too dependent upon a single enterprise.

"The most serious physical limitation to expansion beyond present size in Cumberland is the supply of water. The Amcelle plant is largely dependent upon an ample supply of Cumberland city water. It is very expensive from an industrial point of view and it would not be economical to try to expand that supply. We cannot use river water without disastrous effects on the quality of the product, largely due to the quality of the river water, to say nothing of pollution by the time it reaches the plant. When a drought curtails the supply of city water available to the plant, as occurred a few years ago, and river water must be used, the resulting poorer quality of the cellulose acetate causes immediate loss of business to competitors.

Built Other Plants

"So the Company built large plants, the size of Amcelle, in Virginia and South Carolina. Since these plants have now reached or are about to reach optimum size, it will be necessary to start construction of additional plants in other locations soon. We also have built and will continue to build plants outside the United States. The Company can better serve the people of the world by establishing plants in their own countries than by trying to export from the United States. As a mater of fact, tariffs, artificial trade barriers, and world-wide shortages of our basic raw materials make any other method of expansion impossible. All this growth, I emphasize, is due to the excellence of cellulose acetate as a chemical fiber and a plastic, as a basic fiber in a dynamic industry which is destined to grow more and more in importance as the years pass because it has and continues to help make possible better clothing at better

Collett Improving

The condition of Armand J. Collett was reported as "slightly improved" late last night by attaches of Miners Hospital, Frostburg, where he was admitted early Monday morning. The 25-year-old Kelly chemist, of Braddock Road, was critically injured in a highway accident near Guntertown.

License Issued

A beer, wine and liquor license was issued yesterday by the Allegany County Liquor Control Board to Joseph K. Burns for premises at 47 Main Street, Westernport.

Streets Dept. Will Purchase Bucket Loader

Designed To Speed Up Construction Work

A bucket loader to be purchased for the Department of Streets and Public Property will enable the department to use its "snow loader" 12 months out of the year.

The Mayor and Council this week referred to Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of Streets and Public Property, a bid of $2,180 for the equipment.

The loader, designed to be used with the present snow loader, consists of a chain operated series of buckets to be used in loading sand, gravel, crushed stone, cinders or dirt, with a boom to direct the materials into waiting trucks.

It is similar in operation to the snow loader but instead of light paddles, is equipped with heavy duty steel buckets.

Toothed spirals 30 inches in diameter and six feet, six inches wide feed the material to be loaded into the buckets.

The equipment was designed as an economical and prcatical unit for handling road materials.

Use of the equipment will speed up the department's construction work by virtually eliminating the need for hand loading of materials.

Royalty Gets Crown Despite Her Measles

North End Pageant Goes On Schedule

Fate at first seemed to decree otherwise but 10-year-old Mary Ethel Knieriem received her crown as junior May Queen at the North End Playground Association's Pageant last night despite rain and the measles.

The coronation was originally scheduled for Wednesday night but was postponed one day because of inclement weather. Then Mary Ethel came down with the measles yesterday and it seemed she would have to miss the program.

But with permission of her doctor Mary Ethel attended the coronation and pageant in an isolated truck and Adrian Mackert substituted for her in the line of procession, receiving the loving cup and crown from Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property. Adrian then presented Mary Ethel with the crown and cup through the window of the truck and the little girl watched the remainder of the program from the vehicle.

Leona Michaels, 16, senior queen, was also crowned and boy winners of the recent membership drive were awarded athletic prizes by Mrs. Roeder. A square dance for the public ended the festivities.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The King and Queen of the Cresaptown Junior High School's 17th annual May Health Day Festival will be crowned this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the school. Miss Margaret Morrissey will crown James Moore, Jr., and Doris Clayton to reign at the festivities.

Algonquin Forest No. 140, Tall Cedars of Lebanon will hold their regular meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the Loyal Order of Moose Home, Beall Street.

Equity Suits Filed

Two equity suits were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bills of complaint were titled Charlotte Kesler vs John I. Kesler and Arthur Nester vs. Julia Nester.

Faith In Future Of Celanese Is Expressed By President Of Firm

Blancke Addresses Meeting Of Chamber

Faith in the future of the Celanese Corporation of America, which began in this city 33 years ago, was expressed last night by Harold Blancke, president of the giant textile, plastics and chemical firm.

In response to a query by Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., on prospects for the future development, the Celanese official said the organization is a healthy one.

"When you have a healthy organization", he added, "there is no reason why such an organization should not grow."

Blancke added it is impossible to say in what direction the growth might occur.

The statement was made following Blancke's address before the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

The other question asked from the floor was whether, in his opinion, "we are still suffering from poor publicity?"

Blancke said tremendous progress has been made and that publicity is quite satisfactory now. Many times in the past, he added, it was "not based on fact".

Cumberland, he added, must continually see that there is no bad publicity. It is going in the right direction, he concluded, "but there's a long row to hoe."

Assurance that the future water problems of the Amcelle plant are in the process of being solved was expressed by Owen E. Hitchins, chairman of the Upper Potomac River Commission.

Hitchins said the Savage River Dam, which goes into operation this year, will assure adequate water supplies throughout the year for the plant.

Some 250 members of the Chamber and their guests attended the dinner.

Joseph M. Naughton, president of the Chamber, presided and Rev. H. M. Richardson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, gave the invocation.

Among the guests were E. N. Cleaves and Fred T. Small, Celanese vice presidents; H. C. Givens, Jr., Amcelle plant manager; Rep. J. Glenn Beall, the Mayor and Council of Cumberland and the Board of Allegany County Commissioners.

Siding Argument Cited In Suits

A $1,000 breach of contract suit and a $1,500 assault suit, both stemming from a disagreement over the placing of composition siding on a house near Flintstone, were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Allan Krauss and Ben Abramson, trading as Alben Homecraft Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., filed suit through Attorney James Alfred Avirett yesterday against Ellery D. Smith and his wife, charging that the defendants signed a contract April 2 to have inselbric placed on their house and then ordered the workmen away after work already had started on the house near Flintstone. This suit sought $1,000 damages.

The second suit, also filed by Attorney Avirett, listed Alan Turner as plaintiff and Smith as defendant. Avirett said that Turner was a salesman for the Alben Homecraft Company. This suit, which seeks $1,500 damages, charges that on April 6, when work was started on the siding project, Smith struck Turner in the mouth with his fist, causing three upper front teeth to be broken off at the roots. Turner, through his attorney, contended he was compelled to undergo oral surgery, to have temporary and permanent partial plates made and was unable to work as a salesman for two weeks.

Korean War Dead Are Placed On Honor Roll Here

The names of four Allegany County servicemen who paid the supreme sacrifice in Korean service have been placed upon the Allegany County Honor Roll in City Hall.

They are James W. Rafferty, Frostburg; Alton McDonald and Donald L. Bishop, both of this city, and Isaac M. Bradburn, Lonaconing.

Still to be placed on the roll is the name of Ralph E. Wilson, Mt. Savage.

Thomas F. Conlon, chairman of the Honor Roll committee, asked yesterday that the names of those who gave their lives in Korean service since June 24, 1950, be sent to the committee so they may be placed on the honor roll. He added the information may also be submitted by calling Cumberland 190.

Accident Report Given By Police

Seventeen accidents, including one fatility and injuries to nine persons, occurred in Allegany County last month. According to the Traffic Collision Statistical Report of the Maryland State Police the number of property damage accidents was 11.

A total of 179 arrests was made and 197 warnings issued to motorists. On a day by day basis the largest number of arrests was made on Saturdays with the lowest on Thursdays.

The hour of the day when most arrests were made was between 11 p. m. and 11:59 p. m. and the least arrests in the early morning hours. According to statistics the heaviest number of arrests and warnings come between the hours of 7 p. m. and midnight.

The largest number of violations involved in mishaps during April was due to reckless driving, with failure to obey traffic control a close second.

BIRTHS

Memorial Hospital

Mr. and Mrs. Earl A. Judy, 10 East Street, a son yesterday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Robinette, 30 West First Street, a daughter yesterday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shriver, Romney, W. Va., a son yesterday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cessna, 52 Greene Street, a daughter yesterday morning.

Allegany Hospital

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Pendergast, LaVale, a daughter yesterday morning.

Judge To Resentence Black Here Today

Robert H. Black, 17, Baltimore, who has been held in Allegany County jail here since he was sentenced earlier this month to the Maryland Reformatory for Males for a year for unauthorized use of an automobile stolen from a Frostburg man, will be returned to Trial Magistrates Court at 10:30 a. m. this morning for resentencing, Judge J. Milton Dick said yesterday.

An investigation of facts pertinent to the case was made by Thomas P. McCarthy, deputy chief probation officer of the Probation Department of Supreme Bench of Baltimore City, and the disclosure of additional information in the case warranted the move, Dick said.

Wood Products Firm To Expand Operations Here

Spicer, Fahey To Make Knife Handles

The manufacture of wood handles, which has been a minor industry here for several decades, will be accelerated within the next month.

Two local men, Stanley F. Spicer, 17 Lamont Street, and Richard E. Fahey, 1411 Olive Avenue, have secured a permit to build a one story building, 25 by 50 feet, on Olive Avenue, for the work.

Spicer said they hope to have the building up and be ready for operation within the next 30 days.

Spicer and Fahey have been affiliated with the manufacture of handles and other wood products since they began to work at the James Nixon firm in the rear of Shriver Avenue some 20 years ago.

Spicer, who was superintendent when the firm employed some 65 men in 1944, revived the work about two years ago, making handles in the cellar of his home, and recently with Fahey, has been operating a small shop at the rear of Bowen Street.

At present, the men are manufacturing cutlery handles of American walnut, beechwood and rosewood and Concola wood from Brazil.

They said they are at present selling the handles to firms in New York, Ohio and Chicago and that cutlery firms have asked increased quotas.

The three workers employed at present will be increased to six when the building is completed.

Spicer said the local firm is making a product here, with machinery designed and made locally, which is able to meet the competition of completely automatic shapers.

Building Permits Show Decline

Building permits in Cumberland during April took a noticeable drop from the same period last year. In the past month $77,375 was shown as compared to $108,250 in 1950. In the first quarter period of 1951, $323,935 was listed while in April of last year $341,395 was noted.

The report of the Research Department of the Federal Reserve Bank, Richmond, shows the sharpest drop in Frederick. During 1950 $193,725 was noted while in the same period of this year $47,015 was shown.

Salisbury figures show a definite increase with a $354,874 being shown last month in comparison to $135,852 in the same period last year. The first four month's figure for this year in Salisbury was $722,478 as compared to $415,592. In Frederick the figure for the first four months of 1951 shows the amount of $533,540, a sharp drop from $1,138,875 in the similar period last year.

During last month in Hagerstown $281,015 in building permits was shown as compared to $267,280 in 1950. The first four months figure in 1950 was $660,870 as compared to $643,185 in the past four months.

WEATHER

The sun shone brightly yesterday although the air was a little chilly. Many lawn mowers were oiled up and put into action by the more eager residents of the Queen City. Constitution Park weather station reported a high of 70 degrees and a low of 50, with temperature of 63 at 8:35 o'clock last night. Dewpoint was 41.3 and humidity 43.5 percent. Cumberlanders are promised fair and warmer weather today by the forecaster.

DARING U. N. THRUST SPLITS REDS

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — A disclosure that there have been 72,679 non-battle casualties in Korea today boosted the total of all U. S. casualties in the Korean war to 141,955.

The new figure came out in tesmony by Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff before Senate committees. Heretofore, official casualty announcements have been limited almost entirely to those suffered in battle.

Bradley told the senators that there have been 69,276 battle casualties, including 10,680 dead. He totaled non-battle casualties at 72,679 including 612 dead of such causes as pneumonia, automobile accidents, etc.

.. ..85% Returned To Duty .. ..

Eighty-five per cent of the non-battle casualties have returned to duty, he said, defending the Defense Department policy of not including those casualties in its public print.

Sen. Bridges (R-NH) asked whether the department had considered this information too confidential to disclose. Bradley replied:

'No sir. I think they are just apt to be misleading if you do, because a lot of those people just go back, for example, into a hospital or an aid station one night, with a cold or something else; a man that has to go back to have a tooth pulled, he is only out a day or two and goes back. It varies all the way from that to those who are hospitalized and those who die as a result of non-battle injuries."

13,349 Missing In Action

Before the exact figures were available from the closed door testimony, Bridges told newsmen that total casualties — battle and non-battle—"are substantially more than double those officially announced."

"Non-battle casualties have been kept from the public announcements even though they include men who have suffered frozen legs and arms that have been amputated," Bridges said.

Bradley told the senators the casualty totals include 13,349 missing in action and "I would even hesitate to make an estimate" as to how many of those may eventually be freed alive.

He indicated he took a gloomy view on this, however, by saying:

"In fighting the Germans we usually got back a very large percentage" but "in fighting the North Koreans I am afraid the percentage we get back will be very much smaller."

Launch With 135 Sailors Aboard Capsizes; 2 Die

15 Of Survivors In Serious Condition

NEWPORT, R. I., May 24 (AP)—A howling northeaster capsized 135 sailors in a small launch today and all but two were pulled to safety after nearby boatloads of shipmates raced to their aid.

The Navy listed two dead and 15 "stretcher cases" in serious condition at the hospital at this big naval base. Chief of Staff Capt. T. H. Templeton said he didn't believe there were any others missing but would not be sure until after a roster check of five vessels.

Dead Are Identified

One of the dead was identified as Edmund E. Turner, radarman second class of Westmont, N. J. His widow, Catherine, lives in Newport. They were married five months.

The other victim was identified as George Edward Wright, seaman, Tracy City, Tenn.

Capt. Templeton said it was "a rescue by the grace of God because when it did happen the harbor was full of boats going back to other ships."

Dripping but grinning shortly after he was brought ashore one of the capsize victims, Seaman Paul L. Riddle, 22, (address unavailable) told newsmen: "Nobody got panicky. Everything was calm but the ocean."

The 50-foot motor launch overturned about a quarter mile out after leaving a wharf here to return men from overnight shore leave to the destroyers Power, Glennon, Bailey and Perry and the destroyer-tender Yellowstone.

Huge waves roared across the launch's bow and she dipped and rolled over about 6:45 a. m. (EST).

Funston Is Elected Stock Exchange Head

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP) — By unanimous vote, governors of the New York Stock Exchange today elected George Keith Funston, six-foot 40-year-old industrialist and educator, president of the exchange at an annual salary of $100,000.

Funston will succeed Emil Schram, president of the exchange since July, 1941, who retired last May 1.

Spinster, In Will, Requests To Be Buried Under Pyramid

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 24 (AP)—A spinster wanted to go back 5,000 years in death and be buried like the pharaohs of ancient Egypt.

So in her will, Florence Groff—close to antiquity all her life—asked to be buried beneath a pyramid.

The strange request led three relatives to contest the will in a court battle that opened today.

Miss Groff died in 1948, leaving a $35,000 estate. She lived in Hasting, N. Y.

Her father, Dr. William T. Groff, Cincinnati, was an archaeologist and his family went with him on many trips to the Middle East.

There Miss Groff presumably became impressed by the pyramids—tombs of royalty who lived before 3,000 B. C.

Body Of Missing Child Is Found In Rude Grave

Suspect Will Face Grand Jury Today

SANTA ANA, Calif., May 24 (AP)—The bludgeoned body of 10-year-old Patricia Jean Hull, missing since a movie matinee last Saturday, was found today buried in a lonely, wooded canyon 35 miles from her home.

The gruesome discovery in the idyllic setting ended one of Southern California's major searches — one in which more than 1,500 persons, including Marines and soldiers, scoured Orange County for five days.

Sheriff James Musick said the girl's head had been bashed in.

Suspect Faces Grand Jury

Henry Ford McCracken, 34-year-old guitar player held since Sunday on suspicion of kidnaping, will be taken before the grand jury tomorrow.

Near the body, the sheriff reported, was a bloodstained yellow bedspread. Officers said a yellow bedspread is missing from McCracken's motel cabin.

Another factor, Musick said, was that the body was found off lonely Trabuco Canyon road, over which McCracken had traveled almost daily while working recently on the county jail road gang. McCracken was released May 6 after serving six months for failure to register as a sex offender, a California law.

Body Fully Clothed

Sheriff Musick said the body was fully clothed and covered by 15 inches of soil and oak leaf mold in a heavily shrubbed and wooded area. The sheriff said that the girl apparently had received two heavy blows on the side of her head.

Meantime McCracken's attorney, George Chula, said today he is "strongly considering" a plea of innocent by reason of insanity if his guitar-playing client is indicted tomorrow.

$190,000,000 Loan For India Voted By House

WASHINGTON, May 24. (AP)—The House voted today to lend famine-stricken India $190,000,000 for the purchase of American grain and other foodstuffs.

It refused to require the Indian government to repay the loan in strategic war materials, but directed the Economic Cooperation Administration, which would negotiate terms, to try to get some scarce materials as part of the deal.

A companion bill was passed by the Senate last week. Since it disagrees with the House measure in several ways, the legislation now goes to a Senate-House conference committee to have the differences ironed out.

The roll-call vote in the House today was 293 to 94. For the bill were 171 Democrats, 121 Republicans and one Independent. Against were 36 Democrats and 58 Republicans.

In its final form, the House measure requires that the food be purchased in the United States and that at least half of it be transported to India in American vessels. The ECA would have a free hand in arranging credit terms.

President Asks $8,500,000,000 For Foreign Aid

"Defensive Shield" Is Urged By Truman

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — President Truman asked for $8,-5,000,000 today to help friendly nations throw up "a defensive shield" against Communist Russia.

"The Soviet threat is world-wide," he said in a message to Congress outlining a broad new foreign aid program. He said the Communist attack may come through "armies marching across frontiers," or by slyer means such as internal subversion, political infiltration or sabotage.

Accent Is On Europe

In asking new billions to help puncture Soviet Russia's "dreams of world conquest," Mr. Truman said the money will go to speed shipments of American arms and economic aid to nearly 50 friendly countries around the world. These include Formosa, Iran and other powder keg centers in the global picture, but the heavy accent was on Europe. Nearly two-thirds of the total was sought for arming Atlantic pact nations.

Slightly over two-thirds of the total, $6,250,000,000, would be earmarked for military aid. The balance of $2,250,000,000 would go for economic help.

Shield For Defense

Declaring that Soviet rulers "may soon start all-out aggression," Mr. Truman told Congress:

"With this program of assistance, we will move forward rapidly toward a situation giving reasonable assurance against aggression. The creation of this strength will provide a defensive shield . . . for all the free world.

"This shield threatens no one. It will never be used for aggression. But it will be used instantly for defense."

Fanny Brice Stricken; In Critical Condition

LOS ANGELES, May 24 (AP)—Comedienne Fanny Brice, 59, suffered a cerebral hemorrhage today at her home.

She was taken to Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, where her condition was reported critical.

Miss Brice, creator of the "Baby Snooks" character on stage and radio, first gained fame singing "My Man" in the Ziegfeld Follies in the early 1920s.

The National Broadcasting Company said Miss Brice had been unconscious since suffering the stroke and was placed in an oxygen tent.

Chinese Surged Between Allies In Winter Drive

GOP Move To Quiz Acheson Next Fails

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — Gen. Omar N. Bradley said today that the Pentagon twice warned Gen. Douglas MacArthur last fall to close the wide gap separating his forces in North Korea.

It was through this gap—stretching between the Eighth Army on the west and the 10th Corps in the northeast corner—that many of the Chinese Communists surged in their great winter offensive, inflicting the heaviest American casualties of the war.

Bradley, winding up his sixth and last day of testimony in the Senate investigation of MacArthur's dismissal, declined to estimate how many Americans were lost as a result of the Far Eastern commander's disposition of his troops.

To Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.), who suggested that MacArthur's "misjudgment" brought about "our heaviest casualties," the chairman of the joint chiefs said:

"It is hard to sit back here and say how many of those lost were due to the fact that the right flank was exposed or how many of them were due to the fact that the Chinese hit him harder than he expected."

Collins To Testify Next

With Bradley's testimony ended, Senate investigators voted down after heated debate a move by Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) to call Secretary of State Acheson as the next witness.

The 14 to 11 vote to get further testimony from the joint chiefs before hearing Acheson was almost strictly on party lines. Sen. Morse (R-Ore.), however, voted with 13 Democrats, and Sen. Gillette (D-Ia.) did not vote.

The Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees arranged to hear Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army chief of staff, tomorrow.

Bradley warned in his testimony that the U. S. and its North Atlantic Treaty allies could not stop a Russian aggression at this time.

"It may be," he said, "that right at this moment we do have more diplomatic commitments than we can carry out militarily."

But he added quickly that this is no reason to back away from the western defense alliance. Instead, Bradley said, this country should work for a buildup of western

Judge Holds Up Execution Of 7 Germans

LANDSBERG, Germany, May 24 (AP)—Seven condemned German war prisoners, sitting red jacketed and grim in death row, received word of their second stay of execution tonight only an hour and one minute before they were to hang.

The chaplain at the American war crimes prison here informed the wives of the seven prisoners, gathered at a little hotel not far from the prison, that U. S. District Judge Walter M. Bastian of Washington, D. C., was holding up the executions while he studied the case.

The seven women had come away from the prison red-eyed and weeping only this afternoon. But there was no sign of sadness tonight. After expressing their happiness, they gathered in the hotel parlor while the chaplain led a prayer of thanks. None of them could believe their men would take the steps to the gallows a third time.

In Bonn, West German capital, German officials expressed the hope the new stay might led to a revision of the death sentences. Vice-chancellor Franz Bluecher, who had sent last-minute appeal on behalf of the condemned men to U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy, said there were "serious errors" in the trial proceedings. He added:

"If these errors are not at least reviewed, then we will have a new nationalistic legend."

By this he clearly meant that a failure to review the death sentences would feed the spirit of German nationalism. Many high German officials and many newspapers have complained bitterly about the death sentences.

Reds, Yanks Fight "Invasion" Of Iran

TEHRAN, Iran, May 24 (AP) — The Russians and Americans are fighting a common enemy in Iran—locusts.

Nine Soviet planes have arrived in meshed in northern Iran to battle the biggest locust invasion in 50 years the ministry of Agriculture said today.

For more than a month eight American planes have been spraying insectide on locusts in Southern Iran.

Russia and the U. S. sent the planes after Iran appealed for aid in fighting the locusts.

Harriman Sees Red "Disaster"

DENVER, May 24 (AP) — Presidential Adviser W. Averell Harriman told cheering Democrats today the Red Chinese face a "disaster" in Korea that may shake the Kremlin.

Vigorously backing President Truman's program for containing the war in Korea, Harriman told delegates to a 26-state party conference credit for retreat of Red armies can be given to Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway and Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet.

Ridgway succeeded Gen. Douglas MacArthur, whose proposals for expanding the war against Red China were condemned not only by Harriman but by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan.

Harriman forecast what he called Communist "failure" in Korea may force Russia to reorient its policies toward peace to prevent "disintegration" in the Kremlin's control.

Brannan substituted for Vice President Barkley—kept in Washington by illness in his family—in a conference windup speech preparatory to tomorrow's meeting of the national committee which is expected to pick Chicago for its presidential nominating convention in the week of July 21, 1952.

McCarthy Resumes Attack On Acheson

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis), in a new attack on Secretary of State Acheson, said today Acheson has "tried to make sure that we could not win in battle."

He also said the "death warrant" for Americans fighting in Korea "has been signed and sealed by politicians who are running our State Department."

At another point he referred to "the treacherous Red clique in power" in the department, and at still another he spoke of Acheson "and your lace handkerchief crowd."

McCarthy, who repeatedly has charged the State Department was harboring Communist sympathizers, made the statements in a Senate speech. He said the department has been trying to override U. S. military officials in running the Korean war.

Truman Believes His Policies Will Avert World War

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—President Truman warned today a third world war might bring a return to the "dark ages" and turn American soil into a battlefront. But he expressed the hope that his program and policies will avert such a catastrophe.

He told a news conference that he is "confident" — not "cocky" as some writers have reported—that his policies are right and have the support of the people of the United States and of the world.

He said he believes the American people have enough intelligence and energy to meet any situation, but he is not willing to take a chance on seeing how they would react under the destruction which another world struggle would bring.

Permits Use Of Quotes

"That is the reason I don't want a third world war," he said. He granted a request that a sizable portion of these remarks be quoted directly.

The President volunteered his statement about policies near the end of a lengthy news conference in which he again declined to state whether he will be a candidate again in 1952, but said the season is still open for all who want to run.

He said if and when he decides to make a cross-country speaking trip—as he said he might in a message to a meeting of Democrats in Denver yesterday—the purpose would be to tell the people the truth and facts just as he said he did in the 1948 campaign.

Doesn't Like Word "Cockey"

As the conference was about to close, Mr. Truman said he had a comment to make, that he wanted to have an understanding with the press. He said some of his friends who write columns have been saying lately that he had a "cocky" attitude.

He said he didn't like that word 'cocky," and he preferred "confident." He recalled that he was careful after his 1948 election "not to appear cocky, or as if I wanted to press somebody down," and that he is not in that mood now.

Armored Task Force Plunges Above Parallel

Allied Units Drive Back Into Chunchon

TOKYO, Friday, May 25 (AP)—A powerful Allied armored task force plunged north across the 38th parallel Thursday and split Communist forces reeling back in defeat in East-Central Korea.

The daring 13-mile thrust smashed to the banks of the Choyang River through streams of Reds. Field dispatches promptly labeled it one of the boldest strokes of the Korean war.

"We expect great things of this effort," messaged Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, U. S. 10th Corps commander, who ordered the swift attack.

This was the only confirmed crossing of the 38th parallel along the entire 125-mile front. But the resurgent U. S. Eighth Army closed to within one to four miles of the old political boundary elsewhere along the front as the Chinese and North Koreans fell back north at a dog trot pace.

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the Eighth Army, served notice that the controversial boundary would not prevent his victorious troops from maintaining the initiative and inflicting the maximum number of casualties on the Communists.

Reds Bolster Rear Guards

The Reds withdrew rapidly with U. N. forces in hot pursuit.

One frontline officer told AP Correspondent Jim Becker it was apparent the Chinese had abandoned the offensive and were rapidly withdrawing the main body of their forces on the central front. However, he cautioned the Reds were reinforcing their defense screen—rear guards—all along the east-central front.

More powerful screening forces were being rushed south by the Reds together with supplies, to keep the Allies from cutting the main Communist withdrawal route.

This report tallied with air observations of Red vehicles moving by night from Chorwon to Hwachon across the central front and well above the 38th parallel. Other Red vehicles were again streaming southward from the Manchurian border into Northwest Korea.

While the powerful armada of tanks and vehicles carried United Nations troops into Red Korea for the third time in the war, Allied units pushed back into Chunchon. It was the seventh time that battered road center changed hands.

Many Reds Surrender

Communist pockets still resisted south of strategic Hunchon which is only eight miles south of the parallel and 45 miles northeast of Seoul.

Units entering Chunchon reported capturing "more enemy than we could handle." The number of prisoners was deleted by censors.

Other Allied forces quickly advanced north of Chunchon and crossed the Choyang River above the city. They probed northward without contact.

This was not to be confused with the Allied drive to the south banks of the Choyang farther east. Censorship did not permit locating this latter push.

West of Chunchon U. S. spearheads smashed to within five miles of 38 north of Uijongbu in Korea's traditional invasion corridor. Uijongbu is 11 miles north of Seoul.

Chairman Quits Post

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — Charles M. LaFollette refused today to continue as chairman of a government panel trying to decide whether the Communist Party must register as a foreign agency controlled by the Kremlin.

The former Republican representative from Indiana complained that he was held in "disdain" by William A. Paisley, chief government attorney. He said Paisley's attitude "quite evidently is being transmitted" to the government's witnesses in hearings the panel is conducting.

Colonel Intervenes, Permits Mother, Wife Bid GI Goodbye

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP) — They wanted to tell Pvt. Donald Sikorski, 23, goodbye, but his mother, Mrs. John Sikorski, Scranton, Pa., and his bride of two months, Lillian, today got to a Staten Island pier too late.

Pvt. Sikorski, along with his platoon of the Europe-bound Fourth Infantry's Eighth Regimental Combat Team, already had gone up the gangway of the Gen. R. E. Callan.

Mother and wife stood sobbing on the pier.

Sikorski saw them and tried to get back down the gangway, but was stopped by officers.

He stood at the rail, sobbing too.

His battalion commander, Lt. Col. Lynell Green, Pryor, Okla., who had been busy getting stragglers aboard, noticed the situation. He walked over, took Sikorski by the arm, and escorted him back down the gangway.

"It's against the rules," he said, "but I'm a reasonable man."

DARING U. N. THRUST SPLITS REDS

U.S. Non-Battle Casualties Are Set At 72,679

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — A disclosure that there have been 72,679 non-battle casualties in Korea today boosted the total of all U. S. casualties in the Korean war to 141,955.

The new figure came out in tesmony by Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff before Senate committees. Heretofore, official casualty announcements have been limited almost entirely to those suffered in battle.

Bradley told the senators that there have been 69,276 battle casualties, including 10,680 dead. He totaled non-battle casualties at 72,679 including 612 dead of such causes as pneumonia, automobile accidents, etc.

.. ..85% Returned To Duty .. ..

Eighty-five per cent of the non-battle casualties have returned to duty, he said, defending the Defense Department policy of not including those casualties in its public print.

Sen. Bridges (R-NH) asked whether the department had considered this information too confidential to disclose. Bradley replied:

'No sir. I think they are just apt to be misleading if you do, because a lot of those people just go back, for example, into a hospital or an aid station one night, with a cold or something else; a man that has to go back to have a tooth pulled, he is only out a day or two and goes back. It varies all the way from that to those who are hospitalized and those who die as a result of non-battle injuries."

13,349 Missing In Action

Before the exact figures were available from the closed door testimony, Bridges told newsmen that total casualties — battle and non-battle—"are substantially more than double those officially announced."

"Non-battle casualties have been kept from the public announcements even though they include men who have suffered frozen legs and arms that have been amputated," Bridges said.

Bradley told the senators the casualty totals include 13,349 missing in action and "I would even hesitate to make an estimate" as to how many of those may eventually be freed alive.

He indicated he took a gloomy view on this, however, by saying:

"In fighting the Germans we usually got back a very large percentage" but "in fighting the North Koreans I am afraid the percentage we get back will be very much smaller."

Launch With 135 Sailors Aboard Capsizes; 2 Die

15 Of Survivors In Serious Condition

NEWPORT, R. I., May 24 (AP)—A howling northeaster capsized 135 sailors in a small launch today and all but two were pulled to safety after nearby boatloads of shipmates raced to their aid.

The Navy listed two dead and 15 "stretcher cases" in serious condition at the hospital at this big naval base. Chief of Staff Capt. T. H. Templeton said he didn't believe there were any others missing but would not be sure until after a roster check of five vessels.

Dead Are Identified

One of the dead was identified as Edmund E. Turner, radarman second class of Westmont, N. J. His widow, Catherine, lives in Newport. They were married five months.

The other victim was identified as George Edward Wright, seaman, Tracy City, Tenn.

Capt. Templeton said it was "a rescue by the grace of God because when it did happen the harbor was full of boats going back to other ships."

Spinster, In Will, Requests To Be Buried Under Pyramid

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 24 (AP)—A spinster wanted to go back 5,000 years in death and be buried like the pharaohs of ancient Egypt.

So in her will, Florence Groff—close to antiquity all her life—asked to be buried beneath a pyramid.

The strange request led three relatives to contest the will in a court battle that opened today.

Miss Groff died in 1948, leaving a $35,000 estate. She lived in Hastings, N. Y.

Her father, Dr. William T. Groff, Cincinnati, was an archaeologist and his family went with him on many trips to the Middle East.

There Miss Groff presumably became impressed by the pyramids—tombs of royalty who lived before 3,000 B. C.

She specified that she wanted a 425 square foot pyramid above their graves, inscribed with the English, Greek and Egyptian versions of the family name.

Tries It In Reverse

DARTMOUTH, Eng., May 24 (AP)—Stanley Smith, who crossed the Atlantic from America in a 20-foot boat in 1949, set out today in the same boat to make the trip in reverse.

Chinese Surged Between Allies In Winter Drive

GOP Move To Quiz Acheson Next Fails

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — Gen. Omar N. Bradley said today that the Pentagon twice warned Gen. Douglas MacArthur last fall to close the wide gap separating his forces in North Korea.

It was through this gap—stretching between the Eighth Army on the west and the 10th Corps in the northeast corner—that many of the Chinese Communists surged in their great winter offensive, inflicting the heaviest American casualties of the war.

Bradley, winding up his sixth and last day of testimony in the Senate investigation of MacArthur's dismissal, declined to estimate how many Americans were lost as a result of the Far Eastern commander's disposition of his troops.

To Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.), who suggested that MacArthur's "misjudgment" brought about "our heaviest casualties," the chairman of the joint chiefs said:

"It is hard to sit back here and say how many of those lost were due to the fact that the right flank was exposed or how many of them were due to the fact that the Chinese hit him harder than he expected."

Collins To Testify Next

With Bradley's testimony ended, Senate investigators voted down after heated debate a move by Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) to call Secretary of State Acheson as the next witness.

The 14 to 11 vote to get further testimony from the joint chiefs before hearing Acheson was almost strictly on party lines. Sen. Morse (R-Ore.), however, voted with 13 Democrats, and Sen. Gillette (D-Ia.) did not vote.

The Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees arranged to hear Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army chief of staff, tomorrow.

Bradley warned in his testimony that the U. S. and its North Atlantic Treaty allies could not stop a Russian aggression at this time.

"It may be," he said, "that right at this moment we do have more diplomatic commitments than we can carry out militarily."

But he added quickly that this is no reason to back away from the western defense alliance. Instead, Bradley said, this country should work for a buildup of western

Judge Holds Up Execution Of 7 Germans

LANDSBERG, Germany, May 24 (AP)—Seven condemned German war prisoners, sitting red jacketed and grim in death row, received word of their second stay of execution tonight only an hour and one minute before they were to hang.

The chaplain at the American war crimes prison here informed the wives of the seven prisoners, gathered at a little hotel not far from the prison, that U. S. District Judge Walter M. Bastian of Washington, D. C., was holding up the executions while he studied the case.

The seven women had come away from the prison red-eyed and weeping only this afternoon. But there was no sign of sadness tonight. After expressing their happiness, they gathered in the hotel parlor while the chaplain led a prayer of thanks. None of them could believe their men would take the steps to the gallows a third time.

In Bonn, West German capital, German officials expressed the hope the new stay might led to a revision of the death sentences. Vice-chancellor Franz Bluecher, who had sent last-minute appeal on behalf of the condemned men to U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy, said there were "serious errors" in the trial proceedings. He added:

By this he clearly meant that a failure to review the death sentences would feed the spirit of German nationalism. Many high German officials and many newspapers have complained bitterly about the death sentences.

Middies' "Color Girl"

Fredda Coupland, 21-year-old senior at Stetson University, Deland, Fla., will reign as the Naval Academy's "Color Girl" for 1951. She was named by Midshipman James A. Winnefeld, 22, Kansas City. Miss Coupland is a brown-eyed, brownette, five-feet four inches tall. She will arrive in Annapolis Monday.

Reds, Yanks Fight "Invasion" Of Iran

TEHRAN, Iran, May 24 (AP) — The Russians and Americans are fighting a common enemy in Iran—locusts.

Nine Soviet planes have arrived in meshed in northern Iran to battle the biggest locust invasion in 50 years the ministry of Agriculture said today.

For more than a month eight American planes have been spraying insectide on locusts in Southern Iran.

Russia and the U. S. sent the planes after Iran appealed for aid in fighting the locusts.

Harriman Sees Red "Disaster"

DENVER, May 24 (AP) — Presidential Adviser W. Averell Harriman told cheering Democrats today the Red Chinese face a "disaster" in Korea that may shake the Kremlin.

Vigorously backing President Truman's program for containing the war in Korea, Harriman told delegates to a 26-state party conference credit for retreat of Red armies can be given to Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway and Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet.

Ridgway succeeded Gen. Douglas MacArthur, whose proposals for expanding the war against Red China were condemned not only by Harriman but by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan.

Harriman forecast what he called Communist "failure" in Korea may force Russia to reorient its policies toward peace to prevent "disintegration" in the Kremlin's control.

Brannan substituted for Vice President Barkley—kept in Washington by illness in his family—in a conference windup speech preparatory to tomorrow's meeting of the national committee which is expected to pick Chicago for its presidential nominating convention in the week of July 21, 1952.

McCarthy Resumes Attack On Acheson

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis), in a new attack on Secretary of State Acheson, said today Acheson has "tried to make sure that we could not win in battle."

He also said the "death warrant" for Americans fighting in Korea "has been signed and sealed by politicians who are running our State Department."

At another point he referred to "the treacherous Red clique in power" in the department, and at still another he spoke of Acheson "and your lace handkerchief crowd."

McCarthy, who repeatedly has charged the State Department was harboring Communist sympathizers, made the statements in a Senate speech. He said the department has been trying to override U. S. military officials in running the Korean war.

Truman Believes His Policies Will Avert World War

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—President Truman warned today a third world war might bring a return to the "dark ages" and turn American soil into a battle-front. But he expressed the hope that his program and policies will avert such a catastrophe.

He told a news conference that he is "confident" — not "cocky" as some writers have reported—that his policies are right and have the support of the people of the United States and of the world.

He said he believes the American people have enough intelligence and energy to meet any situation, but he is not willing to take a chance on seeing how they would react under the destruction which another world struggle would bring.

Permits Use Of Quotes

"That is the reason I don't want a third world war," he said. He granted a request that a sizable portion of these remarks be quoted directly.

The President volunteered his statement about policies near the end of a lengthy news conference in which he again declined to state whether he will be a candidate again in 1952, but said the season is still open for all who want to run.

He said if and when he decides to make a cross-country speaking trip—as he said he might in a message to a meeting of Democrats in Denver yesterday—the purpose would be to tell the people the truth and facts just as he said he did in the 1948 campaign.

Doesn't Like Word "Cockey"

As the conference was about to close, Mr. Truman said he had a comment to make, that he wanted to have an understanding with the press. He said some of his friends who write columns have been saying lately that he had a "cocky" attitude.

He said he didn't like that word 'cocky," and he preferred "confident." He recalled that he was careful after his 1948 election "not to appear cocky, or as if I wanted to press somebody down," and that he is not in that mood now.

Armored Task Force Plunges Above Parallel

Allied Units Drive Back Into Chunchon

TOKYO, Friday, May 25 (AP)—A powerful Allied armored task force plunged north across the 38th parallel Thursday and split Communist forces reeling back in defeat in East-Central Korea.

The daring 13-mile thrust smashed to the banks of the Choyang River through streams of Reds. Field dispatches promptly labeled it one of the boldest strokes of the Korean war.

"We expect great things of this effort," messaged Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, U. S. 10th Corps commander, who ordered the swift attack.

This was the only confirmed crossing of the 38th parallel along the entire 125-mile front. But the resurgent U. S. Eighth Army closed to within one to four miles of the old political boundary elsewhere along the front as the Chinese and North Koreans fell back north at a dog trot pace.

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the Eighth Army, served notice that the controversial boundary would not prevent his victorious troops from maintaining the initiative and inflicting the maximum number of casualties on the Communists.

Reds Bolster Rear Guards

The Reds withdrew rapidly with U. N. forces in hot pursuit.

One frontline officer told AP Correspondent Jim Becker it was apparent the Chinese had abandoned the offensive and were rapidly withdrawing the main body of their forces on the central front. However, he cautioned the Reds were reinforcing their defense screen—rear guards—all along the east-central front.

More powerful screening forces were being rushed south by the Reds together with supplies, to keep the Allies from cutting the main Communist withdrawal route.

This report tallied with air observations of Red vehicles moving by night from Chorwon to Hwachon across the central front and well above the 38th parallel. Other Red vehicles were again streaming southward from the Manchurian border into Northwest Korea.

While the powerful armada of tanks and vehicles carried United Nations troops into Red Korea for the third time in the war, Allied units pushed back into Chunchon. It was the seventh time that battered road center changed hands.

Many Reds Surrender

Communist pockets still resisted south of strategic Hunchon which is only eight miles south of the parallel and 45 miles northeast of Seoul.

Units entering Chunchon reported capturing "more enemy than we could handle." The number of prisoners was deleted by censors.

Other Allied forces quickly advanced north of Chunchon and crossed the Choyang River above the city. They probed northward without contact.

This was not to be confused with the Allied drive to the south banks of the Choyang farther east. Censorship did not permit locating this latter push.

West of Chunchon U. S. spearheads smashed to within five miles of 38 north of Uijongbu in Korea's traditional invasion corridor. Uijongbu is 11 miles north of Seoul.

Chairman Quits Post

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — Charles M. LaFollette refused today to continue as chairman of a government panel trying to decide whether the Communist Party must register as a foreign agency controlled by the Kremlin.

The former Republican representative from Indiana complained that he was held in "disdain" by William A. Paisley, chief government attorney. He said Paisley's attitude "quite evidently is being transmitted" to the government's witnesses in hearings the panel is conducting.

Colonel Intervenes, Permits Mother, Wife Bid GI Goodbye

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP) — They wanted to tell Pvt. Donald Sikorski, 23, goodbye, but his mother, Mrs. John Sikorski, Scranton, Pa., and his bride of two months, Lillian, today got to a Staten Island pier too late.

Pvt. Sikorski, along with his platoon of the Europe-bound Fourth Infantry's Eighth Regimental Combat Team, already had gone up the gangway of the Gen. R. E. Callan.

Mother and wife stood sobbing on the pier.

Sikorski saw them and tried to get back down the gangway, but was stopped by officers.

He stood at the rail, sobbing too.

His battalion commander, Lt. Col. Lynell Green, Pryor, Okla., who had been busy getting stragglers aboard, noticed the situation. He walked over, took Sikorski by the arm, and escorted him back down the gangway.

"It's against the rules," he said, "but I'm a reasonable man."

Iran Fixes Oil Talk Deadline

TEHRAN, Iran, May 24 (AP)—Iran fixed a seven-day deadline for the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company to start talks on ways of turning over to the government its vast holdings on the Persian Gulf.

A letter from Finance Minister Mohammed Ali Varasteh to company officials here demanded that the company send representatives by May 30 to help work out the oil nationalization program. The deadline was set after the company failed to reply to a similar demand.

If Anglo-Iranian, which has exclusive production rights in the big southern oil fields, fails to comply, the letter said, "the government will have no choice but to act according to its legal duties."

Top officials dodged questions about how the government would take over the company's holdings if its representatives did not show up.

But Hossein Makki, secretary of the parliamentary nationalization board, told reporters:

"There are ways we can take over our own property. We have decided what we are going to do, but it is being kept a secret for the time being."

Fine Named Accident Commission Chairman

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 24 (AP) — Gov. McKeldin today named former Sen. Melvin L. Fine chairman of the State Industrial Accident Commission.

Fine, a Baltimore lawyer, will succeed Emanuel Gorfine in the $6,500-a-year post on June 1. He will serve a six-year term.

The commission administers state workmen's compensation laws.

You Will See Less But Think You See More On Beaches

CHICAGO, May 24 (AP)—You aren't going to see as much bare flesh on the beaches this season—but you're going to think you're seeing more.

That, according to Fred Cole, Los Angeles bathing suit manufacturer, is because bathing-suit brevity has gone about as far as it can go. The new way to inject sex into beachwear, he says, is through transparency.

In other words, instead of ogling acres of bare skin, men, you'll peek at it through transparent or cut out fabrics, such as nylon lace or flesh-colored net.

Collegian Draft Test Rush Expected Today

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — There will be a last-minute rush at draft boards tomorrow for applications to take the forthcoming college aptitude tests.

There is no indication, however, that local boards plan to extend their usual closing hours for the day.

Selective Service headquarters said it is up to state directors whether any special arrangements are made for late comers. None of the directors, at a meeting which ended here today, reported plans to stay open late.

Selective Service Director Louis B. Hershey predicted, however, that there would be a last-minute rush because of the popular tendency to delay applications as long as possible.

College men must mail their application cards, obtainable only from draft boards, so that they will be postmarked not later than midnight Friday.

Boy Uninjured In 3-Story Drop

BALTIMORE, May 24 (AP) — A five-year-old boy who apparently jumped out of a third-floor window because he thought he's been locked in "must have bounced like a rubber ball," a doctor said afterward.

But he wasn't hurt.

The boy, Joseph Zelinski, Jr., was examined at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

He had a cut on the chin. But a neighbor said this was suffered when the boy started back to his home via a fire escape.

Joseph plunged about 25 feet from a bedroom window, hitting a flat, wooden cellar door. This apparently broke his fall.

The boy was in the bedroom as his seven-year-old sister and some other children were playing in the kitchen. He heard a door slam, and thought he'd been locked in and left alone.

50 Md. CAP Planes To Aid In "Search"

BALTIMORE, May 24 (AP) — Fifty planes of the Maryland Wing of the Civil Air Patrol will take to the air Sunday to search for two other aircraft — missing by plan.

It's all part of a simulated air-sea rescue operation staged by Flight A of the Air Force's Fifth Air-Sea Rescue Squadron at Westover Field, Conn.

Purpose of the pretended rescue is:

(1) To provide training for the Civil Air Patrol which has taken over most over-land rescue operations in the United States and a limited amount of the over-water operations.

(2) To give the Air Force an opportunity to evaluate the effectiveness of the Maryland Wing of CAP in air-sea rescue work.

House Tax Experts Remedy Error; OK'd $1.02 Tax On $1

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—House tax experts discovered today that they had voted a $1.02 tax on $1. Figuring that this was going a bit too far, even in these times, they decided to make the levy 94.5 cents.

The curious situation resulted from a vote yesterday, when the Democratic majority of the House Ways and Means Committee pushed through an increase of 12½ per cent in the taxes on all individual incomes.

In doing so, they stipulated that there would be a ceiling of 90 per cent on the amount the government could take in taxes from any individual's entire income.

But this limitation would not be enough, in itself, to avert more-than-complete confiscation of the top dollars in incomes over $100,000.

That is because each taxpayer, under the committee's plan, would figure his income tax at present rates, then add 12½ per cent to the total computed tax. The present rate on that portion of an individual's income over $100,000 but below $150,000 is 89 per cent. Adding 12½ per cent to the tax total computed at that rate would result in a tax of $1.00125 on each dollar of the upper bracket income. Similarly the effective rate would have been 102.375 per cent on each dollar of income over $200,000 and before the overall 90 per cent ceiling began to apply.

The committe voted to make the maximum surtax rate 84 per cent, applying to all income over $80,000. When the 12½ per cent is added to the individual's tax bill, he would be paying an effective rate of 94.5 per cent on each dollar of taxable income over $80,000.

In another decision today, the committee voted a 10 per cent tax on safety razors and razor blades, adding $6,000,000 potential additional revenue to the nearly complete $7,200,000,000 tax bill.

Questions Method Of Ouster

The lanky, mild-mannered Bradley said he thought "from a military point of view" that President Truman was right in firing MacArthur—although he said he thought the General's removal "probably could have been handled better."

It was not until Fulbright took over the questioning that Bradley told of the two warnings sent to MacArthur.

He testified that the joint chiefs became alarmed over the wide, undefended space between the two elements of the U. N. Forces and the exposed position of the 10th Corps. First, Bradley said, they sent MacArthur a "suggestion" about it, and later "a directive to extricate the 10th corps."

The witness quoted paraphrases of the message exchange, in which MacArthur insisted that any physical linking of the separated forces was "quite impractical" and that ground conditions would make it hard for the enemy to "take any material advantage" of the 10th Corps' position.

When the Chinese Reds came swarming through in overwhelming numbers, the 10th Corps made a fighting retreat to the port of Hungnaw, from which it was removed by sea. The 10th Corps was made up at that time of the Marine First Division and various Army elements.

Iraq Diggers Find 100,000-Year Evidence Of Asia's First Humans

By FRED ZUSY

BAGHDAD—(AP)—American archeologists are digging up in Iraq important news evidence about the life of man more than 100,000 years ago.

Their work, 25 miles east of the Middle East oil center of Kirkuk, may shed important light on a theory of twin evolution—that man may have advanced simultaneously but separately in Africa and in Asia. Dr. Naji Al-Asil, director-general of the Iraq Department of Antiquities, told a reporter the digging, has uncovered "definite, positive evidence" of a beginning of human culture in Iraq. The discovery is of major scientific interest because of the possible information it might lead to on human evolution in Asia.

The Tigris-Euphrates basins in Iraq were the birthplace of several great civilizations during the five or six thousands of recorded history. The new finds link Iraq for the first time with the pre-historic inter-glacial period.

The pre-histric digging is going on in the area of Jarmo, Kerimshehr and Barda Palka—all close together in the area east of Kirkuk.

The work is under supervision of Dr. Robert Braidwood, from the Oriental Institute for the University of Chicago. Dr. Bruce Howe, a Harvard University scientist, is working with Dr. Braidwood. The Iraq Department of Antiquities is participating.

Dr. Al-Asil said an expedition from his department first discovered and identified the Barda Palka site several years ago, linking it with the stone age, pre-agriculture era.

Jarmo, nearby, dates from 5,000 to 6,000 B. C. and represents the beginning of the agricultural era, when man first began to settle in villages and raise crops.

"Jarmo si possibly the oldest such settlement yet found," Dr. Al-Asil said.

"Dr. Braidwood's group dug trenches in the area, confirmed our finds and took the site many thousands of years further back.

"It is too early yet to go into detail, but there have been most important results, dating back 100,000 years according to Dr. Braidwood's estimate. I, myself, think that figure is conservative.

"I regard their discovery as of major scientific interest, shedding light on the pre-history of man. Through further studies this may result in proving Asia to be one of the major centers of human evolution.

"There is a recent theory that there may have been two separate trails of evolution — one possibly from somewhere in Central Asia, which may have passed through the Gobi Desert area—and the other from the area of Rhodesia in Southern Africa, and thence northward."

The Braidwood expedition has not yet made any public announcement on its work. It is expected to continue digging until the summer heat in Iraq makes it necessary to stop.

The area in which work is being carried out is at the foot of the Kurdish mountains in Northern Iraq. Dr. Al-Asil says it probably was favored by primitive man because of the presence of many streams, abundance of wild game and promimity to caves in the nearby hills.

For thousands of years, the area may have been a gathering place for primitive humans attracted by easy hunting. But settlement did not take place until man passed from the food gathering to the food producing stage.

The zipper was invented by Whitcomb L. Judson in 1893.

Getting Down Is Problem

By Central Press

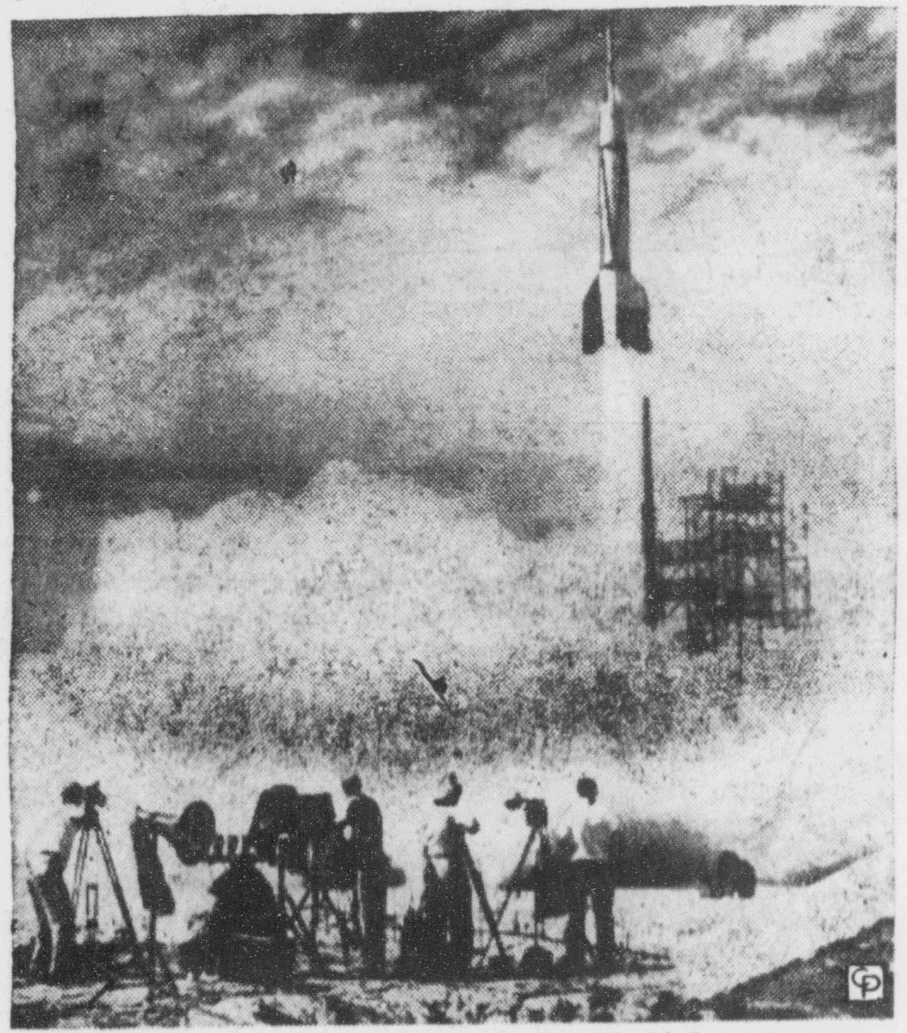
SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—Shooting rockets 250 miles up is a big engineering problem, but getting them back at the right spot is just as tough.

The earth spinning on its axis causes the big headache.

Approximately 10 variable factors must be taken into consideration when the two-stage "Bumper" rocket is fired to record altitudes at the Army's White Sands, N. M., proving grounds, explains Robert P. Haviland, General Electric project engineer who is conducting the rocket program for the Army Ordnance Corps.

These include trajectory, geography, wind direction and velocity, air density—and rotation of the earth.

If the rotation were not computed, Haviland points out, some rockets would land about 15 miles from the launching site because the site actually moves out from under the rocket while it is making its 10-minute round trip.



The "Bumper" rocket is aimed approximately 10 degrees away from the impact point to counteract the rotation of the earth.

Nationalizing Oil Fields

Our government is evidently hoping that out of the difficult situation in Iran will emerge some arrangement whereby the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, while deprived of its former ownership of oil fields, would be granted rights to the oil produced from them. Some such settlement was made by Mexico with foreign companies when expropriating oil fields prior to World War II.

That the Mexican settlement at least figures in the Iranian mind is indicated by a note sent to Anglo-Iranian by Iranian Finance Minister Varasteh on May 19: "The nationalization of industries is based on the right of the sovereignty of nations, such as exercised by other governments including the British government itself and the Mexican government."

Mexico expropriated foreign oil properties in March, 1938. Of 17 foreign companies involved at that time, 11 were American. The companies originally estimated total American investments at about $200 million, total British investments at $250 million.

The expropriation move was precipitated by union demands for an $11 million-a-year pay raise, pensions, participation in management. The workers' claims were supported by a decision of the Mexican Supreme Court, and President Cardenas announced the signing of the expropriation decree on March 18. The oil companies made a last-minute offer to meet the workers' pay demands but continued in their refusal to yield a share in management. The workers took over the plants.

Legal authority for the expropriation, not in itself challenged by our State Department, rested in a provision of the Mexican constitution adopted under the auspices of the Carranza government in 1917. For more than 20 years thereafter, the issues was discussed, disputed, compromised.

Secretary of State Hull reacted to the expropriation decree with a note recognizing the right of expropriation:

"This government . . . does not undertake to question the right of the Government of Mexico in its sovereign power to expropriate properties within its jurisdiction. This government has, however . . . pointed out . . . that . . . the properties of its nationals so expropriated are required to be paid for by compensation representing fair, assured, and effective value to the nationals from whom these properties were taken."

The dispute was not finally settled until 1943, after both nations were at war with the Axis. Mexico was the keystone of the Roosevelt-Hull Good Neighbor policy for the Americas. Negotiations were particularly delicate for a time because of this nation's concern for its military alliance with Mexico.

By 1939 counter-claims had been filed. The Mexican government put a value of $22,306,000 on the fixed assets of the properties; the estimate of the companies was $262 million as minimum. According to the Mexican estimate, 43 per cent of the value was represented by the holdings of the American companies.

The Sinclair group, a large American interest, reached an agreement for compensation of $8.5 million to be paid over three years, plus a purchase agreement for 20 million barrels of crude oil for four years. In September, 1943, American and Mexican experts appointed under a 1941 agreement placed a value on American properties of almost $24 million—to be paid, plus interest of three per cent retroactive to 1938, by September, 1947.

Increasing Fire Power

From Korea comes a dispatch to the effect that a number of new "wonder weapons" may be put into the hands of American troops there within the next few months. The list is reported to include an entirely new fast-firing rifle, a machine gun that can fire all night long by remote control, a 25-ton airborne tank, and a helicopter with a lifting capacity of three tons.

Thus the fire power of U. S. ground forces will be even greater than it is now—and that fire power has meant the difference between survival and defeat for the U. S. command in Korea. U. S. strategy there must be based on ability to inflict losses on an enemy whose manpower resources are far greater than those of this country.

It is interesting to note that this disclosure followed release of a statement by Maj. Gen. A. C. McAuliffe, chief of the Army Chemical Corps. He declared that the United States has developed a number of weapons that will help to overcome the numerical advantage of the nation's "potential enemies." They are, he said, the "basis of our hope for avoiding World War III."

All of these weapons are improvements on weapons that already exist. The new rifle is only a lighter and faster-firing version of the excellent weapon now in use. Machine guns are nothing new, though this one will certainly appeal to the men who must fire it. The new tank is more powerful than others that have been carried by air and the helicopter can do more useful work, but the difference between them and their predecessors is only one of degree no matter how impressive.

So these are not the instruments for fighting a push-button war. They are improvements to help the infantryman perform his grim assignment—nothing more. Still, that is proof that American military experts have not been misled by the visionaries. As long as they believe that wars will continue to be won the hard way, the nation's chances of survival will be good.

Russia Has The Answer

Although developments in the Korean War are based to a considerable extent upon speculation—at least so far as the American public is concerned—there was no doubt for days that the Chinese Reds were preparing for another major drive against U. S. and other forces in South Korea. American forces took all possible steps to prepare for the onslaught.

There are new reports that the Chinese have a sizable air force in Manchuria, but to date it has not made its appearance over the fighting front.

Regardless of the outcome of the drive, it will certainly have an effect upon Russia's position. If it should succeed, it would seem logical for Russia to jump in to bring decisive victory to communism in the Far East.

If the drive fails, as others in the past have failed, will the Russians then come to the aid of their Chinese comrades and widen the conflict?

As from the beginning of the fighting in Korea, everything depends upon what the Kremlin decides to do. If the Chinese Reds fail of victory in Korea, and Russia does not lend major assistance to them, a stalemate will be in effect.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

A Curable Type Of Baldness

It is not difficult to restore hair when baldness is caused by alopecia areata. In this condition, spontaneous regrowth is the rule and many if not most of the patented hair restorers, rejuvenators, and mange cures owe their chief claim to fame to their good results in this hair disorder. The before and after pictures are impressive, especially to the novice who does not realize that there are different types of baldness. Young and middle-aged men with the more common heriditary variety fall hardest for such remedies.

Alopecia areata is not partial to either sex or to any particular hair color. The hair is shed in patches, leaving smooth, shiny, bald areas. It may start slowly or suddenly; now and then a large patch falls out overnight, leaving the skin tender and reddened for a few days thereafter. In rarer instances, baldness is complete and the individual also loses lashes, eybrows, beard, and hair elsewhere on the body.

The bald regions may be covered or fringed by a downy growth, sometimes surrounded by stumps. The new hairs generally are white at first and become pigmented later. There is no particular pattern to the baldness as in the hereditary type. In these cases there is a gradual thinning at both temples or on top of the head. In alcopecia areata, a spot may begin at the back of the neck or on one side or the other. Nail changes also occur. Virtually every one has heard of a person who became bald after an acute illness such as influenza or typhoid, or after poisoning. Fright and grief are causes that make headlines and there is no doubt that anxiety and mental shock may precipitate this kind of hair loss; but infection or a toxin are the primary causes.

There are many remedies. The application of ultraviolet light is one of the most popular. As a rule, treatments are given in gradually increasing doses to produce mild redness without burning. The ears and adjacent skin should be protected with a towel and the eyes must be guarded. The local application of stimulating caustic solutions has been popular for many years. Solutions containing phenol, iodine, or other blistering fluids often are painted over the bald spots. Oil of turpentine may be useful and mercury or resorcinol have been employed with success.

But treatment will fail unless the general health is maintained at a high level. This means paying strict attention to diet and rest and avoiding anxiety and worry. Benefit also is obtained by getting out into the fresh air and sunshine. Toxic factors are minimized by the removal of abscessed teeth and infected tonsils. If anemia exists, iron is helpful, as is thyroid extract if there is a deficient secretion of this hormone.

TOMORROW: The hereditary factor in disease is discussed by Dr. Van Dellen.

POOR CIRCULATION

L. D. writes: Are hot foot baths good for a person with arteriosclerosis of the legs?

REPLY

No; heat is not advised in any form. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on care of the feet and legs in individuals with impaired circulation to the extremities.

ECZEMA IN INFANT

Mrs. H. writes: Should an infant with eczema be bathed in olive oil?

REPLY

In some cases oils or cleansing creams are preferred to water. In others the addition of starch, bran, or oatmeal to the bath water will give good results. It is more important to discover the cause of the eczema. In the majority, the culprit is a food to which the baby is sensitive.

THROBBING VEIN

G. F. writes: My father insists that he can tell the condition of his heart and blood pressure by watching the throbbing of the vein on the inside of his elbow. Would you write a few words to convince him that he is wrong?

REPLY

It is not normal for a vein to throb and perhaps your father could use more expert advise than his own along this line.

NOT LIKELY

K. J. writes: Is a person with gallstones more likely to develop cancer than one with no stones?

REPLY

I doubt if it makes any difference. Stones have nothing to do with cancer.

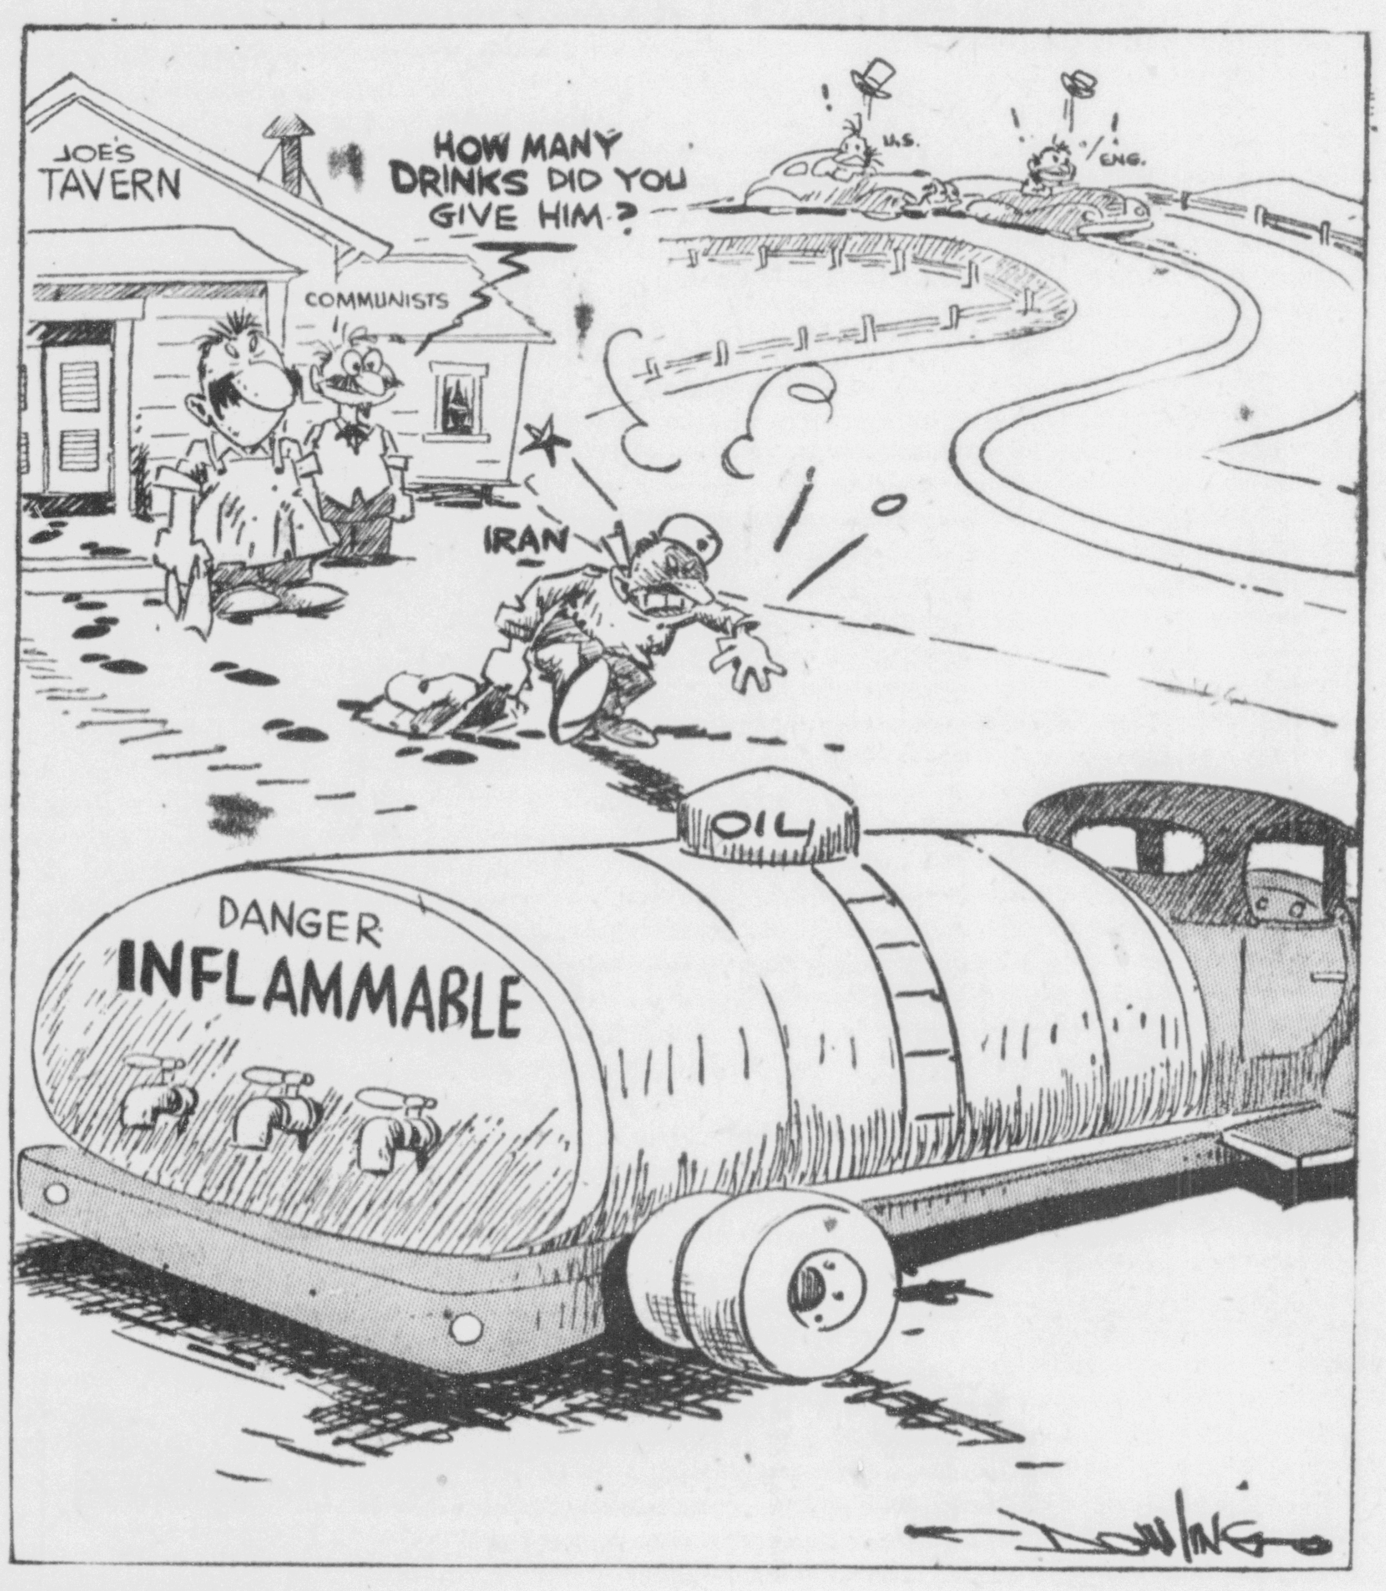
DISCHARGING EAR

G. W. writes: Is there any way to prevent odor from a running ear?

REPLY

In this day and age there should be no draining ears. One of the many wonder drugs usually is successful in eradicating the infection; otherwise surgery is needed for cure. Meanwhile, cleanliness of the ear canal is highly important and the physician may wish to prescribe an antiseptic for this purpose.

And Several For The Road



DREW PEARSON on—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Case Of George S. Wheeler Shows How Unwitting Americans Supported Communists; Civil Service Suspected Him Five Years Before He Was Fired

WASHINGTON—Just a year ago, an American citizen, George S. Wheeler, issued a blast against the United States and announced his intention to live in Czechoslovakia. He and his wife are still there, reportedly teaching school.

Interesting inside fact about Wheeler is that, five years before, the U. S. Civil Service Commission had suspected his disloyalty and ordered him fired. But thanks to the intervention of well-meaning friends, he was reinstated and permitted to occupy a key job in Germany.

The man who chiefly went to bat for Wheeler was David A. Morse, former counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, former Undersecretary of Labor, now with the International Labor Office at Geneva.

To a lesser extent, Wheeler was also supported by Gen. Frank J. McSherry, director of the Manpower Division of the Allied Control Council in Germany, and by Gen. Philip Fleming, then chief of the Public Work Administration, later chairman of the Maritime Commission.

This was back in 1945, of course, when Americans were considerably more trusting than they are now. The incident presents an interesting case history illustrating how unsuspecting Americans can get sucked into supporting Communists.

Worked With KPD

The Civil Service Commission first acted to fire Wheeler when he was chief of the denazification control council in Germany after receiving reports that Wheeler was a courier for the KPD, the German Communist party. This belief arose from the fact that after Wheeler had visited certain cities, the local branch of the KPD would immediately begin agitating along the latest Communist lines.

As a result, William H. Hull of the Civil Service Commission wrote on Jan. 2, 1945: "Mr. Wheeler has followed the Communist line in its changes from before 1939 to date. Evidence relating directly to this matter is supported by other evidence that shows Mr. Wheeler's active participation and sympathetic interests in policies and programs directly and indirectly furthering the objectives of communism."

"The position to which Mr. Wheeler was appointed is of such importance to the Government of the United States . . . that great care must be exercised . . . Mr. Wheeler has been rated ineligible."

However, David A. Morse, then a lieutenant colonel and Wheeler's immediate superior, wrote a long letter, Oct. 1, 1945, stating, among other things:

"I am taking this opportunity now that I am back in the states, to submit this letter in Mr. Wheeler's behalf with my estimate of his high integrity and unquestioned loyalty to America."

Later, Oct. 29, 1945, Morse appeared before the Civil Service Commission and testified that "if Wheeler had been dismissed pursuant to the Civil Service letter of Jan. 2 the constructive side of the U. S. postwar effort in Germany would have been adversely affected."

So Wheeler was reinstated and served with the American Military Government in Germany from Dec. 30, 1945, to Dec. 29, 1947. Three years later, on April 7, 1950, he asked for asylum of the Czech government and has since been reported by the Czech press as making speeches in praise of that "Communist paradise" and attacking the "warmongering" of his native country, the United States of America.

Blocking the Communists

Assistant Postmaster General Jack Redding has given the nation an illustration of what can be done regarding the Chinese Communists diplomatically when you really get on the ball.

Last winter Redding attended a meeting of the Universal Postal Union at Cairo, where the Chinese Communists won an important victory. Despite the objection of the United States and much to Redding's disgust, they were seated as a member of the Union.

However, another meeting of the Postal Union was scheduled for May 21 at St. Gallen, Switzerland, and Redding immediately got busy. He notified the anti-Communist friends of the U.S.A. that we would like to see them attend the St. Gallen meeting and vote with us against China. As a result, Turkey, Mexico, Colombia and Brazil, which had not participated before, showed up.

And this week, thanks to Redding's alertness, the Postal Union voted 10 to 6, with three abstaining, to boot Communist China out of the Postal Union.

Ridgway Vs. Rhee

Gen. Matthew Ridgway sent an important cable to the Defense Department this week regarding his problems with President Syngman Rhee and Korean troops.

President Rhee has insisted that Korean troops be organized as independent units and fight completely on their own. General Ridgway, on the other hand, has found that Korean troops fight well when closely integrated with U. S. troops but break and run when organized as independent units. Each time the Chinese have struck recently, they have aimed their chief blows at the South Koreans.

Therefore, General Ridgway asked the Defense Department to help him straighten out this problem with elderly, crusty President Rhee, who argues that if Korea is to defend itself in the future, its troops must learn to fight independently. Secretary Marshall immediately got in touch with the State Department, secured its cooperation toward informing President Rhee that his troops must be integrated, at least until the crisis is over.

NOTE—At Wake Island, President Truman felt Rhee was a weight around Korea's neck, suggested to General MacArthur that new elections be held. MacArthur differed, stanchly defended Rhee. Truman dropped the matter.

Globosophy

The earth is a large and varied place and the experts on global relations must know more about the human race in all its intricacies than seems possible. For instance, no matter how devoted a man may be to the affairs of Western Europe, he may have no affinity for understanding such complexities as China, Iran, India or the Moslems. And the rule can be applied in other respects, for many Europeans fail altogether to understand the United States particularly when they assume that our charities have an ulterior motive.

We may, at the moment, pause concerning China, Japan and Korea and turn to Iran, which used to be called Persia and also Parthia and Fars and includes a chunk of Armenia. Iran is difficult to know and understand, because like so many countries which once were the greatest on earth and are now dependents upon the good will of peoples that were in the time of Darius unknown to civilization, they resent their own situation and hit out at the parvenus. They fail to realize that they are perhaps the authors of their own misfortunes.

Iran is rich in oil, which is its principal industry. Most of the oil is owned by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, a British enterprise which provides about 15 per cent of the national revenue through royalties and taxes and about 60 per cent of the nation's foreign exchange.

In the 19th Century, Iran, then Persia, was squeezed between Great Britain and Russia and was so hampered that it became one of those weak and backward countries which the Bear and the Lion divided between them into spheres of influence. The Iranians appealed to the United States for help, and in 1911, this country sent a financial expert, W. Morgan Shuster, to Persia to reorganize and manage its finances. He actually was appointed treasurer-general of Persia. Shuster failed because the British and the Russians sabotaged him. They hated each other, but combined to drive out an American.

In this current century of revolution, war, and global baloney, Iran has fared no better and continues to fight for its independent life. Since oil has become so important, and the British own the oil, Soviet Russia would like to capture the country as its own. Several attempts in this direction have been made.

The United States does not wish that Soviet Russia should get the oil of Iran, because the Russians are short of oil and the Iranian deposit is one of the best in the world. If the Russians got hold of that oil, it would improve their war potentiality vastly. In fact, it might be the decisive factor. For many experts believe that it is Russia's inadequate oil supply that keeps Russia from extending her war in Korea to global proportions.

The Iranians, like the Indians, would prefer to be neutral. Their attitude is undoubtedly best represented by Nehru, who takes the position that a war between the United States and Soviet Russia is one from which the weak and small nations should exclude themselves, if they can, or, if they are not permitted to be neutral, they should have freedom to pick the winner as an ally. Unfortunately geography is against this theory as it applies to both India and Iran.

So, Iran, having, since 1947, been rowing with the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company over the 18 year old contracts, is now nationalizing the oil industry, following the example of Great Britain's Socialist government at home, as the saying is, which nationalized 20 per cent of its economy. What, the Iranians assume, is sauce for the goose, should be sauce for the gander—but, of course, that is never quite so.

However, it is just bad business for the United States, in our troubles with Soviet Russia, for the oil of Iran to go to Russia. This can be very serious for us, now that we are so heavily committed to a global war, what with General Eisenhower organizing Europe for war on Russia and the State Department having accepted the MacArthur formula for China.

Therefore, the American view must be that the British can be Socialists in London, but a contract is a contract in Teheran, and that no matter what these Iranians feel about nationalism, we are going to see to it that that oil is not used to kill Americans.

That is the issue, quite simplified, but altogether accurate.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Unfortunately, the full text of the Senate inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the removal of General MacArthur is not getting to the public—or to many officials here either, because it is so voluminous that most newspapers haven't the paper to print it.

It costs at least $25 a day to buy it from the stenographers. The Senate committee will print it a few weeks hence.

This correspondent has read every word of the testimony from the beginning and can state that the record is full of rambling, repetitious, and contradictory statements by senators as well as by witnesses.

The record shows that the committee has needed a counsel and associate counsel to represent the two sides of the controversy and to get the facts arranged in some sort of understandable sequence.

Essential Faces Develop

Only now, in the last hours of General Bradley's testimony, have some of the most essential facts in the whole hearing been developed as a result of intermittent questioning by Senators Knowland, Wiley, Smith of, New Jersey, and Hickenlooper.

From General Bradley's testimony it now is established that:

1. General Bradley is not familiar with the terms of the alleged document which was supposed to have been circulated among 14 nations about a "cease fire" negotiation March 20 last and which, it is now conceded, was never sent to General MacArthur.

2. Although a message was sent, saying the Department of State was "planning" some such announcement, nothing more was ever sent to General MacArthur giving him any word as to a decision to do it. At that time scarcely a week went by that some UN plan to bring about a "cease fire" wasn't reported in the press as the hope of this or that UN faction.

3. The charge that General MacArthur appropriated the language and the terms of the document allegedly circulated among the 14 nations has now been disproved. He never was sent any such document. There is some question that any such document ever was seen by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

4. General Bradley says General MacArthur should have known that there was such a document planned and that he should not have addressed a surrender demand to the enemy. General MacArthur has said in a public statement that he twice had addressed similar demands to the enemy commander and that he did a third time on his own initiative what he previously had twice been authorized to do.

5. General Bradley says that the famous message to the convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars was not in disagreement with the views of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with respect to the strategic importance of Formosa and that he does not know what in that document could have caused the President or the Secretary of State to have been displeased.

6. General Bradley says that General MacArthur did not commit any act of military insubordination and that, so far as he knows, the Far Eastern commander was dismissed for stating certain views publicly, even though it is difficult now to point out just what phrases, if any, were embarrassing and he prefers the Secretary of State to point them out when he testifies.

Differ Over Russia

7. The views of General MacArthur and the Joint Chiefs have been and are generally in agreement on the military course to be pursued, but the difference lies in evaluating Russia's intentions. General MacArthur thinks the Russians will not intervene if Manchurian bases are bombed. General Bradley thinks they might intervene, and that it is this risk which he and other members of the Joint Chiefs say should not be taken.

8. There was a very poor liaison between General MacArthur and Washington. Although Washington officials assumed that the General knew about certain developments, they failed to keep him posted on what they were trying to do through the United Nations, and yet they claim his message to the Chinese commander upset their "cease fire" negotiations. There is no evidence that the Chinese were then or have since been willing to talk peace.

9. It is established by General Bradley—just as General MacArthur claimed — that neither the United States nor the UN has any "policy" in Korea at present except to fight a passive defense, and that there is no intention to carry the war to the bases of supply of the enemy—Red China.

So it looks—and General Bradley admits it—as if the UN is marking time. The UN is waiting for the Chinese Communists to oblige us and negotiate a "settlement." Several senators on the committee are trying to find out what kind of settlement the UN or our government could possibly make which—after withdrawal of our forces—could prevent the Communists at any time from marching across the border again.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Kremlin's New Gambit

LONDON.

Although the American and British policy makers are plainly a bit vague about it, the evidence is overwhelming that the Kremlin is now using a most promising new gambit in its gigantic program of world conquest.

In brief, the Iranian oil dispute is to serve as the fuse which will blow up the whole explosive Middle East. When and if the explosion occurs, Britain will be fearfully weakened. Britain and America will be angrily divided. The Western alliance will be demoralized. And the worst danger to the Soviet Union, the vital strategic airbases in the eastern Mediterranean, will be partly or wholly neutralized.

Then will be the time for the Kremlin to make its next move. The upset in the world balance of power that now threatens in the Middle East will paralyze the Western alliance. And the risk of resistance to a well-planned new aggression, against Yugoslavia for example, will thus be reduced almost to the vanishing point. This is the glittering opportunity for which the Kremlin is now waiting.

It should be understood, moreover, that the masters of the Kremlin have labored with unusual astuteness to create this opportunity. For a year and a half, they have done all in their power to make the more irresponsible Iranian nationalists forget the Russian danger to the north, and to drive them onward in their wild career.

Extremists Gains Power

For example, after the murder of Gen. Razmara and the first nationalization vote, the order was given for the Communist Tudeh party to lead a wave of "anti-British" strikes all over Iran. The strikes precipitated an internal crisis. The crisis brought to power the totally irrational extremist, Dr. Mohammed Mossadegh. Mossadegh's triumph ended all hope of reasonable settlement of the oil dispute by negotiation. Whereat the Soviet Ambassador Sadchikov went to Mossadegh, to promise that the Russians would not move into northern Iran, even if the British landed troops in the south.

This was the subtle final touch, here disclosed for the first time. The much discussed 1921 treaty theoretically gives Moscow the right to send forces into Iran when any other power does so. The fear of a Russian invasion, touched off by a British landing, formerly haunted even Mossadegh. Sadchikov's extraordinary assurance was precisely what was needed to make Mossadegh throw caution to the winds. And thus was produced the present desperate situation.

As these words are written, there is only one ray of light. Some signs in Teheran suggest that the effort to replace the Mossadegh government with a more reasonable administration is not quite so hopeless as it appeared a few days ago, when the Shah was refusing to tackle the problem. A new government with which reasonable negotiations can be carried on in a reasonable way is the only cheap way out. It is to be hoped American influence has been joined with British influence to attain this end.

Plan Won't Work

There is nothing cheap at all about the other supposedly cheap way out that some personalities in both the State Department and the Foreign Office are now mumbling about. This is the plan to "bring the Persians to their senses" by cutting off the Iranian government's oil revenue.

Anyone who has met the leading personalities and smelled the peculiar air of Teheran knows that this plan will almost certainly work in reverse. With the oil revenue cut off, the army and civil service will no longer be paid. Dr. Mossadegh may seek to meet the emergency by making Kerensky-like speeches, until the authority of the government simply dissolves and the Tudeh party takes over. Or more probably, he will go to Moscow for the loan Sadchikov has already hinted about; and he will get it on terms that will open the way for the Tudeh. In short, the betting is nine to one that this supposedly easy way will end with the Tudeh party in power in all of Iran, with the vital oil resource under Soviet control at last.

Yet there is grave danger that the Foreign Office and the State Department will flabbily drift into this foolish course. The State Department is said to have delusions on the subject. Here in London, the precedent is set, since the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company has already suspended revenue payments to the Iranian treasury. The British can hardly fail to retaliate if the Iranians expropriate their oil. They can hardly consider a landing without American moral support. And so the more you examine the situation, the bigger, the heavier, the more grave the American responsibility appears.

Nationalizing Oil Fields

Our government is evidently hoping that out of the diffcult situation in Iran will emerge some arrangement whereby the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, while deprived of its former ownership of oil fields, would be granted rights to the oil produced from them. Some such settlement was made by Mexico with foreign companies when expropriating oil fields prior to World War II.

That the Mexican settlement at least figures in the Iranian mind is indicated by a note sent to Anglo-Iranian by Iranian Finance Minister Varasteh on May 19: "The nationalization of industries is based on the right of the sovereignty of nations, such as exercised by other governments including the British government itself and the Mexican government."

Mexico expropriated foreign oil properties in March, 1938. Of 17 foreign companies involved at that time, 11 were American. The companies originally estimated total American investments at about $200 million, total British investments at $250 million.

The expropriation move was precipitated by union demands for an $11 million-a-year pay raise, pensions, participation in management. The workers' claims were supported by a decision of the Mexican Supreme Court, and President Cardenas announced the signing of the expropriation decree on March 18. The oil companies made a last-minute offer to meet the workers' pay demands but continued in their refusal to yield a share in management. The workers took over the plants.

Legal authority for the expropriation, not in itself challenged by our State Department, rested in a provision of the Mexican constitution adopted under the auspices of the Carranza government in 1917. For more than 20 years thereafter, the issues was discussed, disputed, compromised.

Secretary of State Hull reacted to the expropriation decree with a note recognizing the right of expropriation:

"This government . . . does not undertake to question the right of the Government of Mexico in its sovereign power to expropriate properties within its jurisdiction. This government has, however . . . pointed out . . . that . . . the properties of its nationals so expropriated are required to be paid for by compensation representing fair, assured, and effective value to the nationals from whom these properties were taken."

The dispute was not finally settled until 1943, after both nations were at war with the Axis. Mexico was the keystone of the Roosevelt-Hull Good Neighbor policy for the Americas. Negotiations were particularly delicate for a time because of this nation's concern for its military alliance with Mexico.

By 1939 counter-claims had been filed. The Mexican government put a value of $22,306,000 on the fixed assets of the properties; the estimate of the companies was $262 million as minimum. According to the Mexican estimate, 43 per cent of the value was represented by the holdings of the American companies.

The Sinclair group, a large American interest, reached an agreement for compensation of $8.5 million to be paid over three years, plus a purchase agreement for 20 million barrels of crude oil for four years. In September, 1943, American and Mexican experts appointed under a 1941 agreement placed a value on American properties of almost $24 million—to be paid, plus interest of three per cent retroactive to 1938, by September, 1947.

Increasing Fire Power

From Korea comes a dispatch to the effect that a number of new "wonder weapons" may be put into the hands of American troops there within the next few months. The list is reported to include an entirely new fast-firing rifle, a machine gun that can fire all night long by remote control, a 25-ton airborne tank, and a helicopter with a lifting capacity of three tons.

Thus the fire power of U. S. ground forces will be even greater than it is now—and that fire power has meant the difference between survival and defeat for the U. S. command in Korea. U. S. strategy there must be based on ability to inflict losses on an enemy whose manpower resources are far greater than those of this country.

It is interesting to note that this disclosure followed release of a statement by Maj. Gen. A. C. McAuliffe, chief of the Army Chemical Corps. He declared that the United States has developed a number of weapons that will help to overcome the numerical advantage of the nation's "potential enemies." They are, he said, the "basis of our hope for avoiding World War III."

All of these weapons are improvements on weapons that already exist. The new rifle is only a lighter and faster-firing version of the excellent weapon now in use. Machine guns are nothing new, though this one will certainly appeal to the men who must fire it. The new tank is more powerful than others that have been carried by air and the helicopter can do more useful work, but the difference between them and their predecessors is only one of degree no matter how impressive.

So these are not the instruments for fighting a push-button war. They are improvements to help the infantryman perform his grim assignment—nothing more. Still, that is proof that American military experts have not been misled by the visionaries. As long as they believe that wars will continue to be won the hard way, the nation's chances of survival will be good.

Russia Has The Answer

Although developments in the Korean War are based to a considerable extent upon speculation—at least so far as the American public is concerned—there was no doubt for days that the Chinese Reds were preparing for another major drive against U. S. and other forces in South Korea. American forces took all possible steps to prepare for the onslaught.

There are new reports that the Chinese have a sizable air force in Manchuria, but to date it has not made its appearance over the fighting front.

Regardless of the outcome of the drive, it will certainly have an effect upon Russia's position. If it should succeed, it would seem logical for Russia to jump in to bring decisive victory to communism in the Far East.

If the drive fails, as others in the past have failed, will the Russians then come to the aid of their Chinese comrades and widen the conflict?

As from the beginning of the fighting in Korea, everything depends upon what the Kremlin decides to do. If the Chinese Reds fail of victory in Korea, and Russia does not lend major assistance to them, a stalemate will be in effect.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

A Curable Type Of Baldness

It is not difficult to restore hair when baldness is caused by alopecia areata. In this condition, spontaneous regrowth is the rule and many if not most of the patented hair restorers, rejuvenators, and mange cures owe their chief claim to fame to their good results in this hair disorder. The before and after pictures are impressive, especially to the novice who does not realize that there are different types of baldness. Young and middle-aged men with the more common heriditary variety fall hardest for such remedies.

Alopecia areata is not partial to either sex or to any particular hair color. The hair is shed in patches, leaving smooth, shiny, bald areas. It may start slowly or suddenly; now and then a large patch falls out overnight, leaving the skin tender and reddened for a few days thereafter. In rarer instances, baldness is complete and the individual also loses lashes, eybrows, beard, and hair elsewhere on the body.

The bald regions may be covered or fringed by a downy growth, sometimes surrounded by stumps. The new hairs generally are white at first and become pigmented later. There is no particular pattern to the baldness as in the hereditary type. In these cases there is a gradual thinning at both temples or on top of the head. In alcopecia areata, a spot may begin at the back of the neck or on one side or the other. Nail changes also occur. Virtually every one has heard of a person who became bald after an acute illness such as influenza or typhoid, or after poisoning. Fright and grief are causes that make headlines and there is no doubt that anxiety and mental shock may precipitate this kind of hair loss; but infection or a toxin are the primary causes.

There are many remedies. The application of ultraviolet light is one of the most popular. As a rule, treatments are given in gradually increasing doses to produce mild redness without burning. The ears and adjacent skin should be protected with a towel and the eyes must be guarded. The local application of stimulating caustic solutions has been popular for many years. Solutions containing phenol, iodine, or other blistering fluids often are painted over the bald spots. Oil of turpentine may be useful and mercury or resorcinol have been employed with success.

But treatment will fail unless the general health is maintained at a high level. This means paying strict attention to diet and rest and avoiding anxiety and worry. Benefit also is obtained by getting out into the fresh air and sunshine. Toxic factors are minimized by the removal of abscessed teeth and infected tonsils. If anemia exists, iron is helpful, as is thyroid extract if there is a deficient secretion of this hormone.

TOMORROW: The hereditary factor in disease is discussed by Dr. Van Dellen.

POOR CIRCULATION

L. D. writes: Are hot foot baths good for a person with arteriosclerosis of the legs?

REPLY

No; heat is not advised in any form. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on care of the feet and legs in individuals with impaired circulation to the extremities.

ECZEMA IN INFANT

Mrs. H. writes: Should an infant with eczema be bathed in olive oil?

REPLY

In some cases oils or cleansing creams are preferred to water. In others the addition of starch, bran, or oatmeal to the bath water will give good results. It is more important to discover the cause of the eczema. In the majority, the culprit is a food to which the baby is sensitive.

THROBBING VEIN

G. F. writes: My father insists that he can tell the condition of his heart and blood pressure by watching the throbbing of the vein on the inside of his elbow. Would you write a few words to convince him that he is wrong?

REPLY

It is not normal for a vein to throb and perhaps your father could use more expert advise than his own along this line.

NOT LIKELY

K. J. writes: Is a person with gallstones more likely to develop cancer than one with no stones?

REPLY

I doubt if it makes any difference. Stones have nothing to do with cancer.

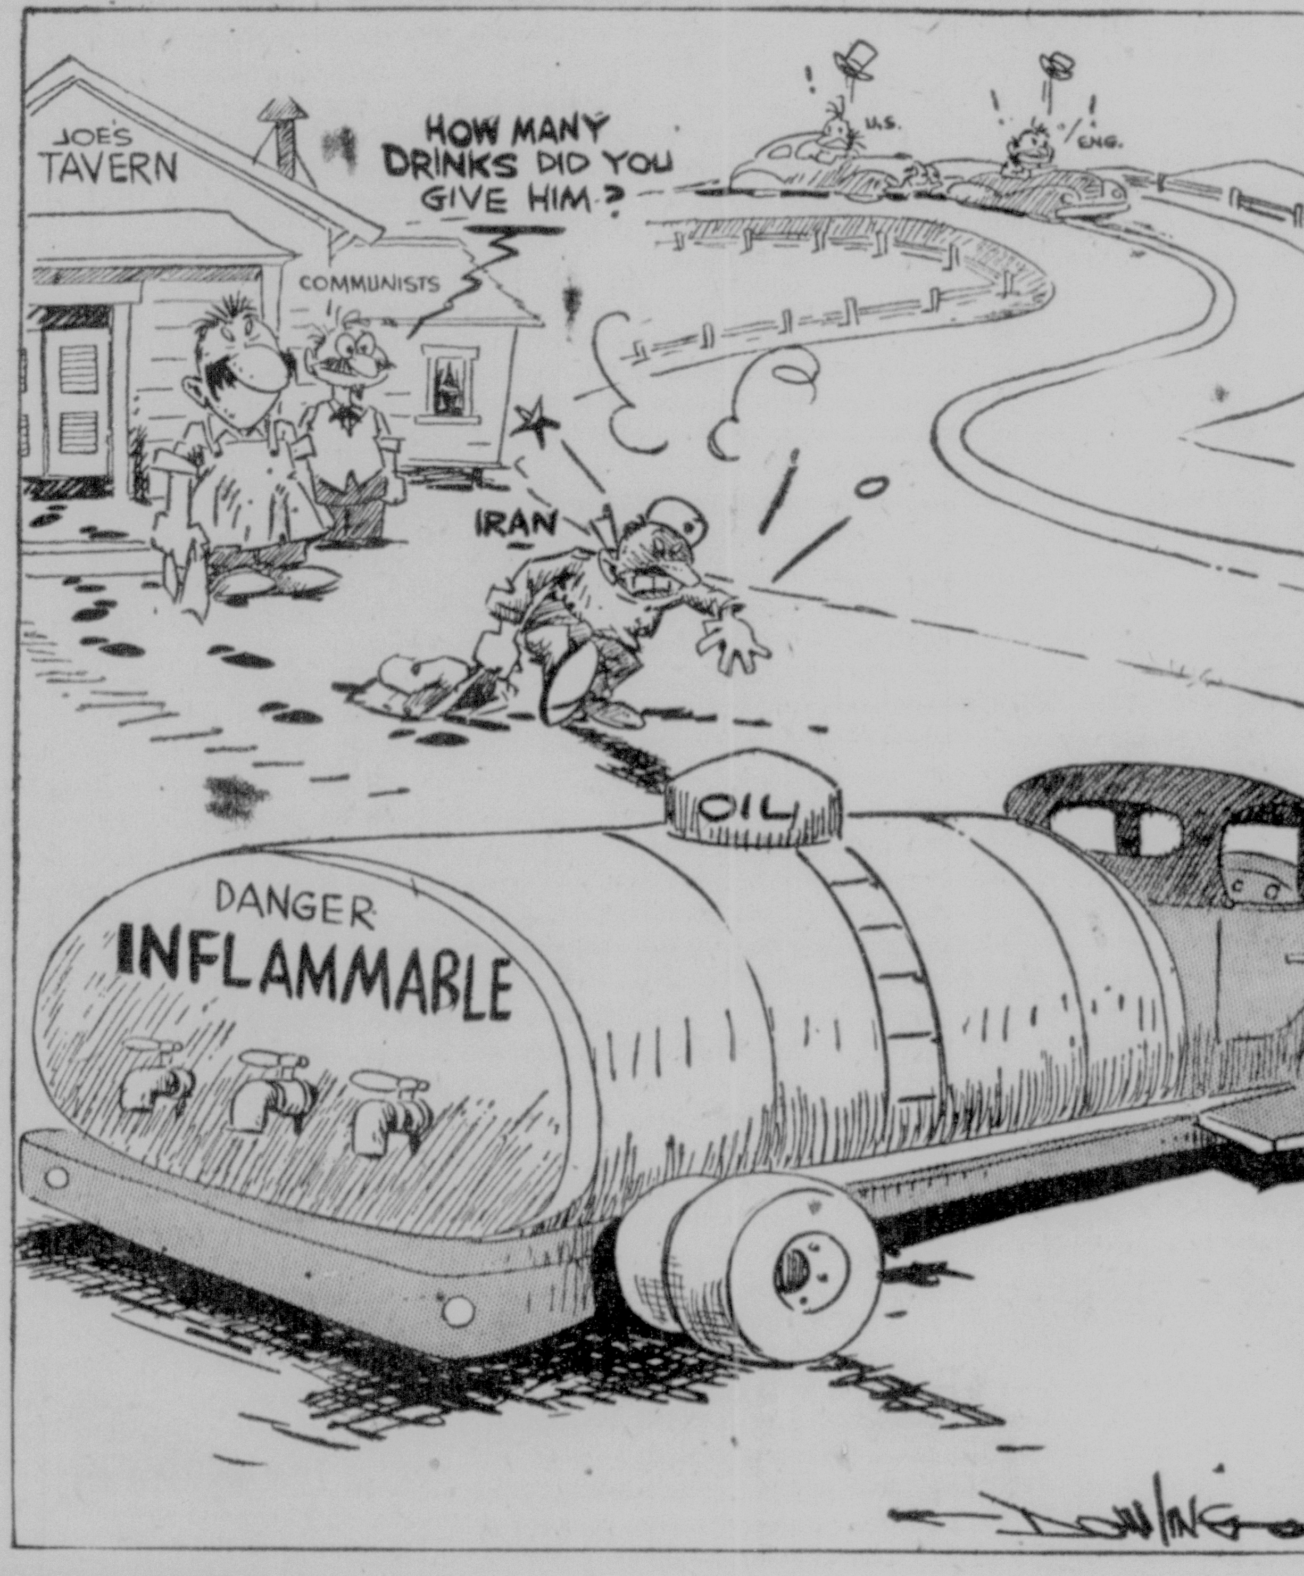
DISCHARGING EAR

G. W. writes: Is there any way to prevent odor from a running ear?

REPLY

In this day and age there should be no draining ears. One of the many wonder drugs usually is successful in eradicating the infection; otherwise surgery is needed for cure. Meanwhile, cleanliness of the ear canal is highly important and the physician may wish to prescribe an antiseptic for this purpose.

And Several For The Road



DREW PEARSON on—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Case Of George S. Wheeler Shows How Unwitting Americans Supported Communists; Civil Service Suspected Him Five Years Before He Was Fired

WASHINGTON—Just a year ago, an American citizen, George S. Wheeler, issued a blast against the United States and announced his intention to live in Czechoslovakia. He and his wife are still there, reportedly teaching school.

Interesting inside fact about Wheeler is that, five years before, the U. S. Civil Service Commission had suspected his disloyalty and ordered him fired. But thanks to the intervention of well-meaning friends, he was reinstated and permitted to occupy a key job in Germany.

The man who chiefly went to bat for Wheeler was David A. Morse, former counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, former Undersecretary of Labor, now with the International Labor Office at Geneva.

To a lesser extent, Wheeler was also supported by Gen. Frank J. McSherry, director of the Manpower Division of the Allied Control Council in Germany, and by Gen. Philip Fleming, then chief of the Public Work Administration, later chairman of the Maritime Commission.

This was back in 1945, of course, when Americans were considerably more trusting than they are now. The incident presents an interesting case history illustrating how unsuspecting Americans can get sucked into supporting Communists.

Worked With KPD

The Civil Service Commission first acted to fire Wheeler when he was chief of the denazification control council in Germany after receiving reports that Wheeler was a courier for the KPD, the German Communist party. This belief arose from the fact that after Wheeler had visited certain cities, the local branch of the KPD would immediately begin agitating along the latest Communist lines.

As a result, William H. Hull of the Civil Service Commission wrote on Jan. 2, 1945: "Mr. Wheeler has followed the Communist line in its changes from before 1939 to date. Evidence relating directly to this matter is supported by other evidence that shows Mr. Wheeler's active participation and sympathetic interests in policies and programs directly and indirectly furthering the objectives of communism."

"The position to which Mr. Wheeler was appointed is of such importance to the Government of the United States . . . that great care must be exercised . . . Mr. Wheeler has been rated ineligible."

However, David A. Morse, then a lieutenant colonel and Wheeler's immediate superior, wrote a long letter, Oct. 1, 1945, stating, among other things:

"I am taking this opportunity now that I am back in the states, to submit this letter in Mr. Wheeler's behalf with my estimate of his high integrity and unquestioned loyalty to America."

Later, Oct. 29, 1945, Morse appeared before the Civil Service Commission and testified that "if Wheeler had been dismissed pursuant to the Civil Service letter of Jan. 2 the constructive side of the U. S. postwar effort in Germany would have been adversely affected."

So Wheeler was reinstated and served with the American Military Government in Germany from Dec. 30, 1945, to Dec. 29, 1947. Three years later, on April 7, 1950, he asked for asylum of the Czech government and has since been reported by the Czech press as making speeches in praise of that "Communist paradise" and attacking the "warmongering" of his native country, the United States of America.

Blocking the Communists

Assistant Postmaster General Jack Redding has given the nation an illustration of what can be done regarding the Chinese Communists diplomatically when you really get on the ball.

Last winter Redding attended a meeting of the Universal Postal Union at Cairo, where the Chinese Communists won an important victory. Despite the objection of the United States and much to Redding's disgust, they were seated as a member of the Union.

However, another meeting of the Postal Union was scheduled for May 21 at St. Gallen, Switzerland, and Redding immediately got busy. He notified the anti-Communist friends of the U.S.A. that we would like to see them attend the St. Gallen meeting and vote with us against China. As a result, Turkey, Mexico, Colombia and Brazil, which had not participated before, showed up.

And this week, thanks to Redding's alertness, the Postal Union voted 10 to 6, with three abstaining, to boot Communist China out of the Postal Union.

Ridgway Vs. Rhee

Gen. Matthew Ridgway sent an important cable to the Defense Department this week regarding his problems with President Syngman Rhee and Korean troops.

President Rhee has insisted that Korean troops be organized as independent units and fight completely on their own. General Ridgway, on the other hand, has found that Korean troops fight well when closely integrated with U. S. troops but break and run when organized as independent units. Each time the Chinese have struck recently, they have aimed their chief blows at the South Koreans.

Therefore, General Ridgway asked the Defense Department to help him straighten out this problem with elderly, crusty President Rhee, who argues that if Korea is to defend itself in the future, its troops must learn to fight independently. Secretary Marshall immediately got in touch with the State Department, secured its cooperation toward informing President Rhee that his troops must be integrated, at least until the crisis is over.

NOTE—At Wake Island, President Truman felt Rhee was a weight around Korea's neck, suggested to General MacArthur that new elections be held. MacArthur differed, stanchly defended Rhee. Truman dropped the matter.

Globosophy

The earth is a large and varied place and the experts on global relations must know more about the human race in all its intricacies than seems possible. For instance, no matter how devoted a man may be to the affairs of Western Europe, he may have no affinity for understanding such complexities as China, Iran, India or the Moslems. And the rule can be applied in other respects, for many Europeans fail altogether to understand the United States particularly when they assume that our charities have an ulterior motive.

We may, at the moment, pause concerning China, Japan and Korea and turn to Iran, which used to be called Persia and also Parthia and Fars and includes a chunk of Armenia. Iran is difficult to know and understand, because like so many countries which once were the greatest on earth and are now dependents upon the good will of peoples that were in the time of Darius unknown to civilization, they resent their own situation and hit out at the parvenus. They fail to realize that they are perhaps the authors of their own misfortunes.

Iran is rich in oil, which is its principal industry. Most of the oil is owned by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, a British enterprise which provides about 15 per cent of the national revenue through royalties and taxes and about 60 per cent of the nation's foreign exchange.

In the 19th Century, Iran, then Persia, was squeezed between Great Britain and Russia and was so hampered that it became one of those weak and backward countries which the Bear and the Lion divided between them into spheres of influence. The Iranians appealed to the United States for help, and in 1911, this country sent a financial expert, W. Morgan Shuster, to Persia to reorganize and manage its finances. He actually was appointed treasurer-general of Persia. Shuster failed because the British and the Russians sabotaged him. They hated each other, but combined to drive out an American.

In this current century of revolution, war, and global baloney, Iran has fared no better and continues to fight for its independent life. Since oil has become so important, and the British own the oil, Soviet Russia would like to capture the country as its own. Several attempts in this direction have been made.

The United States does not wish that Soviet Russia should get the oil of Iran, because the Russians are short of oil and the Iranian deposit is one of the best in the world. If the Russians got hold of that oil, it would improve their war potentiality vastly. In fact, it might be the decisive factor. For many experts believe that it is Russia's inadequate oil supply that keeps Russia from extending her war in Korea to global proportions.

The Iranians, like the Indians, would prefer to be neutral. Their attitude is undoubtedly best represented by Nehru, who takes the position that a war between the United States and Soviet Russia is one from which the weak and small nations should exclude themselves, if they can, or, if they are not permitted to be neutral, they should have freedom to pick the winner as an ally. Unfortunately geography is against this theory as it applies to both India and Iran.

So, Iran, having, since 1947, been rowing with the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company over the 18 year old contracts, is now nationalizing the oil industry, following the example of Great Britain's Socialist government at home, as the saying is, which nationalized 20 per cent of its economy. What, the Iranians assume, is sauce for the goose, should be sauce for the gander—but, of course, that is never quite so.

However, it is just bad business for the United States, in our troubles with Soviet Russia, for the oil of Iran to go to Russia. This can be very serious for us, now that we are so heavily committed to a global war, what with General Eisenhower organizing Europe for war on Russia and the State Department having accepted the MacArthur formula for China.

Therefore, the American view must be that the British can be Socialists in London, but a contract is a contract in Teheran, and that no matter what these Iranians feel about nationalism, we are going to see to it that that oil is not used to kill Americans.

That is the issue, quite simplified, but altogether accurate.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Unfortunately, the full text of the Senate inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the removal of General MacArthur is not getting to the public—or to many officials here either, because it is so voluminous that most newspapers haven't the paper to print it.

It costs at least $25 a day to buy it from the stenographers. The Senate committee will print it a few weeks hence.

This correspondent has read every word of the testimony from the beginning and can state that the record is full of rambling, repetitious, and contradictory statements by senators as well as by witnesses.

The record shows that the committee has needed a counsel and associate counsel to represent the two sides of the controversy and to get the facts arranged in some sort of understandable sequence.

Essential Faces Develop

Only now, in the last hours of General Bradley's testimony, have some of the most essential facts in the whole hearing been developed as a result of intermittent questioning by Senators Knowland, Wiley, Smith of, New Jersey, and Hickenlooper.

From General Bradley's testimony it now is established that:

1. General Bradley is not familiar with the terms of the alleged document which was supposed to have been circulated among 14 nations about a "cease fire" negotiation March 20 last and which, it is now conceded, was never sent to General MacArthur.

2. Although a message was sent, saying the Department of State was "planning" some such announcement, nothing more was ever sent to General MacArthur giving him any word as to a decision to do it. At that time scarcely a week went by that some UN plan to bring about a "cease fire" wasn't reported in the press as the hope of this or that UN faction.

3. The charge that General MacArthur appropriated the language and the terms of the document allegedly circulated among the 14 nations has now been disproved. He never was sent any such document. There is some question that any such document ever was seen by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

4. General Bradley says General MacArthur should have known that there was such a document planned and that he should not have addressed a surrender demand to the enemy. General MacArthur has said in a public statement that he twice had addressed similar demands to the enemy commander and that he did a third time on his own initiative what he previously had twice been authorized to do.

5. General Bradley says that the famous message to the convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars was not in disagreement with the views of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with respect to the strategic importance of Formosa and that he does not know what in that document could have caused the President or the Secretary of State to have been displeased.

6. General Bradley says that General MacArthur did not commit any act of military insubordination and that, so far as he knows, the Far Eastern commander was dismissed for stating certain views publicly, even though it is difficult now to point out just what phrases, if any, were embarrassing and he prefers the Secretary of State to point them out when he testifies.

Differ Over Russia

7. The views of General MacArthur and the Joint Chiefs have been and are generally in agreement on the military course to be pursued, but the difference lies in evaluating Russia's intentions. General MacArthur thinks the Russians will not intervene if Manchurian bases are bombed. General Bradley thinks they might intervene, and that it is this risk which he and other members of the Joint Chiefs say should not be taken.

8. There was a very poor liaison between General MacArthur and Washington. Although Washington officials assumed that the General knew about certain developments, they failed to keep him posted on what they were trying to do through the United Nations, and yet they claim his message to the Chinese commander upset their "cease fire" negotiations. There is no evidence that the Chinese were then or have since been willing to talk peace.

9. It is established by General Bradley—just as General MacArthur claimed — that neither the United States nor the UN has any "policy" in Korea at present except to fight a passive defense, and that there is no intention to carry the war to the bases of supply of the enemy—Red China.

So it looks—and General Bradley admits it—as if the UN is marking time. The UN is waiting for the Chinese Communists to oblige us and negotiate a "settlement." Several senators on the committee are trying to find out what kind of settlement the UN or our government could possibly make which—after withdrawal of our forces — could prevent the Communists at any time from marching across the border again.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Kremlin's New Gambit

LONDON.

Although the American and British policy makers are plainly a bit vague about it, the evidence is overwhelming that the Kremlin is now using a most promising new gambit in its gigantic program of world conquest.

In brief, the Iranian oil dispute is to serve as the fuse which will blow up the whole explosive Middle East. When and if the explosion occurs, Britain will be fearfully weakened. Britain and America will be angrily divided. The Western alliance will be demoralized. And the worst danger to the Soviet Union, the vital strategic airbases in the eastern Mediterranean, will be partly or wholly neutralized.

Then will be the time for the Kremlin to make its next move. The upset in the world balance of power that now threatens in the Middle East will paralyze the Western alliance. And the risk of resistance to a well-planned new aggression, against Yugoslavia for example, will thus be reduced almost to the vanishing point. This is the glittering opportunity for which the Kremlin is now waiting.

It should be understood, moreover, that the masters of the Kremlin have labored with unusual astuteness to create this opportunity. For a year and a half, they have done all in their power to make the more irresponsible Iranian nationalists forget the Russian danger to the north, and to drive them onward in their wild career.

Extremists Gains Power

For example, after the murder of Gen. Razmara and the first nationalization vote, the order was given for the Communist Tudeh party to lead a wave of "anti-British" strikes all over Iran. The strikes precipitated an internal crisis. The crisis brought to power the totally irrational extremist, Dr. Mohammed Mossadegh. Mossadegh's triumph ended all hope of reasonable settlement of the oil dispute by negotiation. Whereat the Soviet Ambassador Sadchikov went to Mossadegh, to promise that the Russians would not move into northern Iran, even if the British landed troops in the south.

This was the subtle final touch, here disclosed for the first time. The much discussed 1921 treaty theoretically gives Moscow the right to send forces into Iran when any other power does so. The fear of a Russian invasion, touched off by a British landing, formerly haunted even Mossadegh. Sadchikov's extraordinary assurance was precisely what was needed to make Mossadegh throw caution to the winds. And thus was produced the present desperate situation.

As these words are written, there is only one ray of light. Some signs in Teheran suggest that the effort to replace the Mossadegh government with a more reasonable administration is not quite so hopeless as it appeared a few days ago, when the Shah was refusing to tackle the problem. A new government with which reasonable negotiations can be carried on in a reasonable way is the only cheap way out. It is to be hoped American influence has been joined with British influence to attain this end.

Plan Won't Work

There is nothing cheap at all about the other supposedly cheap way out that some personalities in both the State Department and the Foreign Office are now mumbling about. This is the plan to "bring the Persians to their senses" by cutting off the Iranian government's oil revenue.

Anyone who has met the leading personalities and smelled the peculiar air of Teheran knows that this plan will almost certainly work in reverse. With the oil revenue cut off, the army and civil service will no longer be paid. Dr. Mossadegh may seek to meet the emergency by making Kerensky-like speeches, until the authority of the government simply dissolves and the Tudeh party takes over. Or more probably, he will go to Moscow for the loan Sadchikov has already hinted about; and he will get it on terms that will open the way for the Tudeh. In short, the betting is nine to one that this supposedly easy way will end with the Tudeh party in power in all of Iran, with the vital oil resource under Soviet control at last.

Yet there is grave danger that the Foreign Office and the State Department will flabbily drift into this foolish course. The State Department is said to have delusions on the subject. Here in London, the precedent is set, since the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company has already suspended revenue payments to the Iranian treasury. The British can hardly fail to retaliate if the Iranians expropriate their oil. They can hardly consider a landing without American moral support. And so the more you examine the situation, the bigger, the heavier, the more grave the American responsibility appears.

What Is Funny?

George Abbott, the producer, Ed Streeter, author of "Father of the Bride" who doubles as a banker, and I were talking about humor the other day.

"Do you think it's funny to send a telegram and sign another name to fool the guy who gets its?" I asked. "The idea, of course, is to push him into an embarrassing situation."

"It's not funny to me," replied Mr. Abbott. "And furthermore I think you can be put in the sneezer for doing it or maybe get a punch in the nose."

Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, likes to rib his friends with phony wires, and, of course, he runs little risk of being punched in the nose, unless perhaps he addresses one to Jack Dempsey.

"I think it's funny if a man stubs his toe in the street and falls down, or if his hat blows off, and he has to chase it," observed Mr. Streeter.

My contention was these misfortunes are not very amusing and I reminded my companions that underlying most humor is a streak of cruelty, especially practical joking. Then I recalled one day Ed Streeter and I had lunch together as guests of John Golden, a rainy, blustery afternoon. As we walked up 44th Street, at the corner of Seventh Avenue a gust struck us and turned both our umbrellas inside out, finally blowing the whole covering off my friends, leaving him holding a bare stick in the air while his hat was sailing down the block eventually landing in the gutter.

"Wsa that funny?" I asked him.

"I guess so, but it didn't amuse me much then, because it was a borrowed umbrella, and I had to pay $10 for one to replace it. The next day I lost another, and the total expenses were $20."

"I suggest you get yourself an old hat and a raincoat," said Mr. Abbott. "I think falls and other misfortunes are funnier on the stage when they are rehearsed than in real life." He left the table at the Coffee House where we were having lunch and went back to direct another hit.

This discussion led me to re-read Haircut, a wonderful short story by Ring Lardner about a practical joker who thinks he is a great humorist and finally gets shot dead for his pains by the town's halfwit. Here are a couple of examples of his jests, quoting Mr. Lardner:

"Well, he waited till Evans' Circus was advertised to come to town. Then he told his wife and two kiddies that he was going to take them to the circus. The day of the circus, he told them he would get the tickets and meet them outside the entrance to the tent.

"Well, he didn't have no intentions of bein' there or buyin' tickets or nothin'. He got full of gin and laid round Wright's poolroom all day. His wife and the kids waited and waited and, of course, he didn't show up. His wife didn't have a dime with her, or nowhere else, I guess. So she finally had to tell the kids it was all off, and they cried like they wasn't never goin' to stop."

"Jim had a great trick that he used to play while he was travelin'. For instance, he'd be ridin' on a train and they'd come to some little town like, well, like, we'll say, like Benton. Jim would look out the train window and read the signs on the stores.

"For instance, they'd be a sign, 'Henry Smith, Dry Goods'. Well, Jim would write down the name and the name of the town and when he got to wherever he was goin' he'd mail back a postal card to Henry Smith at Benton and not sign no name to it, but he'd rite on the card, well, somethin' like 'Ask your wife about that book agent that spent the afternoon last week', or 'Ask your Missus who kept her from gettin' lonesome the last time you were in Carterville'. And he'd sign the card, 'A Friend'."

As the editor of Liberty magazine, I bought and published this great and bitter tale. The circulation manager complained,

"I wish you wouldn't print any more stories about barbershops. There's no circulation in those places nowadays."

Red Claims Cure For Skin Cancer

MOSCOW (AP) — The magazine Ogonek says that a Soviet scientist had discovered a fluid which cures skin cancers completely with one treatment.

The fluid, the nature of which was not disclosed, was discovered by Dr. Vyacheslav Gordeev of Stanislav, in the Western Ukraine, Ogonek said, and already has ended the sufferings of thousands of patients.

The article claimed that the fluid also cures skin ulcers of various sorts and ulcerous and warty tuberculosis of the skin.

(In Chicago, a spokesman for the American Medical Association said he is "inclined to doubt that it's anything new."

(The spokesman said skin cancers have been treated successfully in this country with zinc chloride. He said this treatment has been perfected by a physician connected with the University of Iowa at Iowa city).

YBW To Have Outing And Weekend Trip

The Young Business Women's Club formulated plans for June activities at the monthly social, Wednesday held in the form of a dinner party at Moon's Dining Room, followed by a theater party.

A weekend trip to Hershey, Pa., is to be made June 9-10; and the monthly social will be a hamburger fry, June 27 at the home of Miss Louise Cessna, Shade's Lane. The usual business session is to be June 13.

Attending Wednesday's parties were Miss Cessna, Miss Virginia Kathleen Daugherty, Miss Naomi Beall, Miss Catherine Kirk, Miss Parks, Miss Beatrice Parks, Miss Bernadetta Flora, Miss Mary Ellen Helmick, Miss Ellen Newman, Miss Mary Ottiero, Miss Hannah Drubeck, Miss Betty Creegan, Miss Beverly Smith and Miss Joan Spiker.

PMC Jewell Conferred By DeMolay

Cumberland Chapter, Order of DeMolay entertained a group of members of the Reisterstown Chapter and presented a past masters councilors jewel to Charles Thrasher at the meeting Wednesday evening at the Masonic temple. James J. Kave, dad of the chapter, made the presentation. He also asked for introductions of the 20 Reisterstown members.

Julius Schindler was the principal speaker for the evening. His topic was "The World of Today." He warned that communistic countries and countries with dictators do not permit DeMolay or Masonic Chapters to operate. He also pointed out numerous presidents of the United States and other great men were Masons, listing especially Washington, John Adams and Theodore Roosevelt.

Plans were formulated to have installation of officers June 13. Walter Eyler is to officiate. William Burke is to be inducted as master councilor; James Chenowith, senior councilor; and Douglas Ritchie, junior councilor.

A social hour concluded the evening and refreshments were served by members of the DeMolay Mothers Club.

Music Class Entertains

The Second Year Adult Music class at Fort Hill High School had a party Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Gross, Jr., Pearre Avenue.

An appreciation gift was presented to Aden Lewis, the music instructor. Mr. Lewis also played several of his favorite classical compositions for the group.

Games and music featured the entertainment and a prize was won by Mrs. Virginia Green.

Spring flowers centered the refreshment table and a pastel color scheme was repeated in the table appointments.

Others present were Mrs. Esther Copeland, Mrs. Gertrude Hartsock, Mrs. Mary Hiner, Mrs. Rose Hay, Mrs. Betsy Reynolds and Miss Hilda Willison, chairman of the class.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Strawderman and daughter, Miami Beach, Fla., who have been visiting relatives here have left for Winchester, Va., to be the guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Strawderman.

Miss Edith Streett, Country Club Road, and Miss Evelyn O'Donnell, 810 Avirett Avenue, are spending a week's vacation in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Seel, Montgomery Avenue, have returned from Pittsburgh, where they attended the B and O Veterans convention.

Mrs. Ann Leith, Seymour Street, is a surgical patient in Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Clara Hutton, Christie Road, is a surgical patient in Memorial Hospital.

NEWLYWEDS—Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stemple are shown cutting their wedding cake at the reception given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Harold Walton, 408 Hill Street, at the VFW home following their marriage in Centre Street Methodist Church, May 18. The bride is the former Miss Mary Jane Walton. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Buford Cross, 614 Maryland Avenue, and James A. Stemple, 412 Central Avenue.

Ruth M. Buckle To Become Bride Of Robert Glotfelty

Ceremony To Be In Living Stone Church

Miss Ruth Maxine Buckle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Buckle, 717 Patterson Avenue, is to become the bride of Robert Oren Glotfelty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orval C. Glotfelty, Accident, tomorrow.

The double ring ceremony will be solemnized at 3 p. m., in the living Stone Church of the Brethren, with Rev. Arthur Scrogum officiating. Palms, ferns, candelabra and altar vases of white snapdragons and gladioli are being used in the decorations of the church. White satin ribbons mark the pews.

Miss Shirley Johnson is to be the bride's maid of honor and Mrs. Jane Adams, sister of the bride and Mrs. Yvonne Williams, Geistown, bridesmaids. Dale Glotfelty is serving as his brother's best man while John Reckner, Jr., Accident, and Daniel Klotz, Grantsville, are the ushers.

A program of nuptial music, including, "Why Do I Love You," Traumerei," Leibestraum," To an Evening Star," "Poeme," 'Ave Maria," and "Because," will be played by Miss Roberta Koontz preceding the ceremony. She also will play the traditional processional from the opera Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's recessional, and accompany Miss Antoinette Cantone, who is to sing, "O Promise Me," and "I Love You Truly," and during the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love." Miss Betty May, Washington, is giving a reading, 'How Do I Love Thee," during the ceremony.

The bride, who is to be given in marriage by her father, is wearing a white satin and lace gown fashioned on princess lines. The fitted bodice has long sleeves with deep lace cuffs ending in a point on the hand, and standing lace collar. The full satin skirt ends in a sweeping train. Her fingertip length veil of bridal illusion is held by a Juliette cap of lace and satin. A bouquet of white snapdragons, gardenias and babysbreath with a white orchid center and white satin streamers completes her costume.

Her attendants' gowns are of Celanese voile, fashioned with off the shoulder tight bodices and full skirts over taffeta. The maid of honor's is pink; Mrs. Adams' blue and Mrs. Williams' yellow. With them they have tiaras of flowers and net matching their gowns, matching mitts and Colonial bouquets.

Mrs. Buckle has chosen a light blue dress for her daughter's wedding. With it she will wear Navy and white accessories and a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Glotfelty is wearing a beige print with matching accessories and a corsage of white orchids.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Allegany High School, class of 1947 and is employed in the Distribution department of the Kelly Springfield Tire Company for the past four years..

Her fiancee is a graduate of Grantsville High School and a veteran of 26 months service in the armed forces, part of which was spent in the Pacific Theater of Operations. He is at present engaged in farming.

Mr. and Mrs. Buckle are entertaining with a reception for their daughter and her bridal party in the church social room, following the ceremony. The bridal motif is to be carried out in the four tiered wedding cake with a miniature bride and bridegroom. White candles and vases of snapdragons are decorating the table. Mrs. Virgil Ice, city; and Mrs. Donald Buckle, Arlington, Va., are to serve the cake while Miss Mary Elizabeth Ice and Miss Betty Lou Glotfelty, Accident will preside at the punch bowl. Miss May is in charge of the guest book.

For their trip North, the bride has chosen a beige suit with red accessories and her white orchid corsage.

Mrs. William Adams, Bowling Green entertained with a pre-nuptial miscellaneous shower for Miss Buckle recently. The bridal theme was carried out in the decorations of the table and repeated throughout the house. Guests were Mrs. George Johnson, Mrs. Joseph May, Mrs. Charles Roby, Mrs. Donald Ridgeley, Mrs. Joseph Knepp, Mrs. Maynard Hasenbuhler, Mrs. Virgil Ice, Mrs. William Powell, Mrs. Charles Bickle, Miss Shirley Johnson and Miss Roberta Koontz.

Auxiliary Mission Unit Is Organized

An auxiliary mission unit was organized at a meeting of a group of women especially interested in the work, Wednesday evening in St. Patrick's Social Center. The unit will assist the catechetical and charitable work of the Mission Helpers of the Sacred Heart, whose mother house is at Townson.

Sister M. Rosalia, M.H.S.H., the former Miss Josephine Walsh of this city, came from Townson to address the group. She gave an account of the sister's work in rural districts, in parish census work and in training lay catechists in many parts of the United States and Puerto Rico.

Officers elected were Mrs. Francis M. Donahue, president; Mrs. Francis Briner, vice president; Mrs. Francis L. Werner, secretary and Mrs. John Brinker, treasurer.

The group of women personally has been sponsoring car parties to raise funds for the Mission Helpers.

Monthly meetings are planned and membership is not restricted. Approximately 20 women attended the organization meeting. Sister Antionette accompanied Sister Rosalia here.

Country Club Supper-Dance To Be June 2

The first big event of the summer season of the Cumberland Country Club will be a buffet supper and dance, June 2.

Supper is to be served at 6:30 and will be followed at 8 by a program of musical and novelty numbers by the Choristers, under the direction of Jack Platt.

Brad Hunt and his orchestra from Pittsburgh will play for the dancing until 1:30.

The swimming pool and snack bar will open the second also.

Another club dance is scheduled for July 14, at which time Brad Hunt's orchestra will play again.

The children's playground is to open July 17 this year instead of earlier as originally announced. Eugene Mason, who has finished his second year at Potomac State School and has two years' experience in city recreation activities, will be in charge. He is a Red Cross life guard and will supervise swimming classes and water games for the children. He is also teaching tennis classes.

Miss Elizabeth Long, is serving as his assistant and will work with the younger children.

The Men's Golf team will play Bedford June 6; Uniontown, June 10 and Hagerstown, June 24. A meeting of the Women's Golf Association is to be June 12, with a game with Hagerstown on the 21; and an invitation tournament July 13.

Norma Jean Smith Is Bride Of D. M. Braesecker

The marriage of Miss Norma Jean Smith to Don M. Braesecker, Berlin, Pa., has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Smith, 870 Maryland Avenue, parents of the bride. The ceremony was performed May 2 by Rev. Stephen L. Fleckenger, pastor of Centenary Reformed Church, Winchester, Va.

The bride is a graduate of Fort Hill High School and Memorial Hospital School of Nursing. She is employed on the staff at the hospital.

A veteran of World War II, the bridegroom is employed by the Pennsylvania Telephone Company, Somerset, Pa.

"swimsuit beauty with foundation fit"

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

PARIS — The tourist today takes home a thousand dear little memories, stuffed into the pockets of his brain for future reference, to pull out and tenderly go over in years to come . . . About Paris you will never forget:

How unmarked by war it is, one of the only important cities in Europe which war did not wound . . . At least not outwardly . . . Inside, the four bitter years of German occupation left, I suppose, on their inner spirits wounds that still pain.

AUSTINE

But in spring Paris is mainly occupied with itself, with its own beauty. You may come and go as you like. Parisians don't notice you. They are wrapped up in their own pleasure over their treasure of a city . . . The children playing in the Luxembourg Gardens . . . Generations of children who have played here. A Roman camp once stood on this very site in Caesar's time before the birth of Christ.

The way a little girl's face is washed may determine the texture of her complexion in her adult years!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

With a young daughter of my own and many a model mother among the Powers Girls, the subject of a child's skin care is never slighted in our study and quest of beauty.

The radiance of a little girl's face, shining and bright as a new penny, is something every parent treasures. But how many are giving that clear, natural complexion the care that will keep it radiant for the lady through years to come?

Clear, Radiant Skin

A little girl's complexion has the best chance of maturing naturally and beautifully, if you . . .

1. Don't scrub! Never use strong soap, harsh brushes, rough washcloths or overly vigorous techniques. Such treatment injures the healthiest skin; leads to irritations during adolescence and lines in maturity.

2. Cleanse your child's face with extreme care and teach her how as soon as she's old enough. Establish this good habit early—she'll thank you from the time she reaches the age of understanding and on into the years!

3. Use only the mildest of lanolin-based soaps. Shaving cream containing lanolin does the job expertly, lathers quickly and generously. Many fluid and cream cleansers take care of skins that will not tolerate soap.

4. Remember rough treatment cleanses no better than gentle. The cleanser itself is what accomplishes the deep-pore penetration. Use your fingertips or only the softest badger or synthetic-tufted complexion brush to wash a child's face.

Use Lanolin Lubricant

5. Lubricate the skin nightly, winter and summer. A simple lanolin-based lubricant is enough for baby skins.

6. Restrict sweets but do not cut them altogether. Every normal skin needs a balanced diet.

7. Don't employ home remedies in case of a wide-spread irritation. Consult a dermatologist at once, especially in the case of teenagers. He can advise you of many new cures for adolescent skin difficulties.

Note the similarity to the care of mother's skin? They're pretty much the same!

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS WASTE

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slowdown of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

PARIS — The tourist today takes home a thousand dear little memories, stuffed into the pockets of his brain for future reference, to pull out and tenderly go over in years to come . . . About Paris you will never forget:

How unmarked by war it is, one of the only important cities in Europe which war did not wound . . . At least not outwardly . . . Inside, the four bitter years of German occupation left, I suppose, on their inner spirits wounds that still pain.

Charges Against Laundry Loom

Mrs. Bernadette Trost, president of Local 40, Laundry Workers Union, CIO, said yesterday that due to the refusal of the management of the Cumberland Laundry Company to negotiate for a new contract the union has written the National Labor Relations Board.

The NLRB will be asked what procedure to follow in view of the company's refusal to enter into negotiations, Mrs. Trost said. The union official said that Robert Friedland, company official, told her that he "wasn't going to bother with negotiations" this year.

Several meetings have been held with officials of the Crystal Laundry Company on a new contract but further negotiations will be held in abeyance until the NLRB sends word as to what procedures to follow in the case of the Cumberland Laundry, according to Mrs. Trost.

The union is asking for a 20-cent an hour wage increase, increased commission rates for drivers and employes who work in commission basis in the shirt department.

Last year the workers at the Cumberland Laundry failed to receive a wage increase after arbitration under provisions of the City Labor-Management Committee. This action was taken after the laundry said it was unable to pay an increase and the late Chief Judge William A. Huster gave an opinion supporting the laundry's inability to pay at that time.

Sgt. George Kirby Will Sing Here

A piano and voice concert, sponsored by the First Methodist Church, will be presented at the church on Bedford Street Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Featured on the program will be Ann Fisher Gormer, Cumberland, pianist, and T-Sgt. George F. Kirby, tenor, U. S. Air Force. A similar concert was presented in Oakland on May 18 and a repeat performance is scheduled tomorrow night. The concert will also be given in Lonaconing, June 6.

The benefit performance is open to the public and the proceeds will be used for purchase of new robes for thes enior choir of First Methodist Church.

City Begins Work On Garbage Road

City Street Department crews this week began repairs on Garbage Road, which runs from Oldtown Road to the city dump.

Work on the mile long stretch, badly damaged by the severe winter, will include cleaning drains and some straightening and grading.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commisioner of streets and public property, said hard shale secured from near the airport, will be used for repairing the road.

The shale was used in the extension of First Street, which was completed within the past few days.

Officials said the shale has proved a satisfactory temporary surfacing material.

Civil Air Patrol Assigned Plane For Training Purposes

The Cumberland Flight of Civil Air Patrol has been assigned an L-4 Army liaison plane for training purposes.

The local flight will have the ship, a Piper Cub, one week in each six weeks on a rotation plan among other CAP units.

The L-4 was flown here from Petersburg and next week will be assigned to Keyser. It also goes to Hancock and Martinsburg.

As the Cumberland Municipal Airport is in West Virginia, the local CAP flight belongs to the West Virginia Command and is directly under the jurisdiction of the Martinsburg Wing.

Nine members of the senior CAP unit here are eligible to fly the ship. An Air Force license is required.

The craft will be used in practice of ground-air combined search operations, evacuation, rescue and other CAP functions.

For the Cadet Corps, it will be used purely for observation purposes. The cadets will fly with the licensed members and watch the maneuvers of a pilot while in flight.

The senior unit which meets each Tuesday night at the airport has 21 members headed by Franklin Young, commander.

In the cadet corps, which has Lt. John Wagoner as commandant, there are 34 members. They meet with the senior unit.

In addition to the L-4, the Cumberland Flight has a practically new Link trainer which was hauled here last week by local National Guard trucks.

During World War II, a Piper Cub was assigned here by the Civil Air Patrol. It was returned following the cessation of hostilities

Fantastic Sales Talks For Patent Medicines Taboo

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Feeling tired? Run-down? Spots before your eyes?

Then hurry to see your doctor and don't pay any attention to the slick talk of door-to-door patent medicine salesmen, the U. S. Food and Drug Administration advises.

This isn't exactly a new warning, but the agency spotlighted it in the course of reporting a court order, "unique in food and drug law history," forbidding 15,000 salesmen to make "extravagant" claims for a vitamin-and-mineral product called Nutrilite.

To get their evidence, federal inspectors posed as Nutrilite salesmen and as customers. They made recordings of sales spiels, as delivered by real salesmen, then went into the U. S. District Court in Los Angeles and made a complaint.

After reading transcripts of the sales talks, the national distributor of the product agreed to the court order putting restrictions on what salesmen may claim, said Dr. Paul B. Dunbar, commissioner of food and drugs.

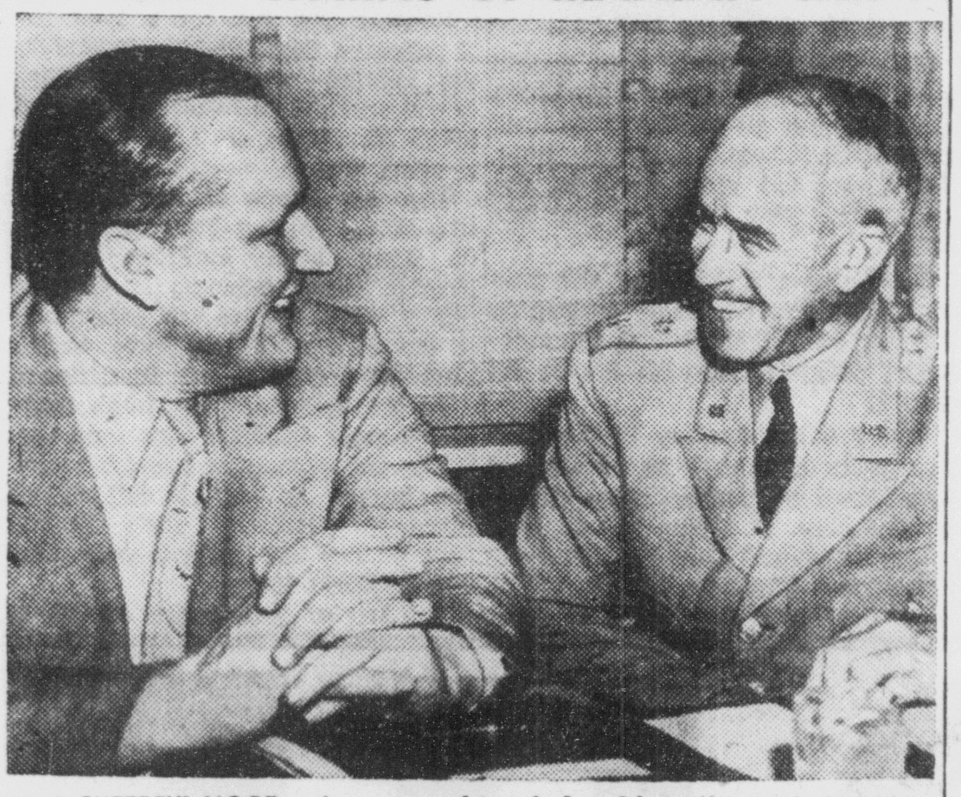
"Claims that Nutrilite has any value in treating 57 serious diseases, including cancer, heart trouble, diabetes, arthritis and rheumatism are specifically prohibited," Dunbar said.

The court order does, however, allow canvassers to claim that the product helps diet and nutrition in 30 ways—in the cases, for instance, of people who don't eat the right foods or who cook the vitamins out of food.

Dunbar said in a statement that "serious danger to public health is inherent when house-to-house canvassers promote medical and nutritional products in the privacy of the home."

"The danger arises," he said, "because in a large number of homes there are undetected cases of serious disease. Ailing and uninformed people, who do not know what is the matter with them, are all too likely to be impressed by a persuasive sales talk and may consequently delay seeking competent medical advice until it is too late."

BRADLEY WARNS OF IRANIAN CRISIS



IN A CHEERFUL MOOD as he prepared to wind up his testimony before the Senate Armed Services-Foreign Relations Committee in Washington, Gen. Omar Bradley stops to chat with California's Sen. William F. Knowland (left). Later, the shadow of the Iranian crisis crept into his remarks as Gen. Bradley warned that the Russians might move in Iran or elsewhere and that new aggression might be faced. (International)

Fantastic Sales Talks For Patent Medicines Taboo

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Feeling tired? Run-down? Spots before your eyes?

Then hurry to see your doctor and don't pay any attention to the slick talk of door-to-door patent medicine salesmen, the U. S. Food and Drug Administration advises.

This isn't exactly a new warning, but the agency spotlighted it in the course of reporting a court order, "unique in food and drug law history," forbidding 15,000 salesmen to make "extravagant" claims for a vitamin-and-mineral product called Nutrilite.

To get their evidence, federal inspectors posed as Nutrilite salesmen and as customers. They made recordings of sales spiels, as delivered by real salesmen, then went into the U. S. District Court in Los Angeles and made a complaint.

After reading transcripts of the sales talks, the national distributor of the product agreed to the court order putting restrictions on what salesmen may claim, said Dr. Paul B. Dunbar, commissioner of food and drugs.

"Claims that Nutrilite has any value in treating 57 serious diseases, including cancer, heart trouble, diabetes, arthritis and rheumatism are specifically prohibited," Dunbar said.

The court order does, however, allow canvassers to claim that the product helps diet and nutrition in 30 ways—in the cases, for instance, of people who don't eat the right foods or who cook the vitamins out of food.

Dunbar said in a statement that "serious danger to public health is inherent when house-to-house canvassers promote medical and nutritional products in the privacy of the home."

"The danger arises," he said, "because in a large number of homes there are undetected cases of serious disease. Ailing and uninformed people, who do not know what is the matter with them, are all too likely to be impressed by a persuasive sales talk and may consequently delay seeking competent medical advice until it is too late."

BRADLEY WARNS OF IRANIAN CRISIS

IN A CHEERFUL MOOD as he prepared to wind up his testimony before the Senate Armed Services-Foreign Relations Committee in Washington, Gen. Omar Bradley stops to chat with California's Sen. William F. Knowland (left). Later, the shadow of the Iranian crisis crept into his remarks as Gen. Bradley warned that the Russians might move in Iran or elsewhere and that new aggression might be faced. (International)

"Beauty" In Raw Dominates Show In Berlin Clubs

By Karl-Heinz Schwab

BERLIN — (AP) — Unveiled beauty dominates entertainment section advertising in Berlin newspapers these days.

Scantily clad girls catch the reader's eye with persuasive invitations to spend an evening at this or that night club.

"Beauty dances" are the main attraction. But if you substitute "nude" for "beauty" it fits much better.

Remde's St. Pauli, modelled after Hamburg's famed Reeperbahn district, promises "Reeperbahn eroticism."

A place called San Francisco promises "beautiful Paris nightlife," illustrated by a girl who wears little more than a chain of flowers around her neck.

Schmidt's "Masqued Bar" entertains customers with ladies who conceal their faces but are less scrupulous otherwise.

Hamburg Ahoy, a night club with a sailor band, has posters all over the city advertising a "night without morals."

There are more than a dozen such clubs in West Berlin but there isn't much variety.

It's the same show about everywhere.

A master of ceremonies who bridges the gaps between numbers telling more or less decent jokes, a "ballet" of three or four—fully clad—with something supposed to be a Spanish dance, and an acrobat or two.

And then: "Zehra Achmed," or whatever exotic name the featured lady prefers for professional appearances.

As for the costume, it's sufficient to say that if anybody has ever courted a real three-week cold, it's these "beauty dancers."

In the Russian sector of Berlin, however, as well as in the Soviet zone, there is none of this. "Beauty dances" there are classed in the category of "American ape culture."

Only in Soviet films depicting the life of "capitalists" can semi-nude girls be seen entertaining the "upper ten-thousand."

Princess Stages Sitdown Strike

BOMBAY, (INS)—An American-born Indian princess said last night in Bombay that she will stage a sitdown strike in Calcutta to force the family of her late husband to pay for her support.

Princess Billie Indrajit, born Billie Bridges in Dallas, Tex., a tall, blue-eyed brunette, wept as she said she will "squat" outside the Cooch Behar Palace, where the maharajah of Cooch Behar, brother of her husband, is living.

The 34-year-old Princess explained that her in-laws have refused to recognize her or respond to her claims since her 33-year-old husband died in a fire at the family palace in Darjeeling on April 4.

It was the same day that Princess Billie returned from a three-month visit to the United States.

She said she met and married the Prince in May, 1950 while she was touring India with a social service mission. That civil ceremony was followed by a Hindu religious wedding in December.

At the time of the marriage, the Prince already had an Indian wife and two children.

Now, said the Princess, she is hoping her sitdown strike may "precipitate matters."

The English translation of the Indian name Shenandoah is Daughter of the Stars.

Savannah Bustling Again With Boom Port Industry

By BEM PRICE

SAVANNAH, Ga.—(AP)—Savannah is somewhat like a dignified old lady awakening from a long nap with an energetic rustle in her bustle.

To strangers she still manages to turn a placid front but her mind is out in the back yard where they're building a new plant and she's proudly aware Savannah once again is the leading South Atlantic port.

This undoubtedly is one of the most fascinating towns in the nation; a rare combination of the old and new; of industry and shipping, of work and play.

It's a town of bo'suns pipes and factory whistles, of shady, tree-lined squares, of roomy old furnished apartments, a town with the whole Atlantic Ocean at the front door to play in, with fresh water to fish in and relatively few tourists.

After years of genteel poverty, wealth is returning but its streets are badly in need of paving and many back streets have never been paved at all.

Taxes appear high—$25 per $1,000—but a complicated system brings the actual rate down to less than half that. Assessments are lenient.

For nearly two centuries Savannah was primarily a port. Her wealth was based on the trading she did in musty, waterfront offices in cotton and naval stores, the needs of seamen and ships.

But cotton collapsed and the need for naval stores declined—and so did Savannah. Outside of a few people the only thing rich about Savannah was its history. As late as 1928 Savannah had but 108 plants employing only 4,222 workers. Her heart was still at sea.

There's been quite a change in the old lady. Business is booming as it hasn't boomed since its trading heyday in 1908.

First came sugar refineries to use the cheap water route from Cuba. Then fertilizer plants to take advantage of the water rates from South America. Then a man named Dr. Charles Herty figured out a way to make pulp paper from pine and brought in the paper industry.

Now the Savannah area boasts more than 300 industries with 18,000 employes and an annual payroll of more than $42,000,000. What's more, there were 264 more ships in the harbor last year than the year before.

But these are things of the present. Chilton Roberts, managing director of the Industrial Committee of Savannah, has his eye on the future:

"We are anticipating in the next five years a capital investment of $500,000,000 for various types of new construction. It is not at all fantastic to suggest that by 1960 Savannah and Chatham County, which have a present population of more than 149,000, will have a population of 200,000."

Roberts can tick off a long list of expected developments, including the recent announcement that American Cynamid Corporation had taken an option on 1,600 acres for a plant site.

The Air Force is doubling the size of its Hunter Field base with its atom bomb carrying planes. Nearby Camp Stewart is growing like a weed. Before the emergency is out Savannah will have 40,000-plus servicemen at her doorstep.

In her best days Savannah shipped around 4,000,000 tons annually. When the submarine menace closed the harbor in 1942 it fell off to nothing. Gradually she's getting back on her feet and last year shipped 2,600,000 tons.

On top of that barge service is picking up on the seven-foot channel—soon to be nine—to Augusta. The tremendous power development at Clark Hill and Hartwell on the Upper Savannah River near Augusta is expected to provide cheap power.

Besides that Savannah is expecting quite a bit of business with the H-bomb plant 208 miles by water up the Savannah at Augusta.

Most exciting of all is the prospect of resumption of inter-coastal service. The submarines that closed the port in 1942 also ruined the coastwise shipping and it has never been resumed.

Talk to any native five minutes and he will tell you about Seatrains, Inc., which is due to take over the coastal franchise of Ocean Steamship Lines, a subsidiary of the Central of Georgia Railroad.

Fla. Legislature Oks Bill Banning Printing Of Horse Race Information

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—(AP)—The Florida Legislature has passed a bill to outlaw printing of detailed horse race information on which wagers might be made with bookmakers.

The bill prohibits printing, transportation, sale or possession of tip sheets, scratch sheets and even newspapers containing horse race information that could be used "in furtherance of illegal gambling."

Florida Attorney General Richard Ervin, who drew the bill and asked for its passage, said that in his opinion it will cut out of Florida newspapers charts of "race entries at all the horse tracks which are running in the United States on any day, and information on jockeys, weights, withdrawals or scratches, betting odds and handicappers' choices."

The bill now goes to Gov. Fuller Warren, who has made no comment. If he signs it or lets it lay in his office five days without a veto, the bill will become law immediately.

Ervin said there was some question whether the law would prevent Florida papers from printing charts, entries, selections and other detailed information on races to be run at Florida's four tracks.

"I hope it does," he said. "I hope we can do away with the papers carrying these programs. In my opinion it encourages making book right out of the newspapers."

Ervin added he did not think the law would prevent newspapers from publishing advance stories about races, with general discussions of horses, jockeys, trainers, past performances, track conditions and other information as long as they don't print it in detailed chart form.

The act specifically exempts "official programs of race tracks or other items containing racing information duly authorized by the State Racing Commission."

Penalty for violation would be a fine of $500 to $5,000 or imprisonment up to 12 months, or both.

Passage of the bill followed legislative approval of another measure Ervin proposed to delay transmission of racing results from Florida tracks for 30 minutes after each race.

That bill would prohibit transmission of all racing information from tracks for an hour before the first race of the day. It would hold up results from the last race 15 minutes and permit unrestricted transmission and broadcast of two feature races each week.

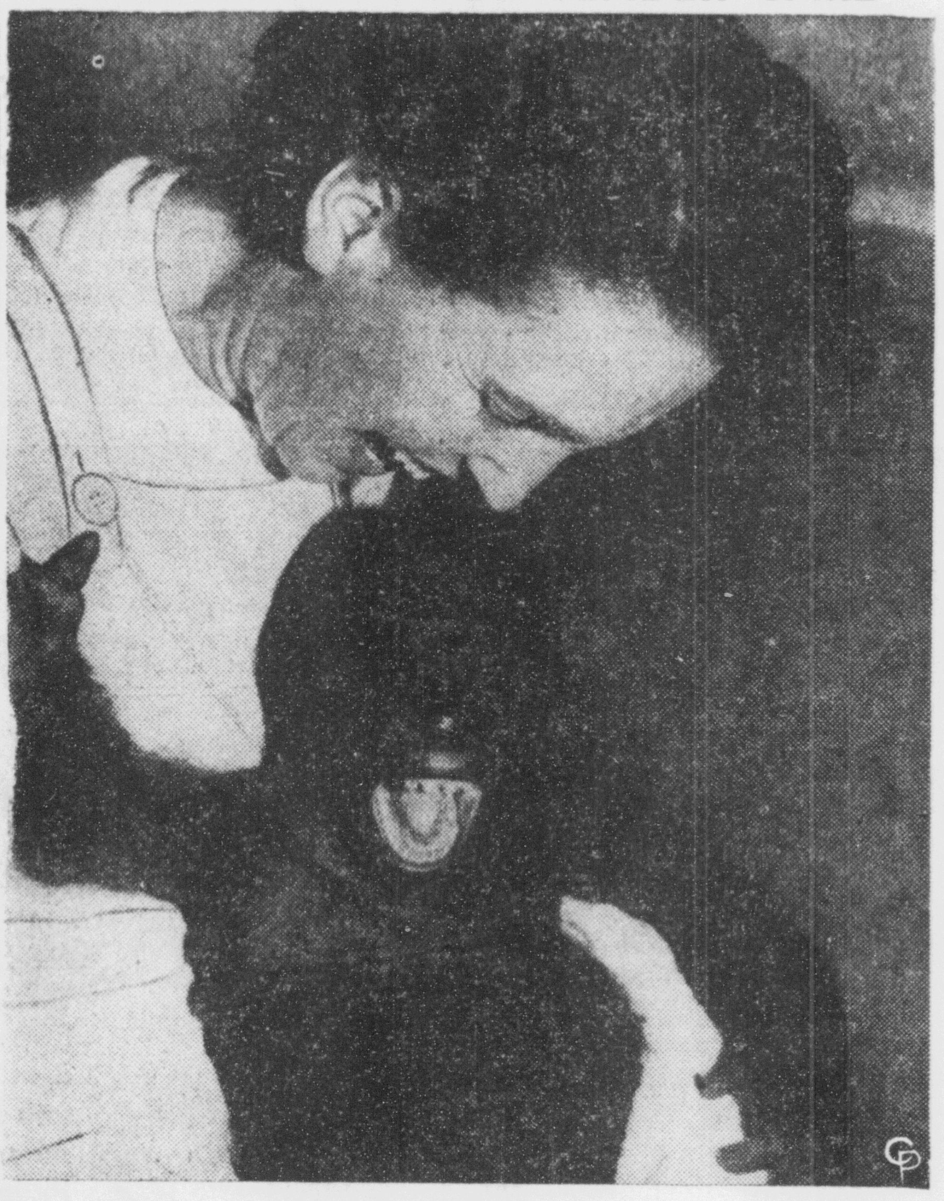
GORILLA IS IN FOR TENDER CARE



A NEWCOMER at New York's Bronx Zoo is Mambo, a 15-pound baby gorilla which is cared for by Mrs. Helen Martini in the animal nursery. Estimated to be under two years old, Mambo will be raised to replace Macoco, the popularly mourned 14-year-old gorilla which recently slipped into a moat outside its cage and was drowned. Fla. Legislature Oks Bill Banning Printing Of Horse Race Information

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—(AP)—The Florida Legislature has passed a bill to outlaw printing of detailed horse race information on which wagers might be made with bookmakers.

The bill prohibits printing, transportation, sale or possession of tip sheets, scratch sheets and even newspapers containing horse race information that could be used "in furtherance of illegal gambling."

Florida Attorney General Richard Ervin, who drew the bill and asked for its passage, said that in his opinion it will cut out of Florida newspapers charts of "race entries at all the horse tracks which are running in the United States on any day, and information on jockeys, weights, withdrawals or scratches, betting odds and handicappers' choices."

The bill now goes to Gov. Fuller Warren, who has made no comment. If he signs it or lets it lay in his office five days without a veto, the bill will become law immediately.

Ervin said there was some question whether the law would prevent Florida papers from printing charts, entries, selections and other detailed information on races to be run at Florida's four tracks.

"I hope it does," he said. "I hope we can do away with the papers carrying these programs. In my opinion it encourages making book right out of the newspapers."

Ervin added he did not think the law would prevent newspapers from publishing advance stories about races, with general discussions of horses, jockeys, trainers, past performances, track conditions and other information as long as they don't print it in detailed chart form.

The act specifically exempts "official programs of race tracks or other items containing racing information duly authorized by the State Racing Commission."

Penalty for violation would be a fine of $500 to $5,000 or imprisonment up to 12 months, or both.

Passage of the bill followed legislative approval of another measure Ervin proposed to delay transmission of racing results from Florida tracks for 30 minutes after each race.

That bill would prohibit transmission of all racing information from tracks for an hour before the first race of the day. It would hold up results from the last race 15 minutes and permit unrestricted transmission and broadcast of two feature races each week.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—The passing show:

To give you a faint idea of the enormity of our remobilization program, let us consider one minor aspect of it — the atomic energy enterprise.

Its operations extend from the uranium mines of the Belgian Congo and the Arctic region of Canada to the weapons proving ground at Eniwetok in the Pacific and the medical projects studying the after effects of the A-bombings of Hiroshima, Nagasaki and Bikini.

There are major research centers at Los Alamos, Oak Ridge, Berkeley, and Chicago, in Iowa, Nevada, New York, and Ohio. And in 19 universities. More than 80,000 workers are involved, and the land area occupied by the facilities comes to 2,800 square miles — equal to the states of Delaware and Rhode Island combined.

The Atomic Energy Commission now has a capital investment that ranks its operations just behind those of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and U. S. Steel, as the major industrial enterprise of the nation. New building, a uranium processing plant at Fernald, O., a billion dollar H-bomb plant in South Carolina and a half billion dollar plant in Kentucky will move AEC well ahead of A.T. & T. and Steel.

But — and it's a big but — our atomic energy activities amount to less than three per cent of the defense budget!

The results of Hollywood's gingerly support of Comdr. E. F. McDonald's "phonevision" system—the piping of up-to-date films into private television homes for a fee (which appears on the telephone bill)—are now available.

The young president of Zenith reports:

"Over 300 families who participated in the experiment saw movies in their homes at a sustained high rate that astonished our optimists and astounded our skeptics. Our attendance rate was three and a half times greater than the .47 times per week which is considered the average for American movie attendance in the theaters."

TV-movie subscribers spent an average of $1.73 a week on the private-line films, or $22.50 per family during the three months of the test. McDonald says that if this is any tip-off, and the country's 10,000,000 set owners had similar rights, the producers' average net return per picture, for TV alone, would be $1,250,000.

• — • — •

The Variety Clubs of America do a lot of good that is never overly publicized. The origin of the charitable organization is just about as glamor- ridden as some of its members.

In 1929 a man named Johnny Harris, who owned five theaters in Pittsburgh, was informed that a baby girl had been left in one of his houses. He picked her up, turned her over to the proper foundling authorities, then couldn't forget her. The next day, at the little luncheon club he attended with seven other men about town, he suggested that they form an association to support the child and educate her at good schools.

This was the beginning of Variety. The child grew into a lovely girl, is happily married now and has two children. Only two men know her full story, Harris and one other survivor of the original group. Not long ago another baby was left in the Philadelphia theater, and she was immediately adopted by the Philadelphia "Tent" of the Variety Club. Loretta Young, Buddy Rogers and other celebrities flew to Philadelphia for the christening of a girl who will always be known as Loretta Variety Young.

Celanese Declares New Stock Dividend

Directors of Celanese Corporation of America here declared an initial dividend of 82½ cents per share on the new 4½ per cent preferred stock, series A, for the period April 25, 1951 through June 30, 1951. The dividend is payable July 1, 1951 to stockholders of record at the close of business June 5, 1951.

At the same time the board also voted a dividend of 75 cents per share on the common stock, payable June 23, 1951 to holders of record June 5, 1951 and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the 7 per cent second preferred stock payable July 1, 1951 to stockholders of record June 5, 1951.

In 1895, the headgear of United States Marines was a spiked helmet.

Santa Is Loser In Damage Suit

CLEARWATER, Fla., (AP) — The parents of a boy killed in a Christmas Eve accident have been awarded $16,847 damages against Santa Claus.

The defendant was Lt. Col. George L. Shead, whose automobile, hit 12-year-old Max L. Waller, a bicycle rider. Shead, a marine, was on his way — dressed in full Santa Claus outfit—to hand out gifts at a Christmas party to needy children.

Shead told a circuit court jury he started to pass another car and suddenly saw the boy on the bicycle. He said there was no light on the bicycle.

A coroner's jury cleared Shead of criminal blame in the Dec. 24, 1949, accident.

The civil jury, however, returned a verdict last night in favor of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Waller. They had asked $35,000.

America's pig crop of 1950 was the biggest of any peacetime year.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Should you ever give direct advice?

Answer: You cannot entirely avoid it. But the circumstances under which you are justified in doing so are not unlike those in which you may have to use force—for example, to save someone from doing irreparable damage to himself or others. Advising a wife not to "leave home" until she is sure her suspicions of her husband are well-founded might be a good illustration, as would urging a sick person to go to a doctor. But no one is ever permanently helped by "following advce" and it is always better to help someone see for himself what he should do than to have him do it on your "say-so."

Are anyone's actions consistent?

Answer: Not entirely. For example, while you may profess the same ideals in both cases, your behavior at the office may be very different from the side of yourself that you show at home. Inconsistency may be due to conflicting aims in life, to not knowing how to attain your goals, or to ignorance of what your real goals are—for instance, to thinking that your goal is success when it really is a good time. But in any case the more your actions are controlled by your unconscious mind, the more inconsistent they will be, because that part of your mind contains so many conflicts.

May psychology be based on economics?

Answer: I very much doubt it. Dr. Geza Roheim in "Psychoanalysis and Anthropology" discusses another scientist's account of the customs of a South Sea Island tribe, the Alor, in which many emotional characteristics are correctly traced to the fact that mothers habitually leave their babies at home and half-staved while they go out to work in the fields—which it is claimed that they have to do "for economic reasons." But mothers in other, similar tribes work in the fields and take their babies with them. The tribal psychology is based, not on economics, but on the fact that the Alor women do not love or welcome babies.

U. S. Air Power Called Only Hope

NEW YORK, (INS) Maj. Alexander P. De Seversky, world-famous aeronautical authority, believes that only air power can protect American civilization from destruction by bombing.

De Seversky, writing in the June issue of Cosmopolitan said:

"Our military men have fallen into the fatal error of trying to fight the next war with the methods of the last. Today, we simply do not have a strategic air force of sufficient size even to impair the Russian war effort—let alone destroy it.

"We must not assign a single billion dollars for defense on the land or sea, or for bolstering our allies' strength, unless we are prepared simultaneously to channel two billion into our air force."

YES!
WE STILL HAVE CHICKS!

Why? Because we think late started chicks should make good money this year. Consider these facts:

1. Fewer chicks started this year. Eggs ought to be high next fall and winter.
2. Chicks started now and fed for full development the Purina way should be laying by Nov. 1 That is when egg prices should be at their peak.
3. Late chicks grow well if given plenty of room and air.

Polka Dot Meringues Delicious Desserts

Ice cream served in delicate meringue shells is one of the most delightful desserts in the lexicon of sweets. It is smart to polka dot the meringue shells with morsels of semi-sweet chocolate. Fill the polka dot meringues with chocolate and vanilla ice cream to complete the chocolate and white scheme.

Semi-sweet chocolate is blended into the meringue mixture before baking, and as semi-sweet chocolate morsels remain whole even while baking, the finished meringues are studded with small nuggets of delicious chocolate.

Although these beautiful desserts look as if they were made by a master chef, they are quite simple to achieve. Using the same recipe, you can make a large meringue shell to fill with ice cream, or six individual meringue shells, or three dozen polka dotted meringuettes to accompany ice cream. You will be proud to serve the trio of glamorous desserts made with this recipe.

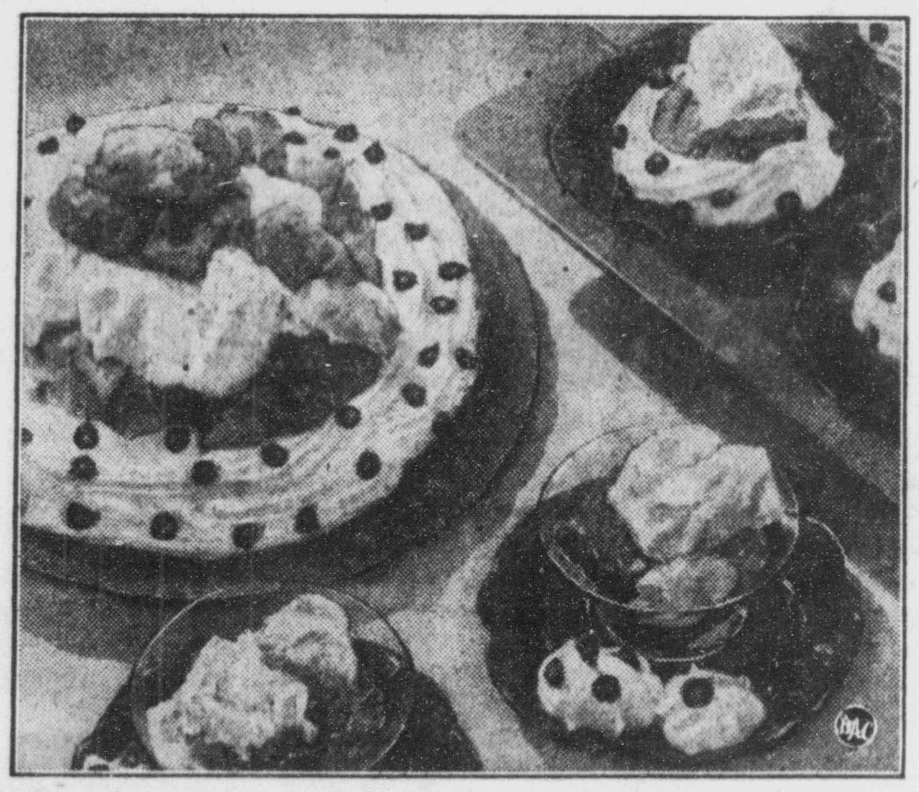
Chocolate Polka Dot Meringues

3 egg whites; ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar; ⅛ teaspoon salt; ¾ cup sugar; ½ package semi-sweet chocolate.

Beat egg whites until foamy; add cream of tartar and salt; beat until stiff but not dry. Add sugar gradually, beating until very stiff. Fold in ⅓ cup of the semi-sweet chocolate morsels. Cover baking sheet with heavy brown paper. For individual or large meringue shell pile into 6 rounds, 3 inches in diameter, or 1 large round, 9 inches in diameter. Make a depression in the center leaving an inch around the sides. Sprinkle with remaining morsels. For meringuetes, drop by tablespoon onto baking sheet. Sprinkle with remaining morsels. *Bake in very slow oven (275° F.) 40 minutes for meringuetes; 50 minutes for individual shells; 1 hour for large shell. YIELD: 6 individual shells, 1 large shell, 3 dozen meringuettes.

*Meringues may be baked by this method: Preheat oven to (450 degree F.). Place meringues in oven; turn off heat. Leave at least 3 hours.

Three Festive Desserts Made With One Recipe



THE new vogue for meringues is to polka dot them with morsels of semi-sweet chocolate. Pretty Polka Dot Meringues are versatile made with the recipe elsewhere on this page. The one basic recipe makes the three different desserts pictured above.

A Pittsburgh electric corporation has an archives building bulging with 2,700 tons of facts and figures written on more than 960 million sheets of paper.

Corn Stuffed Peppers

- 2 cups chopped cooked meat
- 6 medium green pepers
- 1 cup whole kernel corn
- 1 cup cracker crumbs
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- ½ cup corn liquid or milk
- 2 tablespoons melted bacon drippings, butter, or margarine

Scoop out peppers. Simmer peppers for 5 minutes in salted water. Drain corn and measure liquid. Combine remaining ingredients. Stuff peppers with meat mixture. Place peppers in greased baking dish; add ½ cup water. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 45 minutes, or until meat mixture is lightly browned. 6 servings.

The Cherokee Indian reservation in the Great Smoky mountains contains 63,000 acres, occupied by more than 3,000 members of the tribe.

French Fried Liver

Cut liver into strips ⅜ inch wide. Roll in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Fry in deep hot lard (350 degree F.), until brown. 6 servings.

The Columbia river, forming the boundary between the states of Washington and Oregon, is credited with carrying more water than all the other Pacific coast streams combined.

Polka Dot Meringues Delicious Desserts

Ice cream served in delicate meringue shells is one of the most delightful desserts in the lexicon of sweets. It is smart to polka dot the meringue shells with morsels of semi-sweet chocolate. Fill the polka dot meringues with chocolate and vanilla ice cream to complete the chocolate and white scheme.

Semi-sweet chocolate is blended into the meringue mixture before baking, and as semi-sweet chocolate morsels remain whole even while baking, the finished meringues are studded with small nuggets of delicious chocolate.

Although these beautiful desserts look as if they were made by a master chef, they are quite simple to achieve. Using the same recipe, you can make a large meringue shell to fill with ice cream, or six individual meringue shells, or three dozen polka dotted meringuettes to accompany ice cream. You will be proud to serve the trio of glamorous desserts made with this recipe.

Chocolate Polka Dot Meringues

3 egg whites; ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar; ⅛ teaspoon salt; ¾ cup sugar; ½ package semi-sweet chocolate.

Three Festive Desserts Made With One Recipe

THE new vogue for meringues is to polka dot them with morsels of semi-sweet chocolate. Pretty Polka Dot Meringues are versatile made with the recipe elsewhere on this page. The one basic recipe makes the three different desserts pictured above.

Beat egg whites until foamy; add cream of tartar and salt; beat until stiff but not dry. Add sugar gradually, beating until very stiff. Fold in ⅓ cup of the semi-sweet chocolate morsels. Cover baking sheet with heavy brown paper. For individual or large meringue shell pile into 6 rounds, 3 inches in diameter, or 1 large round, 9 inches in diameter. Make a depression in the center leaving an inch around the sides. Sprinkle with remaining morsels. For meringuetes, drop by tablespoon onto baking sheet. Sprinkle with remaining morsels. *Bake in very slow oven (275° F.) 40 minutes for meringuetes; 50 minutes for individual shells; 1 hour for large shell. YIELD: 6 individual shells, 1 large shell, 3 dozen meringuettes.

*Meringues may be baked by this method: Preheat oven to (450 degree F.). Place meringues in oven; turn off heat. Leave at least 3 hours.

A Pittsburgh electric corporation has an archives building bulging with 2,700 tons of facts and figures written on more than 960 million sheets of paper.

Corn Stuffed Peppers

- 2 cups chopped cooked meat
- 6 medium green pepers
- 1 cup whole kernel corn
- 1 cup cracker crumbs
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- ½ cup corn liquid or milk
- 2 tablespoons melted bacon drippings, butter, or margarine

Scoop out peppers. Simmer peppers for 5 minutes in salted water. Drain corn and measure liquid. Combine remaining ingredients. Stuff peppers with meat mixture. Place peppers in greased baking dish; add ½ cup water. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 45 minutes, or until meat mixture is lightly browned. 6 servings.

The Cherokee Indian reservation in the Great Smoky mountains contains 63,000 acres, occupied by more than 3,000 members of the tribe.

French Fried Liver

Cut liver into strips ⅜ inch wide. Roll in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Fry in deep hot lard (350 degree F.), until brown. 6 servings.

EVERYTHING NICE IN NEW 7-STEP MAYONNAISE!

New flavor twist for salads!

Mrs. M. V. Filbert, President

"Even richer in eggs and real lemon juice than I ever made it before—makes the simplest salad greens taste grand!" says Mrs. Filbert. "It's my own recipe—made homestyle in small batches. 7-steps mean it's genuine mayonnaise!"

Mrs. Filbert starts by blending spices; creams them with fresh-frozen eggs; pure oil is beaten in; real lemon juice and more eggs added; pure vinegar seals in the oil; now, it's extra whipped—and last, more real lemon juice!

Enjoy taste-rich salads, delicious sandwiches. Make 'em with Mrs. Filbert's 7-Step Mayonnaise. Buy a jar today!

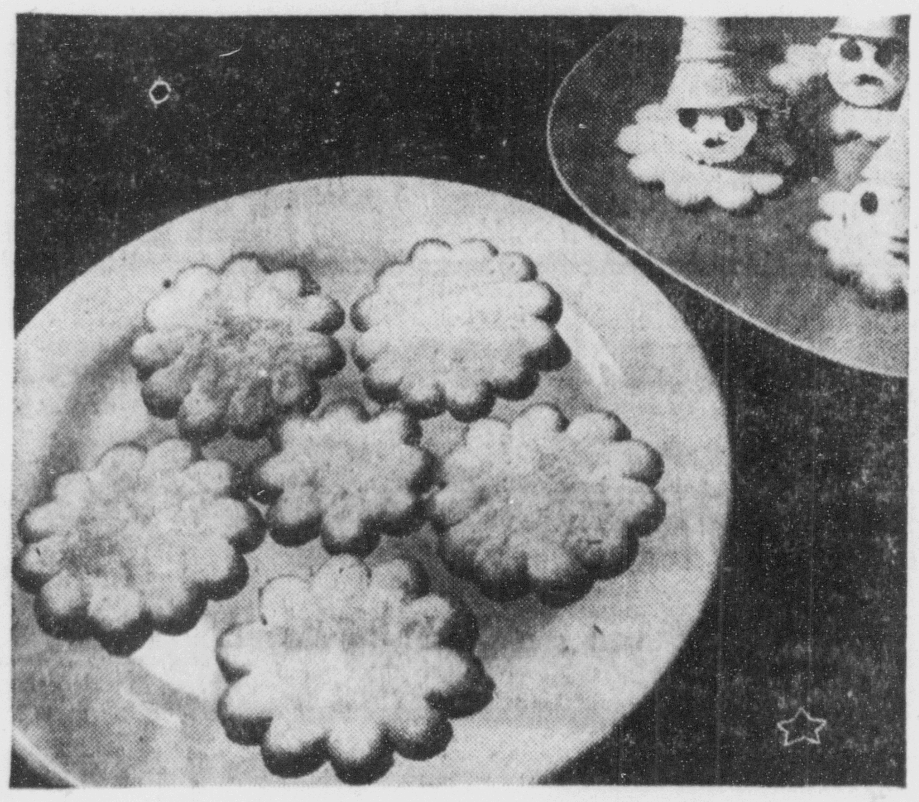
ClownCookies Circus Time In Kitchen

For dessert, for snack time or for party refreshment — any time is cooky time as far as many youngsters are concerned. To be a bit different along the cooky line, Reba Staggs, home economist, suggests a children's desert of "Clown" cookies.

'CLOWN' COOKIES



Here's cooky fun for youngsters. Scalloped sugar cookies are each topped with a ice cream face with chocolate eyes, a maraschino cherry mouth and an inverted ice cream cone cap.

This dessert gets its name in that the base is actually made of a plain sugar cooky (receipe below) cut with a scalloped cooky cutter. Then the baked and cooled cooky is centered with a scoop of vanilla ice cream.

For the clown faces, two chocolate drops make up the eyes and a sliver of maraschino cherry forms the mouth. And as an actor makes up his face to denote mood, so can you make up the clowns. To indicate the happy clown, curve the cherry mouth up; for the sadder clowns, curve the mouth down. The clown's hat will be none other than an inverted ice cream cone.

To be more gay, combine colored sugars and sprinkle over the cookies just before baking. The ice cream may come in vanilla or strawberry or other flavors as you desire. In any case, the result is a tray of assorted clowns ready for the surprise dinner dessert or party refreshment. Here is the recipe for the sugar cookies. By using lard, the cookies will stay fresh for days in your cooky jar.

Old-Fashioned Sugar Cookies

½ cup lard
1 cup sugar
1 egg
3 cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Thoroughly cream shortening and sugar; add egg and beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk and vanilla extract; mix thoroughly. Roll ⅛ inch thick on lightly floured surface. Cut with floured cooky cutter; sprinkle with sugar, if desired. Bake on greased cooky sheet in moderate oven (375° F.) about 15 minutes. Yield: 3 dozen cookies.

Banquet Frankfurters

12 frankfurters; ¼ cup prepared mustard; 2 cups seasoned mashed potatoes; ¼ finely chopped onion; 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento; ¼ cup chopped parsley.

Slit frankfurters lengthwise and spread with mustard. Combine remaining ingredients and spread on cut-surface of 6 frankfurters. Place remaining frankfurters on top, cut side down. Bake in moderate oven (350 degree F.) for 20 minutes. 6 servings.

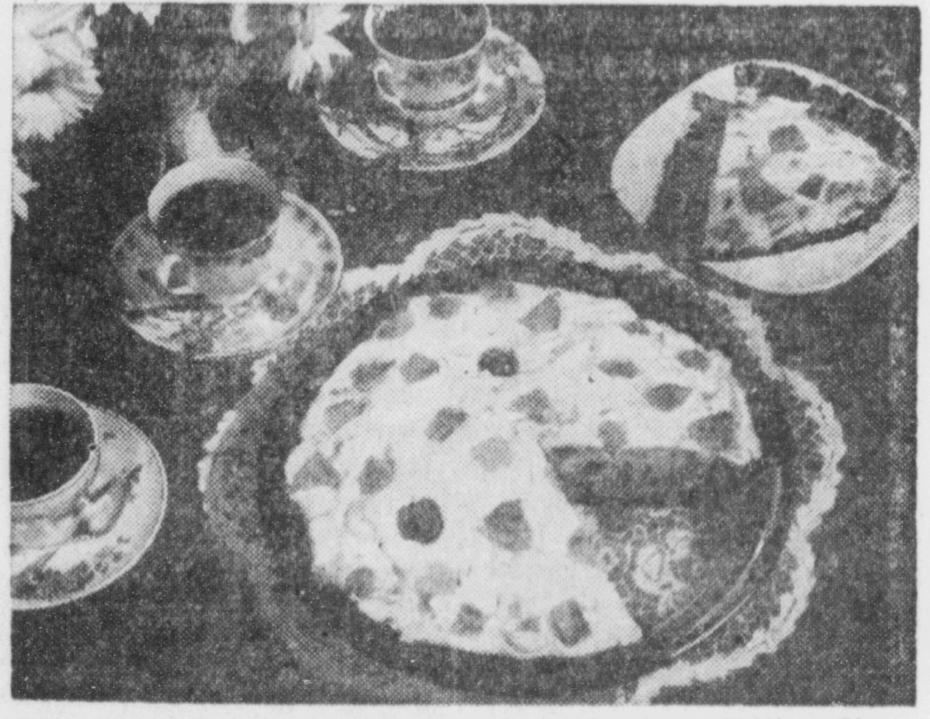
Flavor, Color Symphony In Fruit Pie



It's canned fruit cocktail that makes this Fruit Chiffon Pie a treat. The easy-to-make chocolate crumb crust compliments the delicate fruit filling to perfection. Serve it for party, company meal, or a family surprise.

The coolness and fluffiness of chiffon pies make them especially inviting during warm weather. Here's one that is delicately flavored and gaily colored. The cool, "light as a feather" fruit cocktail filling, nestled in an easy-to-make chocolate crumb crust, is excellent dessert choice for your warm weather meals.

And because Fruit Chiffon Pie can be made early and stored in the refrigerator, it is the dessert answer for parties and company meals when you want to come out of the kitchen to mingle with guests.

FRUIT CHIFFON PIE

1½ cups chocolate cooky crumbs
⅓ cup melted butter, or margarine
2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 16-oz. can fruit cocktail
2 tablespoons sugar
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup whipping cream

Mix crumbs and butter thoroughly and press firmly on bottom and sides of buttered pie pan. Place in refrigerator to chill. Soak gelatin in water for 5 minutes. Drain syrup from fruit and heat to boiling. Add gelatin and sugar, stir until dissolved. Add lemon rind and juice. Chill until slightly thickened; whip with rotary beater until light and fluffy. Fold in fruit and whipped cream. Pour into pie shell and chill. Makes one 9-inch pie.

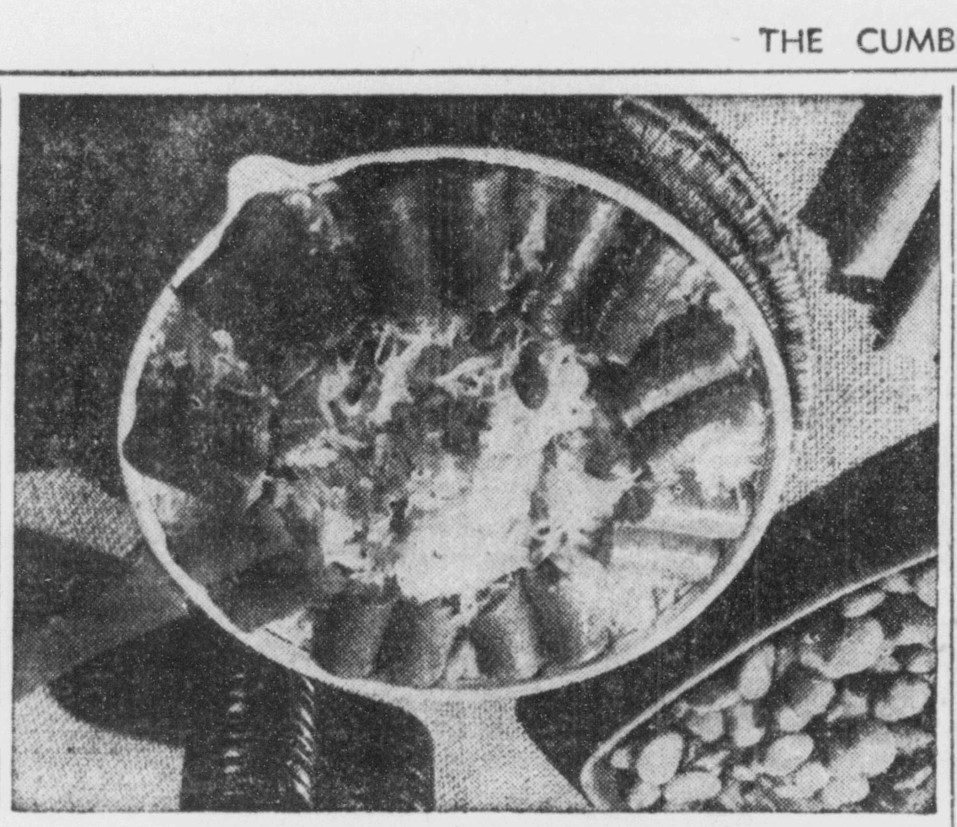
Kraut Dish Is Easy To Prepare



This Mushroom-Krautfurter Casserole recipe almost makes any woman who prepares it a lady of leisure because there's no last minute cooking. It's definitely in the second-helping class, it's so good. You'll enjoy the flavor that both the cream of mushroom soup and the snappy seasoning impart to the kraut. The mushroom soup simplifies matters and cuts down the time you'd ordinarily have to spend making a mushroom sauce. Parsleyed green lima beans go nicely with this dish.

Mushroom-Krautfurter Casserole

(Makes 4-6 servings)

2 tablespoons butter or margarine; 2 tablespoons chopped onions; 1 10½-ounce can cream of mushroom soup; 1 No. 2½ can sauerkraut; ½ teaspoon paprika; few drops Tabasco; 6 frankfurters.

In a saucepan, melt butter or margarine over low heat. Add onions and saute until golden brown. Add sauerkraut, soup and seasoning, mixing thoroughly. Pour sauerkraut mixture into a shallow 1½-quart casserole. Cut each frankfurter into thirds. Arrange in pairs around top of casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 30 minutes. Serve immediately.

Veal Birds

1½ pound veal steak, cut ⅜ to ½ inch thick; 4 slices white bread; 2 tablespoons drippings; 1 tablespoon grated onion; ¼ teaspoon sage; ¼ teaspoon nutmeg; 1 teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper; 3 tablespoons flour; 2 tablespoons lard or drippings; ½ cup water.

Cut veal in pieces about 5x3 inches. Remove bone. Make stuffings as follows: Dry and toast bread in a slow oven. Crush fine, add melted drippings, onion, sage and nutmeg. Add enough water so that mixture will hold together when squeezed between the fingers. To make birds, spread mixture on center of each piece of veal. Roll individually and tie with string. Mix salt, pepper and flour and roll veal birds in the mixture. Brown in lard or drippings. Add water, cover tightly and simmer until meat is tender, about 45 minutes. Six servings.

Ham-Potato Bake

WELCOME to the table on a cold night is Ham Potato Bake made with cream of celery soup. Team it with spiced peach halves and a favorite green vegetable.

Make May 30 A Kitchen Holiday Too

A holiday from the daily routine of cooking can be easily managed by the homemaker on Decoration Day, if most of the food for meals is readied in advance.

A dinner of cold baked ham, fresh asparagus, hot baked potato-cheese casserole and jellied tomato aspic salad served with sliced rye bread, dill pickles, mustard and—to give the meal a smart, gay holiday atmosphere—tall, sophisticated pilsener glasses of cold beer, is suggested.

On the day before the holiday, boil the potatoes and make the cheese sauce for the baked casserole. Mix the aspic; bake the ham; clean the asparagus and place all food in the refrigerator to keep chilled until dinnertime next day.

Plan supper to be an informal "snack meal" and check to be sure there's an ample supply of bread, butter, beer, crackers, potato chips and cheese on hand for family and unexpected guests. Planning the day's meals in advance means that the homemaker too can share in the full enjoyment and leisure of the holiday. Here is a simply prepared and excellent recipe for the tomato aspic mentioned above.

Tomato Aspic Salad

2 cups tomato juice
1 small onion, sliced
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 cup chopped, mixed celery and green pepper

Heat tomato juice with onion, salt and Worcestershire; let simmer 10 minutes. Strain out onion. Soften gelatine in cold water; dissolve in hot tomato juice. Add vinegar. Chill until partially set; stir in chopped vegetables. Chill until firm. Serve on lettuce with salad dressing. Serves 4.

Dried Beef Sandwich Filling

1 2½-ounce jar dried beef
1 3-ounce package cream cheese
1 teaspoon minced onion
Pepper, if desired
Bread or crackers

Cut dried beef into thin strips with scissors. Combine with remaining ingredients. Spread on bread. 4 sandwiches.

Ham-Potato Bake Is Real Rib Sticker

A real rib-sticking dish to build a meal around is this one of scalloped potatoes made with condensed cream of celery soup.

The "lady of the house" as well as her family will like the combination—it's so easy, so good. The celery soup, which serves as a ready-made sauce for scalloping, has a special flavor all its own.

Teamed with the potatoes, a little bit of ham goes a long way in this dish. If you don't have ham, use canned luncheon meat for equally good results.

Ham-Potato Bake

3 cups thinly sliced, cooked potatoes (4-6 medium potatoes)
1 to 2 cups cubed cooked ham or canned luncheon meat
1 small onion, finely chopped
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 can (1¼ cups) condensed cream of celery soup
½ cup milk

Mix together the cooked potatoes, ham (save some for the top), chopped onion, and parsley in a 1½-quart casserole. Blend together the celery soup and milk; gently stir this liquid through the potato mixture. Put some of the cubed ham oevr the top. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) for 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Canadian-Style Bacon—Fruit En Brochette

8 slices Canadian-style bacon, cut ½ inch thick
4 spiced crabapples
8 cooked prunes, pitted
1 No. 2 can pineapple chunks
2 teaspoons butter or margarine
4 wooden or metal skewers

Thread fruit on skewers as follows: pineapple, prune, pineapple, crabapple, pineapple, prune, and pineapple. Place bacon and fruit on broiler rack. Brush fruit with fat. Place broiler pan in broiler so the top surface of the meat is 2 to 3 inches from the heat. When the bacon is lightly browned (5 to 6 minutes) turn meat and fruit. Continue broiling until meat is lightly browned and fruit heated through. Allow 8 to 10 minutes total broiling time. 4 servings.

Tempting Dessert

Like all Americans, the rhubarb plant is an immigrant. It came to the Americas very early in our history by way of Italy and Asia. The botanist classes rhubarb as a vegetable, but since it has many excellent qualities as a dessert ingredient most of us think of it as a fruit.

One can hardly think of crisp, pink rhubarb without also thinking of its culinary partner—the strawberry. These two delightful occupants of early spring gardens can be combined in so many taste-tempting ways.

For a new rhubarb-time dessert try the recipe for Rhubarb-Strawberry Cobblerettes. It is quick and easy to prepare and its simple elegance will find favor with your family.

Rhubarb-Strawberry Cobblerettes

2 cups water! 2 cups sugar; 1 teaspoon vanilla; 2 cups diced rhubarb. 2 cups sliced strawberries.

Topping

1 cup sifted enriched flour; 2 tablespoons sugar; ½ teaspoon salt; 1½ teaspoons baking powder ¼ cup margarine; ½ cup milk; 8 teaspoons margarine; 8 teaspoons sugar.

Prepare simple sirup by cooking the water and sugar together for 5 minutes. Add vanilla. Mix together the diced rhubarb and sliced strawberries. Divide fruit equally between 8 well-margarined individual baking dishes. Pour sirup over fruit.

To make Topping: Sift together flour, sugar, salt and baking powder. Cut in fortified margarine as for biscuits. Add milk, stirring only until flour disappears. Drop by spoonfuls over fruit, making a single mound in each baking dish. Make a dent in each mound. Drop in a teaspoon of fortified margarine and a teaspoon sugar. Bake in a 450 degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Serve warm with cream. Yield: 8 cobblerettes.

Memorial Day Entertaining

Try a porch picnic on Decoration Day! It's festive and fun. Set up a tray of assorted crackers and breads . . . and let your guests "make their own" with these well-flavored spreads. Cold cuts too—a green salad and fruit in season and you have a simple, attractive buffet meal.

Turn the calendar pages and look—it's almost Decoration Day. What do we think of when this special holiday looms in the offing? Food comes to mind—good food, and for choice, the kind you can eat outdoors. We like picnics, and when we're feeling lazy, we stay close to home and picnic on the porch.

There's nothing easier than a buffett service to take care of the family and all the friends who drop in. Set up a tray of assorted crackers and breads—and serve them with a choice of well flavored spreads. Team with cold cuts, a green salad and fruit in season—and you have a simple and attractive buffet meal.

It's important to focus on good spreads. You'll fix them yourself and want them good. Here are some timely suggestions. These spreads are delicious, economical and easy to make up.

OLIVE MUSTARD SPREAD

¼ cup margarine
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon minced onion
1 tablespoon olives, chopped

Cream margarine thoroughly. Blend in remaining ingredients. Chill and serve on crackers. Approx. ¼ cup spread.

MARGARINE LIVER SPREAD

¼ lb. (½ cup) margarine
4 tablespoons liver paste
2 tablespoons relish

Cream margarine. Blend in remaining ingredients. Approx. 1 cup spread.

CHEESE NUT SPREAD

¼ cup margarine
2 tablespoons grated Cheddar cheese
¼ cup chopped walnuts
3 tablespoons chopped watercress

Cream margarine thoroughly. Blend in remaining ingredients. Chill and serve on crackers. Approx. ⅓ cup.

Special Birthday Drink

Every day is someone's birthday. And, deep down, who doesn't look for a little recognition on a birthday? From grandparents right down to the tiniest tot a birthday celebration, however small it may be, is an important matter.

Whether it is a family dinner or an informal gathering of friends to mark the day, a special cake is always the center of attraction. A special beverage, too, adds to the festive spirit, and one made with pale dry ginger ale is a pleasing and refreshing accompaniment to the cake. Tall glasses of thoroughly chilled ginger ale are always welcome and if you want to serve a real party drink, you might try this recipe which serves six.

Happy Birthday

2 eggs; ½ cup sugar; 2 limes, juice; 1 cup pineapple juice; 1 cup peach nectar; Pale dry ginger ale.

Beat eggs and sugar until thick and lemon colored. Add fruit juices beating until blended. Divide among 6 tall glasses. Fill glasses with ice cold pale dry ginger ale. Stir gently to mix.

White pepper is simply well-ripened black pepper.

Rifle And Bayonet Are Still Most Important Weapons, Puller Says

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—The rifle and the bayonet are still the most important weapons any army has, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. (Chesty) Puller, assistant commander of the First Marine Division, declared on his return from Korea.

Puller gave his opinion of the effectiveness of fighting weapons at a press conference before leaving for Washington, D. C. After leave, Puller is to assume command of the Third Marine Brigade, now training at Camp Pendleton.

His ideas of training indicate a tough time ahead for the brigade, and a tough outfit when they have satisfied their general.

Target practice and physical training are Puller's fetishes.

"A Marine must be qualified to hit the bullseye with whatever weapon he is armed," the General declared. "He must be able to make a forced march of 20 miles, the last five at double time, and arrive on a jump-off line in such physical condition that he can go into battle immediately."

He offered the idea, that insofar as effectiveness is concerned, the "idea of push-button war might as well have been proposed in the days of Julius Caesar."

"The bulldozer was the secret weapon of World War II," he said, "but the tent stove has been the secret weapon of the Korean war, and it wasn't developed by a scientist, but a blacksmith."

Asked what he thought of the Chinese Communist forces, Puller said:

"The three-year retreat of the Communist army from the east coast south of Shanghai to the northwest, during which more than 100 battles were fought, was one of the "great military operations" in history.

"It is not for us American officers to underestimate any Asiatic army and its generals," he declared.

But in a pitched battle, the General observer, the Chinese now are 'good for about three days," because the infantryman carries all the artillery shells to the front on his back and three days supply is about the limit which can be brought up at one time. Then the Americans can knock them out before more men and munitions can arrive.

Puller, who proudly noted that the Marines never pulled back without orders, complimented the British, French and Turkish troops of the Allies as being the "best I saw."

"The Turks," he said, were just as good as the Marines."

Puller went in with the First Marines at the Inchon landing last Sept. 15 and was with them at Seoul, Wonsan landing and Chosin reservoir. He has been awarded four Navy Crosses during his career of 33 years with the corps. He left Korea under the Marine Corps rotation plan May 20 and will report to Camp Pendleton in about 30 days.

Farouk Likes "Trance Dance"

LONDON — (INS) — Egyptian "Shimmy Queen" Dawlath Soliman said last night between a bump and a grind that it wasn't easy to become a favorite dancer of King Farouk. It took "plenty of muscle, skill and hard work."

The tiny, dark-eyed dancer donned a scanty costume for the benefit of bug-eyed newsmen, flexed her bare midriff and showed how torso-tossing develops muscles.

As a demonstration she performed the King's favorite kootch, "The Night."

Dawlath explained as she swayed that she goes into a trance during the dance and "just does what's natural."

She also said of the 31-year-old monarch:

"Sometimes he is like a big boy. He likes lots of fun."

Dawlath, who opens a nightclub engagement in London next week and soon hopes to visit Hollywood, explained democratically that Farouk is no different from an ordinary admirer except he occasionally gets "a little awkward."

More liquor is consumed per capita in Washington, D. C., than in any other city in the country.

The bean used in chop suey is the mung bean, grown primarily in China and Japan.

Rifle And Bayonet Are Still Most Important Weapons, Puller Says

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—The rifle and the bayonet are still the most important weapons any army has, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. (Chesty) Puller, assistant commander of the First Marine Division, declared on his return from Korea.

Puller gave his opinion of the effectiveness of fighting weapons at a press conference before leaving for Washington, D. C. After leave, Puller is to assume command of the Third Marine Brigade, now training at Camp Pendleton.

His ideas of training indicate a tough time ahead for the brigade, and a tough outfit when they have satisfied their general.

Target practice and physical training are Puller's fetishes.

"A Marine must be qualified to hit the bullseye with whatever weapon he is armed," the General declared. "He must be able to make a forced march of 20 miles, the last five at double time, and arrive on a jump-off line in such physical condition that he can go into battle immediately."

He offered the idea, that insofar as effectiveness is concerned, the "idea of push-button war might as well have been proposed in the days of Julius Caesar."

"The bulldozer was the secret weapon of World War II," he said, "but the tent stove has been the secret weapon of the Korean war, and it wasn't developed by a scientist, but a blacksmith."

Asked what he thought of the Chinese Communist forces, Puller said:

"The three-year retreat of the Communist army from the east coast south of Shanghai to the northwest, during which more than 100 battles were fought, was one of the "great military operations" in history.

"It is not for us American officers to underestimate any Asiatic army and its generals," he declared.

But in a pitched battle, the General observer, the Chinese now are 'good for about three days," because the infantryman carries all the artillery shells to the front on his back and three days supply is about the limit which can be brought up at one time. Then the Americans can knock them out before more men and munitions can arrive.

Puller, who proudly noted that the Marines never pulled back without orders, complimented the British, French and Turkish troops of the Allies as being the "best I saw."

"The Turks," he said, were just as good as the Marines."

Puller went in with the First Marines at the Inchon landing last Sept. 15 and was with them at Seoul, Wonsan landing and Chosin reservoir. He has been awarded four Navy Crosses during his career of 33 years with the corps. He left Korea under the Marine Corps rotation plan May 20 and will report to Camp Pendleton in about 30 days.

Farouk Likes "Trance Dance"

LONDON — (INS) — Egyptian "Shimmy Queen" Dawlath Soliman said last night between a bump and a grind that it wasn't easy to become a favorite dancer of King Farouk. It took "plenty of muscle, skill and hard work."

The tiny, dark-eyed dancer donned a scanty costume for the benefit of bug-eyed newsmen, flexed her bare midriff and showed how torso-tossing develops muscles.

As a demonstration she performed the King's favorite kootch, "The Night."

Dawlath explained as she swayed that she goes into a trance during the dance and "just does what's natural."

She also said of the 31-year-old monarch:

"Sometimes he is like a big boy. He likes lots of fun."

Dawlath, who opens a nightclub engagement in London next week and soon hopes to visit Hollywood, explained democratically that Farouk is no different from an ordinary admirer except he occasionally gets "a little awkward."

More liquor is consumed per capita in Washington, D. C., than in any other city in the country.

The bean used in chop suey is the mung bean, grown primarily in China and Japan.

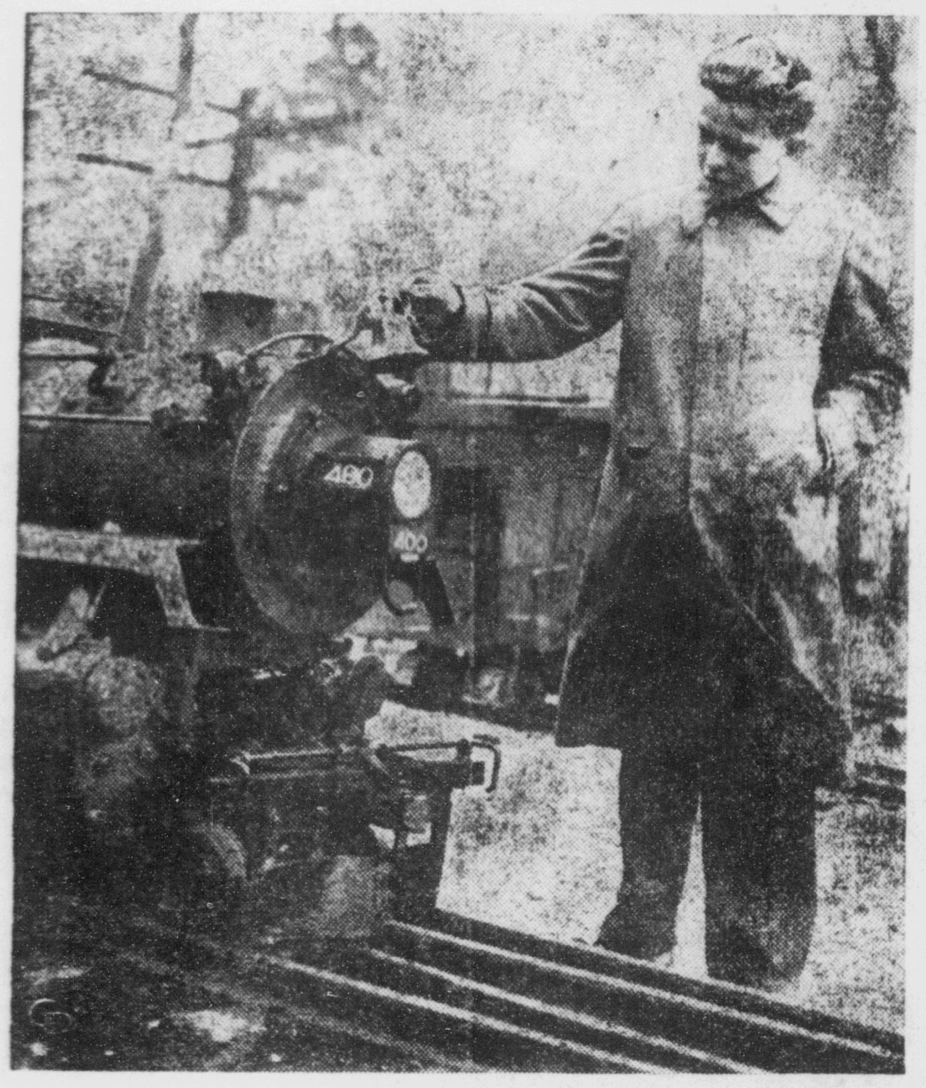
WANNA PLAY TRAIN?

Ride the Tiny, Mile-Long WF & P Road!



This copy of a big coal-burner is so life-like that only by comparing its size with the boy in the picture do you realize it's a miniature.

By GROVER BRINKMAN
Central Press Correspondent

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—How big can a hobby grow? This one, like Jack's mythical beanstalk, grew and grew, until today it is an entire railroad, replete with four stations, repair and tool shops, a roundhouse, personnel and passengers by the score. However, it's all in miniature.

It's the most unique railroad system in America—the narrow-gauge Wabash, Frisco and Pacific, situated at the intersection of Brown and Natural Bridge roads, in St. Louis county, Missouri. It was built, and is operated solely for pleasure by a group of adult railroad fans. Down to the last detail, it is run exactly like a big transcontinental road.

Each Sunday on this hilly Missouri farm, at exactly 11 a. m., rain or shine, Train No. 400 toots out on its narrow-gauge track to make its one-mile run. Not even blizzards stop it. Sometimes as many as a hundred people are in line, waiting to board it—all for free.

The road has never been in receivership. There are no labor troubles or strikes. Its officials believe that it is the only miniature road in the world that is organized, incorporated, managed and operated just like our big systems.

* * *

VALUED at better than $50,000, the WF&P is owned by 30 men representing many trades and professions, whose consuming hobby is railroading. They love the smell of smoke, the insistent clicking of a telegraph key, the clank of steel riding steel. Once a week they forget about their troubles and go railroading—and how!

The road was started in 1939 when a nearby machinist said he had a one-foot gauge type 4-4-0 coal-burning locomotive, and didn't know what to do with it. The enthusiasts obtained the locomotive and also acquired a few hundred feet of track.

Today there are three locomotives, and more than a mile of track, a roundhouse, yards, spurs, section houses, trestles, and both freight and passenger cars, even to a caboose.

Set up on the 80-acre farm of Wilfred Schrade, retired customs-house broker, whose son, Carlisle, was one of the early R. R. enthusiasts, the road is an exact replica of a major system.

The steam locomotives are about eight and one-half feet long and 30 inches high, and the larger of the three weighs about 5,000 pounds. The line's turntable is thought to be the world's only one in narrow gauge, and the stations are probably the smallest anywhere.

The road was named after three of the big roads coming into Union station in St. Louis. The men who own it work and play at all phases of railroading, from grading right-of-way and laying new ties, to wiping down the brass on the steam locomotives.

* * *

THE LINE'S roadbed is all ballasted with cinders and crushed limestone. Rails are 12 and 16-pound, and tires are four-by-four inches. The right-of-way has 21 switches, regulation signaling devices, telegraph and telephone communications between stations, a machine shop, tool house—and even a 26-foot trestle spanning a deep gully.

To board one of the miniature trains, you "buy" a ticket in one of the four stations, surrender it to a uniformed conductor, and enjoy the scenery at 15 miles an hour.

That is, if you're lucky enough to get aboard the passenger. If you ride one of the freights, the speed is 10 miles an hour. More adults ride the trains than children.

There are train orders and split-second dispatching. It is a non-profit organization, incorporated under the laws of Missouri. Believe it or not, the road has its own surgeon, attorney, boiler inspectors and safety engineers.

The safety record of the Lilliputian road is tops, for the cowcatchers of the miniature locomotives have yet to scoop up a cow, or some wayward youngster on the tracks.

Looking at one of these locomotives is like viewing a mountain-type giant through the wrong end of a pair of binoculars. The little locomotives can pull as many as 100 passengers at a time, and they pour forth clouds of smoke just like the big mountain-climbing moguls. One of the locomotives is an exact model of the Canadian Pacific's big 2300 series, even to the tiniest part.

East Germans See U. S. Through Red Glasses In Eisler's New Magazine

BERLIN — (AP) — Gerhart Eisler, East Germany's acid little propaganda chief, is publishing a magazine about the United States—as seen through Red glasses.

Eisler jumped bail and fled from America in 1949 and retains a deep hatred for it. The propaganda boss has the final say about the magazine's contents, though his name does not appear on the publication.

The articles are tailored to fit the Kremlin's portrait of the United States as a country of lynchings, lawlessness and greed ruled by war-bent "billionaires."

The magazine is called "U. S. A. In Wort Und Bild" (U. S. A. In Words And Pictures). As a synical twist, the publication is sometimes quoted deadpan in the Communist press as though it had American origin.

You can buy it for 30 pfennings (about 10 cents) but the Communists are glad to let you have it gratis. It frequently is distributed at Eisler news conferences.

A typical recent issue had an American cover girl peering out wistfully from behind prison bars. Inside, the magazine carried a batch of photographs showing women wrestlers in West Germany under the caption:

"This is how American body culture corrupts sports in Marshall Plan countries."

There was an article by American Negro Singer Paul Robeson on the subject: "Who Is A Real American?" The approximate answer: Someone the Kremlin likes.

Another piece quoted U. S. newspaper articles on conditions in some state mental hospitals and gloated over disclosures of inadequate care and facilities.

A Korean Communist named Tkhai Dian Choun was among the contributors. He came up with a little play on the questioning of a Korean girl, In Sen, captured by the Americans. In Sen is being interrogated by a "Maj. Pelham."

The beginning sets the tone for the entire opus:

In Sen (excitedly): "Don't torture me any longer. You've heard you'll get nothing from me. I know what is behind your words—lies, lies, lies. Your threats can't scare me."

(She makes a step toward the window. Maj. Pelham, seated at a desk, grabs the pistol lying before him and shoots her).

In Sen is only wounded, however, "Maj. Pelham" threatens her with torture. After he kills her in a fresh outburst of rage, "people's partisans' 'arrived, imprison the major and vow to chase the Americans out of Korea.

Add a dash of nutmeg to your usual lemon sauce for cottage pudding for a good flavor change.

To board one of the miniature trains, you "buy" a ticket in one of the four stations, surrender it to a uniformed conductor, and enjoy the scenery at 15 miles an hour.

That is, if you're lucky enough to get aboard the passenger. If you ride one of the freights, the speed is 10 miles an hour. More adults ride the trains than children.

There are train orders and split-second dispatching. It is a nonprofit organization, incorporated under the laws of Missouri. Believe it or not, the road has its own surgeon, attorney, boiler inspectors and safety engineers.

The safety record of the Lilliputian road is tops, for the cowcatchers of the miniature locomotives have yet to scoop up a cow, or some wayward youngster on the tracks.

Looking at one of these locomotives is like viewing a mountain-type giant through the wrong end of a pair of binoculars. The little locomotives can pull as many as 100 passengers at a time, and they pour forth clouds of smoke just like the big mountain-climbing moguls. One of the locomotives is an exact model of the Canadian Pacific's big 2300 series, even to the tiniest part.

East Germans See U. S. Through Red Glasses In Eisler's New Magazine

BERLIN — (AP) — Gerhart Eisler, East Germany's acid little propaganda chief, is publishing a magazine about the United States—as seen through Red glasses.

Eisler jumped bail and fled from America in 1949 and retains a deep hatred for it. The propaganda boss has the final say about the magazine's contents, though his name does not appear on the publication.

The articles are tailored to fit the Kremlin's portrait of the United States as a country of lynchings, lawlessness and greed ruled by way-bent "billionaires."

The magazine is called "U. S. A. In Wort Und Bild" (U. S. A. In Words And Pictures). As a synical twist, the publication is sometimes quoted deadpan in the Communist press as though it had American origin.

You can buy it for 30 pfennings (about 10 cents) but the Communists are glad to let you have it gratis. It frequently is distributed at Eisler news conferences.

A typical recent issue had an American cover girl peering out wistfully from behind prison bars. Inside, the magazine carried a batch of photographs showing women wrestlers in West Germany under the caption:

"This is how American body culture corrupts sports in Marshall Plan countries."

There was an article by American Negro Singer Paul Robeson on the subject: "Who Is A Real American?" The approximate answer: Someone the Kremlin likes.

Another piece quoted U. S. newspaper articles on conditions in some state mental hospitals and gloated over disclosures of inadequate care and facilities.

A Korean Communist named Tkhai Dian Choun was among the contributors. He came up with a little play on the questioning of a Korean girl, In Sen, captured by the Americans. In Sen is being interrogated by a "Maj. Pelham."

The beginning sets the tone for the entire opus:

In Sen (excitedly): "Don't torture me any longer. You've heard you'll get nothing from me. I know what is behind your words—lies, lies, lies. Your threats can't scare me."

(She makes a step toward the window. Maj. Pelham, seated at a desk, grabs the pistol lying before him and shoots her).

In Sen is only wounded, however, "Maj. Pelham" threatens her with torture. After he kills her in a fresh outburst of rage, "people's partisans' 'arrived, imprison the major and vow to chase the Americans out of Korea.

Add a dash of nutmeg to your usual lemon sauce for cottage pudding for a good flavor change.

Disgusted Reds In France Form "Titoist" Party

By CARL HARTMAN

VALENCIENNES, France — (AP) — A "Titoist" party is trying to get started in this grimy coal-mining section of Northern France which produced Communist Boss Maurice Thorez.

It is seeking backing from the 5[illegible]-odd Frenchmen who vote Communist—especially from those who would fight a Russian invasion of France. Nobody knows how many there are.

The French Communist movement was launched officially on the great labor festival of May Day. A formal manifesto declared:

"The Communist Party, our hope of yesterday, has been delivered unconditionally to Moscow by a despotic beaurocracy. In its eyes the deep interest of the French people comes after the interest of the Soviet Union."

American officers say that in a war with Russia one of their chief worries would be a Red uprising in France. Many French Communists got effective guerrilla training in the underground war against the Germans. In another war they could make life hard for any army fighting Russia.

The regular French Communist Party already has prepared the way by pushing the slogan: "We will never make war against the Soviet Union."

Edouard Pesin, for the moment leader of the F. C. M., is a Communist who rejects that slogan. At 54, he has seen two invasions of his country. He maintains that France, if invaded again, must fight back.

A German court-martial sentenced him to five years in prison for hiding British soldiers from the occupying army of World War I. The Germans sent him away again in World War II. He has reason now to think the Russians would do worse if it came to World War III.

"The Communists have already threatened to beat me up," he told this reporter, "to bash my face in, if you want it bluntly."

Pesin is the school principal and mayor of Herin, an impoverished mining town, just outside Valenciennes.

"We're just getting organized," Pesin explained. "A lot depends on whether we can get the money together for a campaign—leaflets, posters, meetings, ballots, all that costs a lot."

Pesin speaks quickly and nervously, as if problems were piling up on him too fast. He apparently has given little thought to international matters—beyond the basic problem of loyalty to France or Russia.

A life-long Socialist, Pesin joined the Communist Patry in 1945.

"I was never really very enthusiastic for them," he explained. "But a lot of the friends and comrades who came back with me from Germany—they turned out to be Communists. A lot of those who never came back, they were Communists too."

The Communists elected him mayor of Hornaing, a smaller town about five miles further west, and then of Herin. He quit the party in November 1949. Why?

"It was that Stockholm peace appeal," he said. "I want disarmament, but I want everybody to disarm. And mostly I don't like the way they deform the truth."

Believed sympathetic to the F. C. M. though keeping officially apart from it is Charles Lemoine, a barrel-chested coal miner who left the Communists when Germany and Russia signed their 1939 pact. The party expelled him a month before he returned from captivity in Germany, but the 1,000 miners of the Schneider pit at Lourches have enthusiastically elected and reelected him as their delegate in the Communist-led union.

Lemoine wants to let Pesin do the talking at this stage, but he clearly makes a much more effective brand of political medicine. At 43 he is a former member of the Communist youth organization's central committee. He has made a trip to Moscow. At least half a dozen union delegates from mines in the region are ready to follow his lead.

Lemoine and Pesin have had talks looking toward a union with Darius Le Corre, another Communist who couldn't stomach the Nazi-Soviet pact. Le Corre was a member of the Chamber of Deputies when he quit the party in 1940. Recently he has been heading a Titoist splinter movement with headquarters in Paris.

Le Corre is writing open letters to regular Communist candidates in the parliamentary election next month. Among other questions, he is asking:

"Will you defend France against aggression, even against Stalinist Russia?"

Given the tight discipline of the French Communist Party, it seems likely that will get few favorable answers. But how many candidates can be put up, even by a combined Lemoine-Pesin-Le Corre group, is a moot question.

Ninety per cent of persons who develop cancer are over 40 years of age.

Forest Officials Tour Rec Area

The Dan's Mountain Recreation Area, which is being set up near Lonaconing, was inspected Wednesday afternoon by Joseph Kaylor, director of the Maryland Department of Forests and Parks, and a number of forestry officials.

Kaylor met with the executive committee of the MacFarland-Meyers Recreation Association at the Good Will Fire Company hall in Lonaconing after the inspection.

The group, which backed the program for a recreation area for the Georges Creek section, was told by Kaylor that a shelter to be built of native stone will be completed this summer. He also said that an additional 20 men will be put on the job of building shelters, parking areas and fireplaces.

A temporary water system is being built and one parking section is being provided for the initial phase of the project.

The Lonaconing group organized to obtain a recreation area following the tragic deaths last summer of two Central High School students in a highway mishap while they were enroute to Minke's swimming pool on the Christie Road.

Concert Is Scheduled At Methodist Church

Ann Fisher Gorman, pianist, and Tech. Sgt. George F. Kirby, tenor singer, will present a concert Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the First Methodist Church on Bedford Street.

The pianist is from Cumberland while Sgt. Kirby is a recruiter for the Army in Oakland. The local concert is being presented for the benefit of the fund to purchase new robes for the senior choir of the church. There will be no admission, but a silver offering will be taken.

The concert will be repeated June 6 in Lonaconing.

Buddy Poppy Sale Planned Tomorrow

The annual Buddy Poppy sale will be held tomorrow by Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, according to Mrs. Grace Cross, chairman of the program for the Ladies Auxiliary.

The poppies are made by veterans in hospitals. The activity termed among the best morale builders and occupational therapy treatments. Poppies were first sold in 1922 and each year various VFW posts throughout the nation sell them and funds derived are used for the veterans in hospitals.

Poppies were selected as the emblem of the dead and dying on the fields of Flanders in 1918 and are a reminder to the American people of sacrifices of U. S. soldiers.

The VFW also uses the funds for its rehabilitation service to needy veterans.

Winners Announced In Oratory Contest

Leo Stakem and James O'Rourke won first honors in the LaSalle High School oratorical contest Wednesday. Stakem, in the Senior Class division, used "Monsignor Fulton J. Sheen's Easter Message" as his topic.

O'Rourke, a Junior, spoke on "A Toast to the American Flag." There were three finalists in each class. Stakem will receive his fourth medal for oratory at the commencement June 10. John Vocke introduced the Senior contestants and Robert Cosgrove presented the Juniors.

Trucker Dies From Injuries

A 23-year-old trucker, Bertram E. Sager, Jr., of Hanging Rock, W. Va., was killed Sunday in a motor mishap on North River Road of Secondary Route 11 in Hampshire county.

State Police said Sager apparently lost control of the machine which turned over several times on the gravel road. He was thrown clear of the wreckage but suffered a broken neck.

Dr. W. C. McDonald, of Augusta, W. Va., examined Sager. His death marked the sixth fatality in Hampshire county this year.

Sager was the son of Bertram E. Sager, Washington attorney, and Mrs. Flora (Miller) Sager, of Hanging Rock. Also surviving is a sister in Miami, Fla.

Burial was in Ebenezer Cemetery with Masonic rites accorded by Clinton Lodge No. 86, A.F. and A.M., Romney, W. Va.

District 16 To Plan For New Honor Roll

Residents of District 16 will meet in the District 16, North Branch, Fire Hall today at 8 p. m. to discuss plans for a permanent honor roll for veterans of the community.

The present honor roll is wooden and residents plan to erect a more substantial one.

Presbyterian Group Installs Officers

New officers were installed and a charter was presented at a meeting of the Men's Club of First Presbyterian Church Wednesday night in the church hall.

Rev. Merle Swihart, pastor of Community Presbyterian Church, Glenshaw, Pa., was the speaker and presented the charter to Russell Pancake, past vice president. Pancake acted in the absence of the past president, John Conley, who is out of town.

The new officers elected and installed were R. W. Daugherty, president; Chester Williams, vice president; H. W. Burchard, treasurer, and George Harman, secretary.

Directors are F. E. Tepper, Russell Rice, Robert Pence, Al Tosh, John H. Stitley and John Harris.

Romney Man Backed For VFW Position

Harold Welker, of Romney, former resident of here, was pledged backing by the Fourth District, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of West Virginia, for department junior vice commander.

The district posts will support Welker when the state VFW election is held June 3 in Clarksburg, W. Va.

At the annual meeting of the district held this week in Charles Town, W. Va., Kenneth Sager was reelected president.

Marriage Licenses Show Increase Here

During the first quarter of this year a total of 722 marriage licenses were issued in Allegany county while 703 were sold during the same period last year.

There were 58 divorces in the first quarter this year and 50 last year in the same period.

Garrett county sold 424 marriage licenses during the quarter this year while last year the figure was 399, an increase of 25 licenses. There were only four divorces this year as compared to six in the same period of 1950.

A majority of the marriage licenses sold in this country are to residents of nearby states, while the divorces are obtained only by residents of the county.

Bath, in 1705, became the first incorporated town in North Carolina.

Retiring Central School Teacher Feted By Faculty At Dinner

Miss Meyer's Record Spans Half Century

LONACONING — Miss Elizabeth Meyers, fourth grade teacher at Central School, who is retiring at the close of the school term June 19, was honored last night, at a turkey dinner held in her honor at Anton's Big Savage Inn, Savage Mountain.

The faculty said of her in their specially prepared programs, "She has given freely of her best, and the lives of hundreds of pupils who have come under her guidance are richer because of her. To the school and the community she leaves a real heritage."

Miss Daisy Cline acted as toastmistress. "Harmony" was the first group presentation. "Lest You Forget Us" was the praise given by R. O. McCullough, school principal.

Committee Named

The committee was Miss Catherine Manley, chairman, Miss Esther Holzshu, Miss Margaret Hamilton and William W. Saylor. Booklet covers were made by Mary McAlpine, Esther Steele and Violet Beeman. The program typing was done by Lucy Lee.

The village school to which Miss Meyers has walked each day for 50½ years holds many happy memories for her.

It was February 1, 1901, that Miss Meyers began teaching in a one-room school for seven negro children on Castle Hill, Lonaconing. To this day, two of her first pupils, still keep in touch with their teacher.

September, 1902, she came to Central School to teach elementary grades. Arthur F. Smith was principal at that time and the building had eight grades, including two high school classes.

Same Class Room

Since 1911 when a new addition was made to Central, she has been in her present classroom No. 105. At the beginning of this year, five of the ten teachers who were in the school system during her early days of teaching were still living. They were Miss Emma Bradley, Miss Nora Geary, Miss Minnie Eichhorn and Miss Mary Walsh. Miss Walsh died in January; Miss Eichhorn died this month.

John T. White was superintendent of schools for Allegany county when Miss Meyers received her appointment to teach in Lonaconing. She taught under four superintendents since then. John Edwards, A. C. Willison, Edward Webb, and Dr. Charles L. Kopp.

Her classroom enrollment has been as high as 56 pupils with that being the normal number in the past decades. Now she has 35 pupils in her room. She remarks that the school system of teaching has changed very greatly during her teaching years.

She has been happy to give all of her teaching experience to her hometown community. Principals during her career at Central have been Smith, who died October 13, 1947, after being principal at Central 45 years; Lewyn C. Davis, who is now junior high school supervisor; and Raymond O. McCullough, who has been principal at Central for three years.

Travel Planned

Upon retirement she plans to spend part of her leisure in traveling. This summer she plans to visit relatives in Chicago, and later to visit other relatives in Baltimore, Washington and Philadelphia. She said that she will need to make the adjustment of being without the school children. She also likes sewing and embroidering and will continue these hobbies. She resides with her sisters, Misses Mary Ann, Christine and Teresa Meyers on St. Mary's terrace, Lonaconing.

A farewell gift of luggage was presented to Miss Meyers at the dinner held last night in her honor. She was also given a special admission card which invites her and her guests to attend any of Central's activities in the future.

Those who attended the farewell dinner were Dr. and Mrs. Charles L. Kopp, Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Rizer, Mr. and Mrs. Lewyn C. Davis, Miss Jane E. Botsford, Principal and Mrs. Raymond O. McCullough, Miss Marie Merrbach, David Kirk, Miss Christine Alderton, Miss Lilias C. Abbott, James Huston, Miss Daisy Cline, Mrs. Elsie Stokes, Joseph Derry, Miss Margaret Hamilton, Mrs. Marabel F. Haran, Mrs. Freida Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph K. Haugen, Miss Esther Holzshu, Kendrick Y. Hodgdon, Miss Evelyn Rae Frankfort, Miss Elizabeth T. Love, John C. Meyers, Miss Catherine Manley, Mr. and Mrs. John Meazger, Mrs. Pauline Hamilton, Mrs. Evelena Nolan, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Saylor, Mrs. Margaret B. Sloan, Miss Margaret H. Sloan, Mrs. Veronica Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Sowers, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Whitefield, Miss Deborah Birdsall, Mrs. Hilda Byers, Miss Emma Bradley, Mrs. Pearl Mello, Mrs. Monica McPartland, Miss Annetta Yates and Mrs. Kathleen Winner.

The turkey dinner was served with the tables tastefully decorated with candles and flowers. Bridge, 500 and Canasta were played during the evening.

Memorial Day Parade Plans To Be Made

Tri-Towns Group Meets Tomorrow

PIEDMONT, W. Va. — The committees making program arrangements for Memorial Day in the Tri-Towns will meet tomorrow night at 7 o'clock in the Council Chamber.

Eugene W. Paxton, city councilman, will preside in the absence of J. William Beck, general chairman, who will be out of town.

The parade will form near the Piedmont High School at 9:30 a. m. and begin marching at 10 a. m. It will proceed to Philos Cemetery, Westernport, where veterans graves will be decorated and an appropriate program will be presented.

The address will be delivered by Rev. Robert E. Cassell, pastor of Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, Westernport.

J. William Beck, general chairman, who will preside announces that the program will also include invocation by Rev. Robert M. Campbell, pastor of the Piedmont Presbyterian Church; pledge of allegiance, led by Chairman Beck; a selection by Boyce-Houser American Legion Band, Keyser, which will also lead the parade.

Selection by band; rifle salute and taps by members of Kelly-Mansfield Post No. 52, American Legion and Victory Post No. 155, American Legion, Westernport.

The benediction will be given by Rev. J. E. Dettra, pastor of the Westernport Church of the Brethren and following the benediction the band will play "The Star Spangled Banner."

Kirby is an Army recruiter in Oakland. Another will be held at the First Methodist Church in Cumberland. A third has been planned in Lonaconing on Wednesday, June 6.

Potomac State Honor Society Holds Dinner

Dr. George H. Hand Is Guest Speaker

KEYSER, W. Va. — Dr. George H. Hand, president of Fairmont State College, was guest speaker at the formal banquet given by Sigma Phi Omega Honor Society in Davis Hall at Potomac State School last night.

Members of the faculty and Sigma Phi Omega attended the affair in honor of the 25 new members recently elected to the society.

The speaker received his doctorate in economics at Princeton University in 1939. Prior to that time he had received his Bachelor of Arts degree in economics from West Virginia University in 1928. He was awarded his Master of Arts degree from Princeton in 1933. A member of the American Economics Association, he served as professor and chairman of the Department of Economics and Business at the University of Vermont, at Burlington, in 1944-45.

He was recently listed in "Who's Who in America." He is a member of the American Association of University professors, the National Education Association, Rotary Club and Sigma Phi Epsilon social fraternity.

Dr. E. E. Church, president of Potomac State School, introduced the speaker, and Dean K. S. McKee gave the invocation. The program was concluded by Edward Welsh speaking in behalf of the 1950-51 members of Sigma Phi Omega, and Robert Hess, president-elect, presented the 1951-52 Honor Society members.

Committee chairman of the affair were Virginia Kemp, programs; Barbara Colabrese, decorations, and Betty Judy, invitations. All active members will assist in receiving and seating the guests.

Exhibits Arrive For Exposition

KEYSER, W. Va.—Two freight cars, loaded with models, paintings and other equipment to be displayed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company during exposition week starting Monday, arrived here yesterday.

This is the first consignment of articles to arrive. The car was unloaded and the crates were distributed to points of vantage.

Church Plans Victory Sunday

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—Rev. J. B. Dryfield, pastor of the Moorefield Methodist Church, announces that a campaign to reach all members of the local congregation, is now in process.

Object of the campaign is twofold: to better acquaint the church member with the work of the Methodist denomination's World Service; and to give each one an opportunity to share regularly in the humanitarian work around the world as well as to support his church in the local and conference responsibilities.

"Victory Sunday" will be observed Sunday June 3, and letters will be mailed to members of the congregation during the week.

Rev. Dryfield indicated that the local budget for this year, exclusive of the building program of the church, will approximate $7,000, which is the largest budget in the history of the local church. Members and friends subscribed $2,650 of this amount last Sunday. Last year Methodists gave $7,672,359.89 to the missionary and general benevolence work of the denomination around the world.

Keyser Seniors Plan Unusual Class Night

Program Scheduled At 8 P. M. Tonight

KEYSER, W. Va.—The annual class night program at Keyser High School will be different this year from others in the past.

The evening's affair will be presented in the usual manner, but with something new as the afterpart. The program will be presented in the school auditorium this evening at 8 o'clock.

The first part will have the usual type of setting and activity with the president, Eugene Woodworth, delivering the address of welcome, followed by a band. A quartet will present a number after which the valedictorian, John Dennison, will speak, followed by Deloris Stickley, salutatorian; Peggie Burgess, class historian, and song numbers by the junior & senior class.

From this point on a new type of class activity will be presented, a play, titled "Seniors At the Bar."

In this skit the seniors have learned that they will not be given their diplomas for lack of a half credit, and they take their grievance to the court, where they present the situation in an outstanding manner.

The court judge is played by John Dennison; James Oates is the students attorney and Vernon Ryan appears as the attorney for the faculty. James Grubbs portrays the part of Owen Shaffer, chemical teacher at Keyser High, and Willuise Martin appears playing the part of Miss Alice White, English teacher. The sheriff's role is played by James Rotruck; Charles Warnick appears as the clerk and Aaron Wilson, plays the part of the football team captain.

The part of R. R. Lowe, principal of the school is played by Frank Raschella. Other seniors in the cast will play parts of jurors and others active in the trial.

Lester McDowell has been sponsor of this year's senior class for the past three years.

Best Actresses Selected At Central School Assembly

LONACONING — Joyce Thorpe and Clara Jean Dick were judged the best actresses and "Telephoning Under Difficulties" was judged the winner of four one-act plays presented at a junior high school assembly Wednesday afternoon in the Central School auditorium.

Margaret Ann Murphy as Martha Bascomb, lady of the house; Shelva Wilson as Beulah Green, the maid; and Ray Trost as voice of junior, off stage, enacted the one-act play which was declared the winner.

"Wanted — A Haunted House" was presented. James Bragg, a real estate broker, was portrayed by Harry Hadley, Miss Hilda Snooks, his assistant, was played by Lesta Eichhorn; Perry Winkle and Miss Ima Peach, customers, were performed by Earl Steiding and Clara Jean Dick.

"Mary Jane and the Census Man" was enacted by Virginia Hardegan as Mary Jane Pettingill; Marion Thompson as Madge, her daughter; and, Bill Richmond as Clarence Hubbs, census taker.

"Jemima's Peddlers" had Joyce Thorpe as Jemima Dewberry; Bobby Mundeno as Sam Slick; Bobby Dickinson as Moses Goldstein; Jack Crable as Rev. Goodman in the cast of characters.

Miss Esther Holzshu is director; Kenneth Smith is faculty director of mimeographing and typing; Miss Daisy Cline, Senior English teacher; Miss Esther Holzshu, Junior and Sophomore English teacher, William Saylor, ninth grade English teacher, Miss Christine Alderton, eighth grade English teacher.

Committee on selecting and arranging were Carol Klipstein, Kay Winner, Flora Machin, Jo Riha, Marion Davis, Norma Jean Bradley, Dorothy Merrbaugh, Shirley Warnick, and Patsy Seib. Proof readers are David Dunn, Robert Dawson, Imogene Lancaster, Helen Crable, Shirley Green, Carol Thompson and Shirley Burt.

Illustrators are Michael Clark, Raymond Bittinger, Billy Nine, Elizabeth Atkinson, Mary McAlpine, Jack Spiker and Eldon Nicol. Jo Riha acted as secretary; Bill Robertson, Margaret Leake, Carl Stakem, Albert Llewellyn and Bill McGann, business managers.

Exhibits Arrive For Exposition

KEYSER, W. Va.—Two freight cars, loaded with models, paintings and other equipment to be displayed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company during exposition week starting Monday, arrived here yesterday.

This is the first consignment of articles to arrive. The car was unloaded and the crates were distributed to points of vantage.

Church Plans Victory Sunday

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—Rev. J. B. Dryfield, pastor of the Moorefield Methodist Church, announces that a campaign to reach all members of the local congregation, is now in process.

Object of the campaign is twofold: to better acquaint the church member with the work of the Methodist denomination's World Service; and to give each one an opportunity to share regularly in the humanitarian work around the world as well as to support his church in the local and conference responsibilities.

"Victory Sunday" will be observed Sunday June 3, and letters will be mailed to members of the congregation during the week.

Rev. Dryfield indicated that the local budget for this year, exclusive of the building program of the church, will approximate $7,000, which is the largest budget in the history of the local church. Members and friends subscribed $2,650 of this amount last Sunday. Last year Methodists gave $7,672,359.89 to the missionary and general benevolence work of the denomination around the world.

Keyser Seniors Plan Unusual Class Night

Program Scheduled At 8 P. M. Tonight

KEYSER, W. Va.—The annual class night program at Keyser High School will be different this year from others in the past.

The evening's affair will be presented in the usual manner, but with something new as the afterpart. The program will be presented in the school auditorium this evening at 8 o'clock.

The first part will have the usual type of setting and activity with the president, Eugene Woodworth, delivering the address of welcome, followed by a band. A quartet will present a number after which the valedictorian. John Dennison, will speak, followed by Deloris Stickley, salutatorian; Peggie Burgess, class historian, and song numbers by the junior & senior class.

From this point on a new type of class activity will be presented, a play, titled "Seniors At the Bar."

In this skit the seniors have learned that they will not be given their diplomas for lack of a half credit, and they take their grievance to the court, where they present the situation in an outstanding manner.

The court judge is played by John Dennison; James Oates is the students attorney and Vernon Ryan appears as the attorney for the faculty. James Grubbs portrays the part of Owen Shaffer, chemical teacher at Keyser High, and Willuise Martin appears playing the part of Miss Alice White, English teacher. The sheriff's role is played by James Rotruck; Charles Warnick appears as the clerk and Aaron Wilson, plays the part of the football team captain.

The part of R. R. Lowe, principal of the school is played by Frank Raschella. Other seniors in the cast will play parts of jurors and others active in the trial.

Lester McDowell has been sponsor of this year's senior class for the past three years.

Best Actresses Selected At Central School Assembly

LONACONING — Joyce Thorpe and Clara Jean Dick were judged the best actresses and "Telephoning Under Difficulties" was judged the winner of four one-act plays presented at a junior high school assembly Wednesday afternoon in the Central School auditorium.

Margaret Ann Murphy as Martha Bascomb, lady of the house; Shelva Wilson as Beulah Green, the maid; and Ray Trost as voice of junior, off stage, enacted the one-act play which was declared the winner.

"Wanted — A Haunted House" was presented. James Bragg, a real estate broker, was portrayed by Harry Hadley, Miss Hilda Snooks, his assistant, was played by Lesta Eichhorn; Perry Winkle and Miss Ima Peach, customers, were performed by Earl Steiding and Clara Jean Dick.

"Mary Jane and the Census Man" was enacted by Virginia Hardegan as Mary Jane Pettingill; Marion Thompson as Madge, her daughter; and, Bill Richmond as Clarence Hubbs, census taker.

"Jemima's Peddlers" had Joyce Thorpe as Jemima Dewberry; Bobby Mundeno as Sam Slick; Bobby Dickinson as Moses Goldstein; Jack Crable as Rev. Goodman in the cast of characters.

West Virginia Gets No Bids On Bonus Bonds

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 24 (AP) — West Virginia failed to receive a single bid Wednesday on its proposed issuance of $67,500,000 in revenue bonds to pay its veterans of two World Wars a state bonus.

Governor Okey L. Patterson said other methods of paying the bonus would be studied.

The absence of bids was attributed to a recent order of the National Voluntary Credit Restraint Committee to investment houses not to bid on the bonds.

The committee, which has federal government sanction, ruled the issuance inflationary.

While the committee's rulings are not binding, most investment syndicates were expected beforehand to abide by the ruling.

Director T. H. (Pat) McGovran of the Veterans Affairs Department said that a tentative date of July 6 for accepting bonus applications is out.

The 1951 Legislature set up new taxes on cigarettes and beer and higher prices for liquor sold at state stores, all to become effective July 1 to pay off the bonds.

Those taxes will go into effect as usual, with receipts to be held for what ever time the bonus machinery goes into effect.

14 Oldtown FFA Boys Judge Eggs And Poultry

If there is such a thing as safety in numbers, an Oldtown boy should win the Allegany County Future Farmers of America Poultry and Egg Judging Contest when the results finally are tabulated.

The reason is that 14 of the 23 boys who competed in the contest last night at the Steinla Motor Car Company garage, 218 South Mechanic Street, were from the Oldtown FFA. Six others were from Flintstone, two from Beall and one from Fort Hill. Allegany, the fifth county school with an FFA Club, was not represented.

James H. House, supervisor of vocational agriculture in the county schools, arranged the contest. Charles A. Smith, superintendent of the Poultry Department of the Cumberland Fair Association, was official poultry judge. Robert E. L. Ross, Flintstone vo-ag teacher, directed the egg judging.

The officials indicated it might be several days before the judging records could be checked and the contest winners named. Each boy was called upon to judge four New Hampshire Reds, four Rhode Island Reds and four white Leghorns as well as candle and judge a dozen white and a dozen brown eggs.

Contestants were Robert Bible, Donald Platt, Marshall Shryock, Earl Cooper, Sonny Dever, James Twigg, James Carder, Eldon Long, Eddy Mueller, Richard Mueller, George McCabe, Donald Nixon, Robert Funkhouser, John McCoy all Oldtown; Eddy Hampton, Richard Harder, Thomas Buser, Ernest Shriver, Charles Stafford and Royce Stafford, all Flintstone; Byron Kiser and William Langeluttig, both Beall, and James Matthews, Fort Hill.

Thomas Church Group Elects 1951 Officers

PARSONS, W. Va. — Mrs. James Schoonover was named president of the Wesleyan Service Guild of the Thomas Methodist Church at a meeting held at the home of Mrs. Bert Pase. Other officers are Mrs. Charles Shrader, vice-president; Mrs. Elwood Root, secretary; Mrs. Marie Chenowith, treasurer and Mrs. Harley Kight, reporter.

The member voted to sponsor the Children's Day Parade at the annual Firemen's Homecoming being held in Thomas in June and also madep lans to serve the Masonic Dinner on June 2. The devotional services were presented by Mrs. Verda Helmick, Mrs. Evelyn Shrader and Mrs. Ruth Helmick.

Mothers Feted At Dinner Held By Keyser Group

Program Includes Pledge Ceremony

KEYSER, W. Va.—The Iota Pi Chapter, Tau Phi Lambda Sorority of the Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, held a Mother-Daughter banquet and pledge ceremony Monday evening at the Old Homestead Hotel, Burlington.

Luetta Dantzic was toastmistress. The doxology was given in unison; the invocation was given by Kathleen Harrison; introductory toast by Luetta Dantzic; Mary Kight gave the toast to daughters; Frances Hartman sang a solo, "Mother"; Loretta Keener gave a reading, "If"; Mrs. Clyde Hott and her daughter, Doris Nesbit played a piano duet, "Narcissis"; Angela Dorsey read a poem, "Your Home"; A duet by Mary and Juanita Rotruck.

Luetta Dantzic presided at a "Queen for the Day" ceremony when each daughter crowned her mother. Alma Payne gave a humorous reading concluding the program.

The pledge ceremony was held with Juanita Rotruck as president; Phyllis Dorsey as warden; Doris Nesbitt as musician. Alice Ravenscroft and Frances Hartman were pledged into the sorority with Mary Kathryn Neville and Mary Rotruck acting as pledge mothers.

A Spring flowers theme was carried out in the decorations. Favors were miniature hats of pink and green, the sorority colors.

Guests were Mesdames Clarence Friend, Walter Kephart, John T. Dorsey, James Clise, C. R. Feathers, I. L. Ravenscroft, Edward Mills, M. C. Rotruck, Luther Rotruck, Thomas Payne, Dennis Collins, C. W. Smith Clyde Hott, Harold Harrison; Misses Nora Snively and Di Anne Kight.

Pledges and members included Alice Ravenscroft, Frances Hartman, Mary Kight, Mary Kathryn Neville, Betty Murray, Adrian Dixon, Phyllis Dorsey, Betty Kephart, Kathleen Harrison, Doris Nesbitt, Loretta Keener, Alma Payne, Mary Rotruck, Luetta Dantzic, Juanita Rotruck and Mary Ellen Carpenter.

Kenny Will Be Banquet Speaker

PIEDMONT, W. Va. — Hamill Kenny, a member of the Piedmont High School Alumni Association will be principal speaker at its annual banquet Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. in the High School auditorium.

Kenny received his A. B. and M. A. Degrees at Columbia University, New York City.

In recent years he wrote and published a book "Place Names" and is now preparing his thesis "Indian Place Names in Maryland" which he will soon publish. He will receive the degree of Doctor of Philosophy next month at the University of Maryland.

For the past five years he has been associated with the University of Maryland as a teacher and student and during this time has travelled in Africa, the Orient and European countries.

Dr. James H. Wolverton, Jr., also an alumnus, will act as toastmaster. A program is being arranged by Edward Seaman, a member of the high school faculty. The annual election of officers will also be held.

Red Cross Drive Ends In Tucker

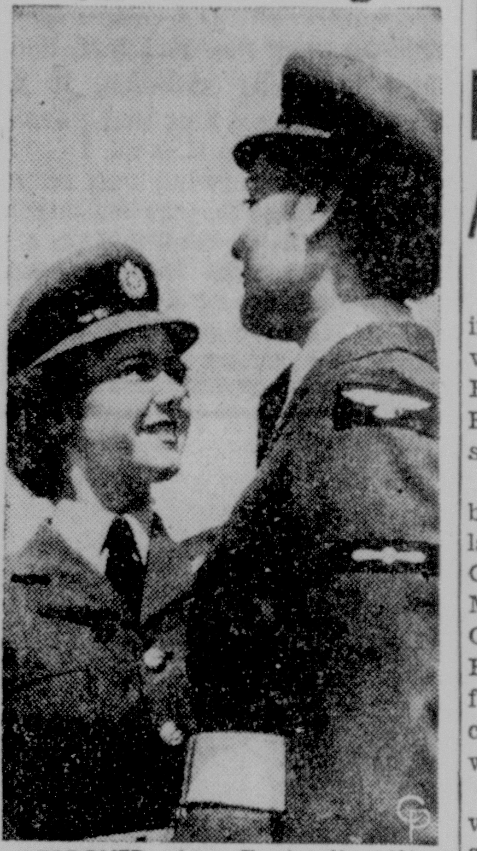
PARSONS, W. Va. — Mrs. H. U. Freeman, chairman of the Tucker County Red Cross, has given the final report for the 1951 drive. A total of $1,483.90 was received, far exceeding last year's drive.

Mrs. Freeman has requested that any other donations to be made to the Red Cross will be appreciated but are to be mailed direct to Luther Bennett, County Chairman.

The drive in Davis was sponsored by the Woman's club with Miss Marguerite Chrystal as chairman and reported $351.69; Fairfax, by the Lions Club with Dr. T. A. Currey, chairman, $356.15. Parsons with the Woman's Club as sponsors and Mrs. B. F. Long, Sr. and Mrs. H. D. Shiflet as co-chairmen, $663.57. Included was $100.08 given by donations direct to the fund chairman and $25 given by the Tucker County Bank in honor of Mrs. Anna Lake.

Other reports included Mrs. Ralph Rowland, chairman of Bretz, with $9.50; Hambleton-Hendricks English Club with Mrs. Paul Mateer chairman, $51.60; St. George with Mrs. John Auvil as chairman, $20; Porterwood with Mrs. Ruby Powers, chairman, $2.43; Red Creek with Mrs. Raines as chairman, $19.02; the Holly Meadows and the Limestone Farm Woman's club each donated $5.

Fit for a King



APPROVED by England's King George, a new hat adopted by the British Women's Royal Air Force is worn for the first time at a rehearsal for the forthcoming presentation of the colors. Here, Betty Morgan helps her sister-in-arms, June Buckfield, adjust the new military chapeau. (International)

West Virginia Gets No Bids On Bonus Bonds

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 24 (AP) — West Virginia failed to receive a single bid Wednesday on its proposed issuance of $67,500,000 in revenue bonds to pay its veterans of two World Wars a state bonus.

Governor Okey L. Patterson said other methods of paying the bonus would be studied.

The absence of bids was attributed to a recent order of the National Voluntary Credit Restraint Committee to investment houses not to bid on the bonds.

The committee, which has federal government sanction, ruled the issuance inflationary.

While the committee's rulings are not binding, most investment syndicates were expected beforehand to abide by the ruling.

Director T. H. (Pat) McGovran of the Veterans Affairs Department said that a tentative date of July 6 for accepting bonus applications is out.

The 1951 Legislature set up new taxes on cigarettes and beer and higher prices for liquor sold at state stores, all to become effective July 1 to pay off the bonds.

Those taxes will go into effect as usual, with receipts to be held for what ever time the bonus machinery goes into effect.

14 Oldtown FFA Boys Judge Eggs And Poultry

If there is such a thing as safety in numbers, an Oldtown boy should win the Allegany County Future Farmers of America Poultry and Egg Judging Contest when the results finally are tabulated.

The reason is that 14 of the 23 boys who competed in the contest last night at the Steinla Motor Car Company garage, 218 South Mechanic Street, were from the Oldtown FFA. Six others were from Flintstone, two from Beall and one from Fort Hill. Allegany, the fifth county school with an FFA Club, was not represented.

James H. House, supervisor of vocational agriculture in the county schools, arranged the contest. Charles A. Smith, superintendent of the Poultry Department of the Cumberland Fair Association, was official poultry judge. Robert E. L. Ross, Flintstone vo-ag teacher, directed the egg judging.

The officials indicated it might be several days before the judging records could be checked and the contest winners named. Each boy was called upon to judge four New Hampshire Reds, four Rhode Island Reds and four white Leghorns as well as candle and judge a dozen white and a dozen brown eggs.

Contestants were Robert Bible Donald Platt, Marshall Shryock, Earl Cooper, Sonny Dever, James Twigg, James Carder, Eldon Long, Eddy Mueller, Richard Mueller, George McCabe, Donald Nixon, Robert Funkhouser, John McCoy all Oldtown; Eddy Hampton, Richard Harder, Thomas Buser, Ernest Shriver, Charles Stafford and Royce Stafford, all Flintstone; Byron Kiser and William Langeluttig, both Beall, and James Matthews, Fort Hill.

Thomas Church Group Elects 1951 Officers

PARSONS, W. Va. — Mrs. James Schoonover was named president of the Wesleyan Service Guild of the Thomas Methodist Church at a meeting held at the home of Mrs. Bert Pase. Other officers are Mrs. Charles Shrader, vice-president; Mrs. Elwood Root, secretary; Mrs. Marie Chenowith, treasurer and Mrs. Harley Kight, reporter.

The member voted to sponsor the Children's Day Parade at the annual Firemen's Homecoming being held in Thomas in June and also madep lans to serve the Masonic Dinner on June 2. The devotional services were presented by Mrs. Verda Helmick, Mrs. Evelyn Shrader and Mrs. Ruth Helmick.

Swanton Briefs And Personals

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Friend were Mr. and Mrs. Weston Friend, Patsy Gary, Dennis Friend, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Friend and sons, David and Stephen; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Tichinel and Sonny Tichinel, Altamont; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Romesburg.

Walter Friend of Cumberland is visiting relatives here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Sweitzer, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Warnick and daughter, Jackie, and Darlene Rhodes visited Mrs. Sweitzer's sister, Mrs. Clara Sweitzer, in Morgantown, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harvey and family have moved to Sulphur City from their home in the Walnut Bottom vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Wright, who have been living at Lakes Filling Station for the last few months, have purchased the Henry Johnston property in Swanton and will move in within the next few days.

Mr. and Mrs. James Kellar and children of Franklin visited Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilson.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilson on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Machin, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Machin and daughter,

Robert Bray, Tressa Friend, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilson and sons called on Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Friend, Deer Park, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. James Baker, Pittsburgh, Pa., visited Mr. and Mrs. Lenuel Friend over the weekend.

Floyd Delmar and David Wilson spent the weekend visiting their grandparents at Deer Park.

Mrs. Hattie Brobst, Paul, George, Charles Craver and Tressa Friend were in Oakland Tuesday.

Doris Shillinburg spent a few days recently in Franklin.

Lonaconing Briefs

Ronald T. Warnick was elected president of the Boys 4-H club; Richard Cutter was elected vice president; and Carlton Robertson was elected secretary at their club meeting on Tuesday evening.

The Fashion Show by the Home Economics department will be presented Thursday, May 31, at 8 p. m. by the Central High School home ec girls.

It's funny how some people spend all day getting out of doing a morning's work.

"As the first plant location in this country, and for many years the only one, especially during the long years of experimentation and product development which really lasted until 1938, Cumberland supplied many of the people who grew with the Company and continue to furnish part of the leadership as it expands beyond the borders of the United States and becomes an important international enterprise. People are the most important part of human institutions; with so many Cumberland people in our management it may truthfully be said that the character of Cumberland is firmly imprinted upon the Company. That is by far the most important contribution of Cumberland to the Company.

"Cumberland is the fountainhead of this great and growing Company. This community is one of our chief partners in progress. What is good for one is good for the other. The fact that a business enterprise expands and grows larger does not destroy the basis philosophy of a partnership with a community. A company is much like an individual taking up new residence in a town. He has a self-interest in civic affairs, in the economic and social atmosphere. He raises his family, pays taxes, discharges his community obligations and remains there a long time if he can make a comfortable living. The mere fact that some member of the family locates in another town, as often happens, does not affect his original residence and relationship.

Mutual Obligation

"Now, partnership is a mutual obligation. Both must look after the health and happiness of the other lest misunderstanding impair the mutual satisfaction. Celanese Corporation has an obligation to try to provide steady employment at competitive wages to the number of people required to carry on its normal business. It can try to carry inventory across dull periods of business activity, to the limit of its ability, in an effort to avoid seasonal layoffs. We have succeeded in the one but we have not yet been able to cope with a nation-wide depression. Perhaps sometime we will learn how, but to date we are only able to survive such emergencies by living temporarily on the earnings of good business periods.

"We also feel an obligation to support local business. The large amount of coal, power, water and supplies that the Company purchases locally provide additional jobs and bring more money into the community. As a good industrial citizen, the Company does its share in giving financial support to nonsectarian community projects. It also encourages its local management to assist in community and civic enterprises as good citizens. From its inception and over a period of fourteen years, our Mr. Small took an active part, as you well remember, in promoting and assisting in carrying to a successful conclusion the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Control. He also assisted in drawing up the Ordinance of Smoke Control and the Planning Commission and made engineering talent available to the commission.

"There are several ways in which the community can help the Company. In fact, I think the community has a definite obligation to provide an atmosphere favorable to the economic health of its partner, the business enterprise. There are such things as taxes. It may sound all right to soak the corporations, as some of our more prominent demagogs advocate, but high taxes not only discourage business enterprise from taking risks in expansion, but often destroy it altogether thereby destroying the means of making a living on the part of the citizen, the real victim. The community should bear in mind that high local taxes adversely affect Amcelle's cost of production and can put the factory at a disadvantage with respect to factories in competitive communities.

Water Supply Stressed

"The subject of the water supply has been mentioned. It is a serious problem for Cumberland's partner and should be kept constantly in mind.

"Of great but often neglected importance is legislation unfavorable to an atmosphere of business confidence. There are current tendencies to vote benefits in dubious value, and increase the taxes on industry to pay for them. Industry cannot effectively fight such proposals today, due to the long indoctrination of the people in socialistic and communistic ideas, and too many of these unwise schemes are enacted at public expense for lack of opposition from local business and professional groups. Sometimes the public mind seems to be so poisoned by un-American, foreign propaganda, such as the communistic theory that the world owes everybody a living, that big companies are made the whipping boy by the agitators, called an enemy of the people. It's like killing the goose that lays the golden egg.

"On the other hand, there are many desirable community projects which provide a better and fuller life for the people. Such things are also of benefit to the Company because they provide the human satisfaction that make people happy in their community and their jobs and are cause for pride and self-respect.

Business Responsibility

"The community, especially the business section of it, can do much to foster the type of labor relations that will permit the Company fully to utilize the large sums that will continually be spent to keep the Amcelle plant as modern and competitive as any in the industry. It is all very simple. All that needs to be done is to repeat the truths about the Company. You know the Company's attitudes. They are published in newspapers, mailed out in letters from the manager, and printed in Company publications. No one else is in a position to state the Company's policies. I think we have a right to this kind of truthful support from the members of the Chamber of Commerce and from all the community. After all, we are mutually dependent for our welfare upon correct understanding of each other's ideas.

"We have said that people are more important than material things. It is a fact that a corporation is but the lengthened shadow of a man, of many men. A corporation is not a heartless thing without soul or conscience as is sometimes thoughtlessly represented. A corporation is merely the legal tie which binds together the ordinary men and women who strive together in combined effort to make a living. This legal tie permits them to be joined or followed by other men and women as time passes, either as owners or wage earners, or both. A corporation is only a legal means of carrying on and perpetuating combined effort. It has the same quality of heart and soul and it is as human as the people who comprise it because it is the people.

Citizens Promoted

"As Celanese Corporation grew beyond the borders of Cumberland, while still remaining a vital, integral part of it, in like manner many Cumberland men and women have moved away from Cumberland to take more important positions in the Company than they had here. Some have become general officers and directors, some managers of great plants in this country and abroad. You know them, so I take pride in mentioning a few — Schneider, Small, Cooper, Martin, Allan, Howorth, Killackey, Anwyl, Hanlon, Roberts, Mitchell, Seymour, Burns, Croft, Dice, Bassett and Babst. There is room for many more. Cumberland should take pride in the splendid procession of its sons that leave for more important positions in the Company because they have advanced solely on merit.

"One aspect in which I wish more of the individual citizens of the community had been partners with the Company is that of financial partnership. Many local people have invested savings in the Company's securities to their considerable profit. It is probably a pity that some of us feel a natural reticence to advise on investments. Moreover, I have a conviction that people of limited means should not invest their savings in securities of fluctuating values. I mention this because we are frequently approached by associates working in our plants who want to buy some of the Company's stock. We can only refer them to established investment houses. Perhaps we ought to make them more aware of the opportunities of investing in growth companies in growth industries than by mailing out financial statements in Annual Reports, but we do not dare to do any more. We have studied and continue to study the subject of stock purchase plans, but we do not believe in special privilege and we have not yet found a suitable solution to the problem. Securities of a publicly-owned company should be bought and sold only in the open and legally constituted markets.

"I have brought up this subject in order to point out that the success of the Cumberland-Celanese partnership is important to others as well as local citizens and local management. More than 35,000 shareholders in all parts of the country have a stake in the partnership. There are twice as many owners as employees in the Company. Many of them are banks, trust companies, insurance companies, churches, hospitals, colleges, and pension funds. In fact, over 38% of the common stock is institutionally owned. I daresay there is not an individual in this room this evening who does not have at least indirectly an interest in this partnership, if he carries any insurance or has a savings account.

"In closing, I feel impelled to make a statement on a subject that comes up every now and then and causes increasing irritation. It is such a silly, stupid idea that I even hesitate to mention it at all. I refer to the pernicious rumor that crops up that Celanese Corporation might leave Cumberland. Once and for all time, I state that the Company has no intention of leaving Cumberland. We have been here over a quarter of a century and we intend to stay here. We own our land, pay our taxes, and have as much right to stay here as anybody. Moreover, we like the people and the community and we don't intend to be moved out by careless gossip. Our roots are down deep in Cumberland. Both partners in this great enterprise are people — not streets and buildings and machinery and empty names. We belong to each other. We are completely a part of each other. Here and elsewhere Cumberland men and women are Celanese Corporation. With vigor, understanding, pride in our accomplishment and affection for each other, we shall march up the long road of the future together."

"There are several ways in which the community can help the Company. In fact, I think the community has a definite obligation to provide an atmosphere favorable to the economic health of its partner, the business enterprise. There are such things as taxes. It may sound all right to soak the corporations, as some of our more prominent demagogs advocate, but high taxes not only discourage business enterprise from taking risks in expansion, but often destroy it altogether thereby destroying the means of making a living on the part of the citizen, the real victim. The community should bear in mind that high local taxes adversely affect Amcelle's cost of production and can put the factory at a disadvantage with respect to factories in competitive communities.

Water Supply Stressed

"The subject of the water supply has been mentioned. It is a serious problem for Cumberland's partner and should be kept constantly in mind.

"Of great but often neglected importance is legislation unfavorable to an atmosphere of business confidence. There are current tendencies to vote benefits in dubious value, and increase the taxes on industry to pay for them. Industry cannot effectively fight such proposals today, due to the long indoctrination of the people in socialistic and communistic ideas, and too many of these unwise schemes are enacted at public expense for lack of opposition from local business and professional groups. Sometimes the public mind seems to be so poisoned by un-American, foreign propaganda, such as the communistic theory that the world owes everybody a living, that big companies are made the whipping boy by the agitators, called an enemy of the people. It's like killing the goose that lays the golden egg.

"On the other hand, there are many desirable community projects which provide a better and fuller life for the people. Such things are also of benefit to the Company because they provide the human satisfaction that make people happy in their community and their jobs and are cause for pride and self-respect.

Business Responsibility

"The community, especially the business section of it, can do much to foster the type of labor relations that will permit the Company fully to utilize the large sums that will continually be spent to keep the Amcelle plant as modern and competitive as any in the industry. It is all very simple. All that needs to be done is to repeat the truths about the Company. You know the Company's attitudes. They are published in newspapers, mailed out in letters from the manager, and printed in Company publications. No one else is in a position to state the Company's policies. I think we have a right to this kind of truthful support from the members of the Chamber of Commerce and from all the community. After all, we are mutually dependent for our welfare upon correct understanding of each other's ideas.

"We have said that people are more important than material things. It is a fact that a corporation is but the lengthened shadow of a man, of many men. A corporation is not a heartless thing without soul or conscience as is sometimes thoughtlessly represented. A corporation is merely the legal tie which binds together the ordinary men and women who strive together in combined effort to make a living. This legal tie permits them to be joined or followed by other men and women as time passes, either as owners or wage earners, or both. A corporation is only a legal means of carrying on and perpetuating combined effort. It has the same quality of heart and soul and it is as human as the people who comprise it because it is the people.

Citizens Promoted

"As Celanese Corporation grew beyond the borders of Cumberland, while still remaining a vital, integral part of it, in like manner many Cumberland men and women have moved away from Cumberland to take more important positions in the Company than they had here. Some have become general officers and directors, some managers of great plants in this country and abroad. You know them, so I take pride in mentioning a few — Schneider, Small, Cooper, Martin, Allan, Howorth, Killackey, Anwyl, Hanlon, Roberts, Mitchell, Seymour, Burns, Croft, Dice, Bassett and Babst. There is room for many more. Cumberland should take pride in the splendid procession of its sons that leave for more important positions in the Company because they have advanced solely on merit.

"One aspect in which I wish more of the individual citizens of the community had been partners with the Company is that of financial partnership. Many local people have invested savings in the Company's securities to their considerable profit. It is probably a pity that some of us feel a natural reticence to advise on investments. Moreover, I have a conviction that people of limited means should not invest their savings in securities of fluctuating values. I mention this because we are frequently approached by associates working in our plants who want to buy some of the Company's stock. We can only refer them to established investment houses. Perhaps we ought to make them more aware of the opportunities of investing in growth companies in growth industries than by mailing out financial statements in Annual Reports, but we do not dare to do any more. We have studied and continue to study the subject of stock purchase plans, but we do not believe in special privilege and we have not yet found a suitable solution to the problem. Securities of a publicly-owned company should be bought and sold only in the open and legally constituted markets.

"I have brought up this subject in order to point out that the success of the Cumberland-Celanese partnership is important to others as well as local citizens and local management. More than 35,000 shareholders in all parts of the country have a stake in the partnership. There are twice as many owners as employees in the Company. Many of them are banks, trust companies, insurance companies, churches, hospitals, colleges, and pension funds. In fact, over 38% of the common stock is institutionally owned. I daresay there is not an individual in this room this evening who does not have at least indirectly an interest in this partnership, if he carries any insurance or has a savings account.

"In closing, I feel impelled to make a statement on a subject that comes up every now and then and causes increasing irritation. It is such a silly, stupid idea that I even hesitate to mention it at all. I refer to the pernicious rumor that crops up that Celanese Corporation might leave Cumberland. Once and for all time, I state that the Company has no intention of leaving Cumberland. We have been here over a quarter of a century and we intend to stay here. We own our land, pay our taxes, and have as much right to stay here as anybody. Moreover, we like the people and the community and we don't intend to be moved out by careless gossip. Our roots are down deep in Cumberland. Both partners in this great enterprise are people — not streets and buildings and machinery and empty names. We belong to each other. We are completely a part of each other. Here and elsewhere Cumberland men and women are Celanese Corporation. With vigor, understanding, pride in our accomplishment and affection for each other, we shall march up the long road of the future together."

Cards, Optimists And Times-News Chalk Up Wins

Athletics, Rotary And Jaycees Lose

The Cardinals took the measure of the Athletics, 10 to 3 in the Little League, and the Times-News and Optimist Club were returned winners in Hot Stove League games played yesterday.

The Times-News nine downed the Rotary Club last night at Penn Avenue Field, 5-3, after the Cardinals had won the opening game on the tripleheader program.

Yesterday at Community Park, Manager Earl Nonnenmann's Optimists won over the Jaycees by the score of 7-6.

Tied For 1st Place

Times-News is now tied with the Lions for first place in the Hot Stove League (2-0) while the Cardinals are setting the pace in the Whiz Kids Division of the Little League with a 2-0 record.

Markley fired the third strike past 12 Athletics' batsmen as the Cardinals triumphed last night. Charlie Smith, A's relief pitcher, struck out 11 after supplanting Gerry Farrell in the first frame. Markley also led the winners at the plate with a double and two singles in three official trips. Smith, Farrell and Bob Page rapped two hits each for the A's who suffered their second straight setback. Bob Lewis tossed a 4-hitter and whiffed eight as the Optimists handed the Jaycees their second defeat in the Hot Stove loop. Lewis and Crawford shared four of the winners 11 hits.

Frank Page struck out an even dozen in the Times-News victory and let the Rotarians down with three hits, including a triple by Puffenburger. Murray, Rotary pitcher fanned nine and gave up six hits, one being a three-bagger by Bittner. George Crass, Times-News left fielder, contributed the fielding highlight when he threw out Bean at the plate in the 5th inning.

The Senators and Giants will play the opening game on tonight's program at 6:15 o'clock and the Hot Stove League game between Exchange and Kiwanis will start at 7:45. P. E. and C. & P. Telephone play in the third game at 9:15. Yesterday's results:

Allan Sheetz posted his fourth consecutive victory of the Rocking Chair Softball League season yesterday but the pace-setting F. O. Eagles were forced to play nine innings to win eighth consecutive game over the Outdoor Club at East Side Field. The score was 3-1.

Sheetz has yielded only four runs in as many games this season.

Al paved the way for the winning run in the second overtime frame when he singled, moved to second on Mulvey's hit and came home on "Doc" Summers' base wallop. Lou Riehl's outfield fly sent Mulvey over with the extra tally. Jones' double a Cubbage's single produced the O. D. C. tally in the 6th. Lou Riehl led the stickers with a pair of two-baggers.

The B. P. O. Elks smacked out 13 hits and handed the Knights of Columbus an 11-1 walloping at Campobello. Bill Underdonk tossed a 5-hitter to notch win No. 6 against two losses. Loibel suffered his 7th loss against a single victory. It was the 7th straight loss for the Knights.

Orndorff, Reel and Roy Whiteman shared six of the Elk's 13 blows.

The Moose wounded Gene Scaletta in the first inning and went on to beat the Amvets at Fort Hill by the score of 8-4.

Scaletta suffered an injured knee when struck by a line drive in the first inning and was supplanted by Al Delbrugge who finished on the mound. Lou Bell suffered a twisted knee, Suter Kegg was hit in the mouth by a lively ball and George Geatz was cracked on the head before the game got under way.

Harry Minnicks and "Fats" Weltman garnered three hits each for the winners. Bell and Daughtery had two safeties apiece for the Amvets. The scores:

Chisox Sweep Through East

Score 7th Straight Win Over A's, 5 To 2

PHILADELPHIA, May 24 (AP) — The Chicago White Sox did something today no other American League club from the Windy City has been able to accomplish in modern times when they completed an unbeaten eastern invasion with a 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

The triumph, featured by Eddie Robinson's seventh home run of the season, was the seventh home run of the season, was the seventh straight for Manager Paul Richards' boys. They whipped Boston twice, New York once, Washington three times and Philadelphia once in that order.

Veteran Randy Gumpert, picking up his second straight mound triumph, was touched for 11 hits but went the route. Meantime, the Sox thumped starter Joe Coleman and Carl Scheib for the same number of blows. Box:

Sportsmanship Awards For Two Big Leagues

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Annual awards were set up today for good sportsmanship in major league baseball, the first such awards in the game's history.

The Bowman Gum Company of Philadelphia announced the Jack Singer Awards, carrying a $1,500 war bond, would be presented to the player in each league voted to have been the most gentlemanly on the field during the year.

They will be given in honor of Jack Singer, International News Service correspondent who was killed during World War III. A panel of seven ranking sports writers and broadcasters will serve as judges.

In addition to the top award of $1,500, a $500 bond will be given the player on each other team in the majors chosen for his outstanding deportment.

Mrs. Dorsey Ensor Wins Fourth Flight

Mrs. Dorsey Ensor won the fourth flight in the women's spring handicap tournament at the Cumberland Country Club by defeating Mrs. Ralph R. Webster in the finals, 4 and 3.

Mrs. Lynn Lashley advanced to the finals of the third flight by defeating Mrs. C. A. Brotemarkle, 4 and 3.

In the first flight of the men's tournament, George Garlitz defeated John Topper, 2 and 1.

Tigers Collapse And Suffer 11-1 Loss To Yankees

Coleman, DiMaggio Wallop Home Runs

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—New York's Yankees took advantage of a sudden pitching and fielding collapse of the Detroit Tigers to belabor the Bengals, 11-1, today as southpaw Joe Ostrowski pitched his first complete game victory as a Yankee.

The Yankees made only nine hits to ten for their opponents. However, they included a three-run homer by Gerry Coleman, a two-run circuit clout by Joe DiMaggio and a base-clearing double by Phil Rizzuto. All the Tigers hits were singles.

The Tigers committed three errors, were guilty of two wild pitches and several mental lapses.

For instance, Mickey Mantle struck out twice yet reached base each time. Catcher Joe Ginsberg missed the third strike the first time. Pitcher Bob Cain threw wildly on the third strike the second time. Box:

Hyndman Tops Barton, 14-11 In Conference

Three Contests Today, AHS Host To LaSalle

Hyndman High School took over third place in the Bi-State Baseball Conference yesterday by winning a 14-11 slugfest from Barton High School at Hyndman.

Barton collected 16 hits, including five for extra bases. One of the blows was Arnold Tichnell's mighty home run which cleared the fence in left-center. The Barton pitcher-first sacker also belted a triple and single. Emory Wilson and Bailey of the visitors also got three hits each.

Clay Leydig paced Hyndman's 11-hit attack with a double and two singles.

Barton played erratic ball afield and was charged with nine miscues.

Buskirk was credited with the win, his fifth against four losses. It was Hyndman's 6th victory against five setbacks in the conference.

Three games are scheduled today. Beall's undefeated league leaders will play host to Central of Lonaconing, Bruce visits Fort Hill and LaSalle tests Allegany at Campobello. All games are scheduled for 4 o'clock.

Urzetta, Coe And Chapman Score In British Tourney

Reach Quarter Finals, Stranahan Is Beaten

BY BEN PHLEGAR

PORTHCAWL, Wales, May 24 (AP) — Sammy Urzetta, the "Wonder Kid" from Rochester, N. Y., and two other American Walker Cup stalwarts, Dick Chapman and Charlie Coe, battled their way through two gruelling rounds over the royal Porthcawl course today to reach the quarter-finals of the British amateur golf championship.

Four of their countrymen, including defending champion Frank Stranahan from Toledo, finally found the going too rough and bowed out. Stranahan, seeking his third British crown, was soundly beaten, 5 and 4, in the morning round by Joe Carr, of Ireland, a member of the British Walker Cup team.

Urzetta, the 25-year-old ex-caddy who won the American amateur crown last summer at Minneapolis, led the U. S. challenge into the round of eight with victories over Wilbur Muirhead of Scotland, 2 and 1, and Major D. A. Blair of Ireland, 2 up.

If the baby of the American cup team should reach and win the 36-hole final on Saturday it will mark the first time one player has held both the American and British amateur titles since Lawson Little swept both tournaments in 1934 and 1935.

Urzetta To Face Coe

By a cruel quirk of the draw, Urzetta must bang into his teammate, Coe, in tomorrow morning's quarter-final round. This meant that no more than two Americans possibly could reach the semi-final in the afternoon.

Coe, the lean Oklahoma City stylist won the American title in 1949, overcome W. A. Slark of England, 3 and 2, in today's morning round and then overwhelmed Jim McHale of Philadelphia, 4 and 3, with a burst of sub-par golf in the afternoon.

Chapman, who grabbed the U. S. crown at Winged Foot back in 1940 and has twice been runner-up for the British bauble, won through with victories over David Reid of Scotland, 4 and 3, and Laurence Rannels, also a Scot, 5 and 3.

His quarter-final opponent will be squadron leader C. H. Beamish of the Royal Air Force, an "unknown" who knocked off veteran Alex Kyle of the British Walker Cup team in today's fifth round, 4 and 3.

Bill Campbell Loses

In the lower bracket with Chapman and Beamish were Carr, the conqueror of Stranahan, and John DeBendern. Sharing the upper case with Coe and Urzetta were Albert Evans, a Welshman, and J. E. Gent of England.

Evans, a husky Welsh farmer attended to the two Americans today.

In the morning, for a warm-up, he defeated Francis (Bo) Winniger, the former Oklahoman now living at Pleasantville, N. J., on the 21st hole of a slambang match. Then in the afternoon, to prove it was no fluke, he disposed of Bill Campbell, the Walker Cupper from Huntington, W. Va., 4 and 2.

Campbell had won his morning tussle against Kenneth Frazier of England, 3 and 2. McHale, later to fall victim of Coe, scored over Keppel Enderby of Australia, 4 and 3, in the fourth round.

Ben Hogan Leads At Fort Worth

Texan Turns In 68 In Colonial Golf

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 24—(AP)—Fabulous Ben Hogan whipped par by two strokes today to lead the first round of the $15,000 Colonial National Invitation Tournament with a 68.

The National Open and Masters champion slashed over Colonial Country Clubs exacting 7035-yard par 35-35—70 with a 34-34.

Hogan was one stroke ahead of Bill Nary of Prairie View, Ill., Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and Toney Penna of Cincinnati.

Hogan, who lives in Fort Worth but registers out of Hershey, Pa., had one bad hole—No. 15. He chipped from 57 feet away and was seven feet from the pin. Then he two-putted to go one over on the hole.

But he had three birdies and used only 30 putts on the round.

A stroke back of Nary, Middlecoff and Penna was Tommy Bolt of Durham, N. C., with par 70 while tied at 71 were Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C.; E. J. Harrison of St. Andrews, Ill., Julius Boros, Mid Pines, N. C.; Byron Nelson of Roanoke, Tex., and Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., one of the tournament favorites.

Two other hot choices for first money in pre-tournament calculations—Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and Jim Ferrier of San Francisco—were well off the pace in the field of 42. Mangrum shot a 74 and Ferrier a 72.

Romney Plays Moorefield In Today's Game

Fiery's Blow Puts Wardensville Out; Pitchers Whiff 33

Martinsburg High School won its way into the finals of the West Virginia Region No. 4 baseball tournament at Moorefield yesterday by nosing out Wardensville High School of Hardy County in 16 innings, the longest game of the schoolboy season in the tri-state area. The score was 1-0.

The contest was billed as the opener of a doubleheader and after it lasted three hours and 45 minutes it was decided to postpone the other semi-final between Romney High's Pioneers and Moorefield's Yellow Jackets until today at 2 p. m., E.S.T. The championship game has been set back until Saturday at 2 p. m., E. S. T. The winner of the tourney will represent Region No. 4 in the state title tourney at Parkersburg.

Fiery's single scoring Ditlow from second base with the lone run of the thrilling contest. Ditlow opened the 16th with a single and after Allen struck out he pilfered second base. Stocker flied to centerfield. Then Fiery singled to left and Ditlow beat the throw to the plate.

Shobe and Stacker went all the way in yesterday's pitching duel. Martinsburg's Stocker fanned 19 and yielded seven hits while Shobe gave up eight safeties and whiffed 14.

Wardensville collected two hits in the 6th and two hits in the 11th and the only inning in which Martinsburg threatened in the 2nd and 7th frames but Shobe fanned the last two batsmen in each stanza to retire the side. A double play executed by Heishman, Merriman and Hulver also stopped the Berkeley Countians in the 11th. Wardensville loaded the bases in the 6th after two out but Hulver flied out to end the threat.

Martinsburg Cops 16-Inning Battle At Moorefield, 1-0

Cards, Optimists And Times-News Chalk Up Wins

Athletics, Rotary And Jaycees Lose

The Cardinals took the measure of the Athletics, 10 to 3 in the Little League, and the Times-News and Optimist Club were returned winners in Hot Stove League games played yesterday.

The Times-News nine downed the Rotary Club last night at Penn Avenue Field, 5-3, after the Cardinals had won the opening game on the tripleheader program.

Yesterday at Community Park, Manager Earl Nonnenmann's Optimists won over the Jaycees by the score of 7-6.

Tied For 1st Place

Times-News is now tied with the Lions for first place in the Hot Stove League (2-0) while the Cardinals are setting the pace in the Whiz Kids Division of the Little League with a 2-0 record.

Markley fired the third strike past 12 Athletics' batsmen as the Cardinals triumphed last night. Charlie Smith, A's relief pitcher, struck out 11 after supplanting Gerry Farrell in the first frame. Markley also led the winners at the plate with a double and two singles in three official trips. Smith, Farrell and Bob Page rapped two hits each for the A's who suffered their second straight setback. Bob Lewis tossed a 4-hitter and whiffed eight as the Optimists handed the Jaycees their second defeat in the Hot Stove loop. Lewis and Crawford shared four of the winners 11 hits.

Frank Page struck out an even dozen in the Times-News victory and let the Rotarians down with three hits, including a triple by Puffenburger. Murray, Rotary pitcher fanned nine and gave up six hits, one being a three-bagger by Bittner. George Crass, Times-News left fielder, contributed the fielding highlight when he threw out Bean at the plate in the 5th inning.

The Senators and Giants will play the opening game on tonight's program at 6:15 o'clock and the Hot Stove League game between Exchange and Kiwanis will start at 7:45. P. E. and C. & P. Telephone play in the third game at 9:15. Yesterday's results:

Allan Sheetz posted his fourth consecutive victory of the Rocking Chair Softball League season yesterday but the pace-setting F. O. Eagles were forced to play nine innings to win eighth consecutive game over the Outdoor Club at East Side Field. The score was 3-1.

Sheetz has yielded only four runs in as many games this season.

Al paved the way for the winning run in the second overtime frame when he singled, moved to second on Mulvey's hit and came home on "Doc" Summers' base wallop. Lou Riehl's outfield fly sent Mulvey over with the extra tally. Jones' double a Cubbage's single produced the O. D. C. tally in the 6th. Lou Riehl led the stickers with a pair of two-baggers.

The B. P. O. Elks smacked out 13 hits and handed the Knights of Columbus an 11-1 walloping at Campobello. Bill Underdonk tossed a 5-hitter to notch win No. 6 against two losses. Loibel suffered his 7th loss against a single victory. It was the 7th straight loss for the Knights.

Orndorff, Reel and Roy Whiteman shared six of the Elk's 13 blows.

The Moose wounded Gene Scaletta in the first inning and went on to beat the Amvets at Fort Hill by the score of 8-4.

Scaletta suffered an injured knee when struck by a line drive in the first inning and was supplanted by Al Delbrugge who finished on the mound. Lou Bell suffered a twisted knee, Suter Kegg was hit in the mouth by a lively ball and George Geatz was cracked on the head before the game got under way.

Harry Minnicks and "Fats" Weltman garnered three hits each for the winners. Bell and Daughtery had two safeties apiece for the Amvets. The scores:

Chisox Sweep Through East

Score 7th Straight Win Over A's, 5 To 2

PHILADELPHIA, May 24 (AP) — The Chicago White Sox did something today no other American League club from the Windy City has been able to accomplish in modern times when they completed an unbeaten eastern invasion with a 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

The triumph, featured by Eddie Robinson's seventh home run of the season, was the seventh home run of the season, was the seventh straight for Manager Paul Richards' boys. They whipped Boston twice, New York once, Washington three times and Philadelphia once in that order.

Veteran Randy Gumpert, picking up his second straight mound triumph, was touched for 11 hits but went the route. Meantime, the Sox thumped starter Joe Coleman and Carl Scheib for the same number of blows. Box:

Sportsmanship Awards For Two Big Leagues

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Annual awards were set up today for good sportsmanship in major league baseball, the first such awards in the game's history.

The Bowman Gum Company of Philadelphia announced the Jack Singer Awards, carrying a $1,500 war bond, would be presented to the player in each league voted to have been the most gentlemanly on the field during the year.

They will be given in honor of Jack Singer, International News Service correspondent who was killed during World War III. A panel of seven ranking sports writers and broadcasters will serve as judges.

In addition to the top award of $1,500, a $500 bond will be given the player on each other team in the majors chosen for his outstanding deportment.

Tigers Collapse And Suffer 11-1 Loss To Yankees

Coleman, DiMaggio Wallop Home Runs

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—New York's Yankees took advantage of a sudden pitching and fielding collapse of the Detroit Tigers to belabor the Bengals, 11-1, today as southpaw Joe Ostrowski pitched his first complete game victory as a Yankee.

The Yankees made only nine hits to ten for their opponents. However, they included a three-run homer by Gerry Coleman, a two-run circuit clout by Joe DiMaggio and a base-clearing double by Phil Rizzuto. All the Tigers hits were singles.

The Tigers committed three errors, were guilty of two wild pitches and several mental lapses.

For instance, Mickey Mantle struck out twice yet reached base each time. Catcher Joe Ginsberg missed the third strike the first time. Pitcher Bob Cain threw wildly on the third strike the second time. Box:

Hyndman Tops Barton, 14-11 In Conference

Three Contests Today, AHS Host To LaSalle

Hyndman High School took over third place in the Bi-State Baseball Conference yesterday by winning a 14-11 slugfest from Barton High School at Hyndman.

Barton collected 16 hits, including five for extra bases. One of the blows was Arnold Tichnell's mighty home run which cleared the fence in left-center. The Barton pitcher-first sacker also belted a triple and single. Emory Wilson and Bailey of the visitors also got three hits each.

Clay Leydig paced Hyndman's 11-hit attack with a double and two singles.

Barton played erratic ball afield and was charged with nine miscues.

Buskirk was credited with the win, his fifth against four losses. It was Hyndman's 6th victory against five setbacks in the conference.

Three games are scheduled today. Beall's undefeated league leaders will play host to Central of Lonaconing, Bruce visits Fort Hill and LaSalle tests Allegany at Campobello. All games are scheduled for 4 o'clock.

Blair Blanks Old Germans

Whiffs 14 Locals As Coney Wins, 9-0

Robert "Cocoa" Blair turned in a three-hit pitching performance and struck out 14 batsmen yesterday as Lonaconing blanked the Cumberland Old Germans in a Bi-State Baseball League game at Stitcher Field by the score of 9-0.

Singles by Cooper and Martin and Genevie's triple comprised the losers' hits.

'Coney nicked Johnny Martin for 11 safeties. Shuck was the "big gun" with four hits, Fazenbaker collected a pair and Don McKenzie larruped a three-bagger.

Urzetta, Coe And Chapman Score In British Tourney

Reach Quarter Finals, Stranahan Is Beaten

BY BEN PHLEGAR

PORTHCAWL, Wales, May 24 (AP) — Sammy Urzetta, the "Wonder Kid" from Rochester, N. Y., and two other American Walker Cup stalwarts, Dick Chapman and Charlie Coe, battled their way through two gruelling rounds over the royal Porthcawl course today to reach the quarter-finals of the British amateur golf championship.

Four of their countrymen, including defending champion Frank Stranahan from Toledo, finally found the going too rough and bowed out. Stranahan, seeking his third British crown, was soundly beaten, 5 and 4, in the morning round by Joe Carr, of Ireland, a member of the British Walker Cup team.

Urzetta, the 25-year-old ex-caddy who won the American amateur crown last summer at Minneapolis, led the U. S. challenge into the round of eight with victories over Wilbur Muirhead of Scotland, 2 and 1, and Major D. A. Blair of Ireland, 2 up.

If the baby of the American cup team should reach and win the 36-hole final on Saturday it will mark the first time one player has held both the American and British amateur titles since Lawson Little swept both tournaments in 1934 and 1935.

Urzetta To Face Coe

By a cruel quirk of the draw, Urzetta must bang into his teammate, Coe, in tomorrow morning's quarter-final round. This meant that no more than two Americans possibly could reach the semi-final in the afternoon.

Coe, the lean Oklahoma City stylist won the American title in 1949, overcome W. A. Slark of England, 3 and 2, in today's morning round and then overwhelmed Jim McHale of Philadelphia, 4 and 3, with a burst of sub-par golf in the afternoon.

Chapman, who grabbed the U. S. crown at Winged Foot back in 1940 and has twice been runner-up for the British bauble, won through with victories over David Reid of Scotland, 4 and 3, and Laurence Rannels, also a Scot, 5 and 3.

His quarter-final opponent will be squadron leader C. H. Beamish of the Royal Air Force, an "unknown" who knocked off veteran Alex Kyle of the British Walker Cup team in today's fifth round, 4 and 3.

Bill Campbell Loses

In the lower bracket with Chapman and Beamish were Carr, the conqueror of Stranahan, and John DeBendern. Sharing the upper case with Coe and Urzetta were Albert Evans, a Welshman, and J. E. Gent of England.

Evans, a husky Welsh farmer attended to the two Americans today.

In the morning, for a warm-up, he defeated Francis (Bo) Winniger, the former Oklahoman now living at Pleasantville, N. J., on the 21st hole of a slambang match. Then in the afternoon, to prove it was no fluke, he disposed of Bill Campbell, the Walker Cupper from Huntington, W. Va., 4 and 2.

Campbell had won his morning tussle against Kenneth Frazier of England, 3 and 2. McHale, later to fall victim of Coe, scored over Keppel Enderby of Australia, 4 and 3, in the fourth round.

Ben Hogan Leads At Fort Worth

Texan Turns In 68 In Colonial Golf

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 24—(AP)—Fabulous Ben Hogan whipped par by two strokes today to lead the first round of the $15,000 Colonial National Invitation Tournament with a 68.

The National Open and Masters champion slashed over Colonial Country Clubs exacting 7035-yard par 35-35—70 with a 34-34.

Hogan was one stroke ahead of Bill Nary of Prairie View, Ill., Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and Toney Penna of Cincinnati.

Hogan, who lives in Fort Worth but registers out of Hershey, Pa., had one bad hole—No. 15. He chipped from 57 feet away and was seven feet from the pin. Then he two-putted to go one over on the hole.

But he had three birdies and used only 30 putts on the round.

A stroke back of Nary, Middlecoff and Penna was Tommy Bolt of Durham, N. C., with par 70 while tied at 71 were Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C.; E. J. Harrison of St. Andrews, Ill., Julius Boros, Mid Pines, N. C.; Byron Nelson of Roanoke, Tex., and Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., one of the tournament favorites.

Two other hot choices for first money in pre-tournament calculations—Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and Jim Ferrier of San Francisco—were well off the pace in the field of 42. Mangrum shot a 74 and Ferrier a 72.

Romney Plays Moorefield In Today's Game

Fiery's Blow Puts Wardensville Out; Pitchers Whiff 33

Martinsburg High School won its way into the finals of the West Virginia Region No. 4 baseball tournament at Moorefield yesterday by nosing out Wardensville High School of Hardy County in 16 innings, the longest game of the schoolboy season in the tri-state area. The score was 1-0.

The contest was billed as the opener of a doubleheader and after it lasted three hours and 45 minutes it was decided to postpone the other semi-final between Romney High's Pioneers and Moorefield's Yellow Jackets until today at 2 p. m., E.S.T. The championship game has been set back until Saturday at 2 p. m., E. S. T. The winner of the tourney will represent Region No. 4 in the state title tourney at Parkersburg.

Fiery's single scoring Ditlow from second base with the lone run of the thrilling contest. Ditlow opened the 16th with a single and after Allen struck out he pilfered second base. Stocker flied to centerfield. Then Fiery singled to left and Ditlow beat the throw to the plate.

Shobe and Stacker went all the way in yesterday's pitching duel. Martinsburg's Stocker fanned 19 and yielded seven hits while Shobe gave up eight safeties and whiffed 14.

Wardensville collected two hits in the 6th and two hits in the 11th and the only inning in which Martinsburg threatened in the 2nd and 7th frames but Shobe fanned the last two batsmen in each stanza to retire the side. A double play executed by Heishman, Merriman and Hulver also stopped the Berkeley Countians in the 11th. Wardensville loaded the bases in the 6th, after two out but Hulver flied out to end the threat.

Lightweight Boxing Title At Stake In Garden Go Tonight

Ike Williams Is 3-1 Choice In Title Bout

Champion Is Favored Over Carter Tonight In 15-Round Route

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Although lightweight champion Ike Williams is going to have a tight squeeze making the 135 pound limit, the Trenton, N. J., negro ruled a big 3 to 1 favorite to defeat Jimmy Carter of the Bronx in their 15-round title bout in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

The 27-year old champion, making his first title defense in 17 months, started drying out today. He won't take any liquids until after he weighs in at noon tomorrow. Ike weighed 135¾ today and expects to hit the 135 marker right on the beam. He labored through 15 rounds of gymnastics to sweat off poundage.

If he doesn't make it at noon, he'll have until 1:30 to shed the surplus. If he can't make it, he'll forfeit his crown. The fight then will become a non-title affair and Carter will be recognized as the No. 1 challenger in New York.

The champion, sweating and straining to make 135 pounds for the first time since Dec. 5, 1949, has been mean and vicious in his workouts.

"It will probably be a tough fight for around seven or eight rounds," said Ike. "Then I hope to knock him out."

There has been more interest in Williams' battle with the scales than with the fight itself. There has been little betting and less enthusiasm at the ticket windows. The promoting International Boxing Club would be happy with a crowd of 7,500 and a gate of $25,000 at a $10 top.

The 15-rounder starts at 9 p. m. (EST) and will be broadcast and telecast nationally.

Carter, a mystery man in his home town, considers himself lucky to get the title shot and said "I may surprise."

The 27-year old negro won't make any prediction, however.

"This is my big opportunity," he said. "It may never come again. I think Ike can be beaten."

Indians Trounce Senators, Feller Twirls 2-Hitter

Tribe Gets 19 Hits, Score 16-0 Victory

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Cleveland hung a 16-0 defeat on Washington today, backing Bob Feller's two-hit pitching with a 19-hit attack.

It was Feller's fifth triumph against one loss.

Sid Hudson, Washington's leading pitcher last year with 14 wins, made his 1951 debut after being idle since April 1 with a back injury. He was knicked for 11 runs on as many hits in the first three innings.

The only Washington hits were delivered by Gil Coan in the first inning and Eddie Yost in the sixth. Both were singles.

Bobby Avila led Cleveland's attack with a double and three singles but it was a concerted assault which saw Larry Doby blast a homer and single, Ray Boone three singles, Al Rosen two doubles, Bob Kennedy a pair of triples and Jim Hegan a triple, double and single. Box:

SPORTS SPUTTERINGS

By WALTER L. JOHNS

SPEED is really king this year as the 35th edition of the Indianapolis 500-mile race nears production stage.

All records for whizzing around the 2½-mile Speedway are expected to be broken as the hopefuls wind up qualifying for the 33 places in the race.

Already the speed generated by these daredevils of the wheels has cracked all existing marks, and, given good weather and a dry racing strip, the all-time 500-mile marks should be blistered off the boards.

* * * *

THE CARS and the drivers have come a long way since the first Indianapolis race, in 1911, when Ray Harroun, driving a Marmon, negotiated the distance in a six-cylinder car at the breakneck speed of 74.59 miles per hour.

As a comparison, Walt Faulkner, the Long Beach, Cal., driver, qualified for this year's race by buzzing the 10-mile grind in 136.872 miles per hour.

And, the record for the 500-mile distance, set in 1949 by Bill Holland, is 121.327 miles per hour. Last year Johnny Parsons turned in a mark of 124.002 miles per hour, but the race was cut short to 345 miles because of rain.

* * * *

IMPROVEMENTS in racing cars, in the strip and fuel have brought about new speed marks.

But there are many factors which determine the final marks and the weather is No. 1.

Others are accidents, fatigue, pit stops and pressure.

The records show, however, that, with few exceptions, faster speeds are attained each year.

In the last five races, the record has been smashed each year. Even in the early days of the 500, the time was lowered year after year.

This year, the pace in the early qualifying has been so fast that even the leading drivers with the tops cars have had to zip it up to make the lists.

The first 26 drivers to qualify did so at an average speed of 133.646 miles per hour. That compares with the former record of 131.033 miles per hour.

* * * *

THE END is not in sight. This modern age of jet propulsion and atomic developments undoubtedly will have an effect on future racing cars.

Giants Call Up Mays, Minor League Belter

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—The New York Giants today called up Willie Mays, hard-hitting young negro outfielder, from Minneapolis of the American Association and announced he'd be in centerfield against Philadelphia tomorrow night.

At the same time the Giants optioned Artie Wilson, negro infielder, to Ottawa of the International League.

In 35 games with Minneapolis, Mays is hitting .477. He has banged out 29 extra base hits, including eight home runs. Famed for his speed, he has stolen eight bases.

The 170-pounder, who throws and bats righthanded, was signed by the Giants last spring after he finished high school at Fairfield, Ala., near Birmingham. He is 20 years old.

Sleeping cars were introduced on American railroads in 1837.

Lightweight Boxing Title At Stake In Garden Go Tonight

Ike Williams Is 3-1 Choice In Title Bout

Champion Is Favored Over Carter Tonight In 15-Round Route

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Although lightweight champion Ike Williams is going to have a tight squeeze making the 135 pound limit, the Trenton, N. J., negro ruled a big 3 to 1 favorite to defeat Jimmy Carter of the Bronx in their 15-round title bout in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

The 27-year old champion, making his first title defense in 17 months, started drying out today. He won't take any liquids until after he weighs in at noon tomorrow. Ike weighed 135¾ today and expects to hit the 135 marker right on the beam. He labored through 15 rounds of gymnastics to sweat off poundage.

If he doesn't make it at noon, he'll have until 1:30 to shed the surplus. If he can't make it, he'll forfeit his crown. The fight then will become a non-title affair and Carter will be recognized as the No. 1 challenger in New York.

The champion, sweating and straining to make 135 pounds for the first time since Dec. 5, 1949, has been mean and vicious in his workouts.

"It will probably be a tough fight for around seven or eight rounds," said Ike. "Then I hope to knock him out."

There has been more interest in Williams' battle with the scales than with the fight itself. There has been little betting and less enthusiasm at the ticket windows. The promoting International Boxing Club would be happy with a crowd of 7,500 and a gate of $25,000 at a $10 top.

The 15-rounder starts at 9 p. m. (EST) and will be broadcast and telecast nationally.

Carter, a mystery man in his home town, considers himself lucky to get the title shot and said "I may surprise."

The 27-year old negro won't make any prediction, however.

"This is my big opportunity," he said. "It may never come again. I think Ike can be beaten."

Indians Trounce Senators, Feller Twirls 2-Hitter

Tribe Gets 19 Hits, Score 16-0 Victory

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Cleveland hung a 16-0 defeat on Washington today, backing Bob Feller's two-hit pitching with a 19-hit attack.

It was Feller's fifth triumph against one loss.

Sid Hudson, Washington's leading pitcher last year with 14 wins, made his 1951 debut after being idle since April 1 with a back injury. He was knicked for 11 runs on as many hits in the first three innings.

The only Washington hits were delivered by Gil Coan in the first inning and Eddie Yost in the sixth. Both were singles.

Bobby Avila led Cleveland's attack with a double and three singles but it was a concerted assault which saw Larry Doby blast a homer and single, Ray Boone three singles, Al Rosen two doubles, Bob Kennedy a pair of triples and Jim Hegan a triple, double and single. Box:

SPEED is really king this year as the 35th edition of the Indianapolis 500-mile race nears production stage.

All records for whizzing around the 2½-mile Speedway are expected to be broken as the hopefuls wind up qualifying for the 33 places in the race.

Already the speed generated by these daredevils of the wheels has cracked all existing marks, and, given good weather and a dry racing strip, the all-time 500-mile marks should be blistered off the boards.

* * * *

THE CARS and the drivers have come a long way since the first Indianapolis race, in 1911, when Ray Harroun, driving a Marmon, negotiated the distance in a six-cylinder car at the breakneck speed of 74.59 miles per hour.

As a comparison, Walt Faulkner, the Long Beach, Cal., driver, qualified for this year's race by buzzing the 10-mile grind in 136.872 miles per hour.

And, the record for the 500-mile distance, set in 1949 by Bill Holland, is 121.327 miles per hour. Last year Johnny Parsons turned in a mark of 124.002 miles per hour, but the race was cut short to 345 miles because of rain.

* * * *

IMPROVEMENTS in racing cars, in the strip and fuel have brought about new speed marks.

But there are many factors which determine the final marks and the weather is No. 1.

Others are accidents, fatigue, pit stops and pressure.

The records show, however, that, with few exceptions, faster speeds are attained each year.

In the last five races, the record has been smashed each year. Even in the early days of the 500, the time was lowered year after year.

This year, the pace in the early qualifying has been so fast that even the leading drivers with the tops cars have had to zip it up to make the lists.

The first 26 drivers to qualify did so at an average speed of 133.646 miles per hour. That compares with the former record of 131.033 miles per hour.

THE END is not in sight. This modern age of jet propulsion and atomic developments undoubtedly will have an effect on future racing cars.

Giants Call Up Mays, Minor League Belter

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—The New York Giants today called up Willie Mays, hard-hitting young negro outfielder, from Minneapolis of the American Association and announced he'd be in centerfield against Philadelphia tomorrow night.

At the same time the Giants optioned Artie Wilson, negro infielder, to Ottawa of the International League.

In 35 games with Minneapolis, Mays is hitting .477. He has banged out 29 extra base hits, including eight home runs. Famed for his speed, he has stolen eight bases.

The 170-pounder, who throws and bats righthanded, was signed by the Giants last spring after he finished high school at Fairfield, Ala., near Birmingham. He is 20 years old.

Sleeping cars were introduced on American railroads in 1837.

Eight Bout Card Completed For Monday Amateur Fights

Mann To Seek 17th Victory In Semi-Final

Stott, Walker, Dawson And Blocher Appear In Preliminary Bouts

Eight bouts, topped by the five-rounder between Norvel Lee, Washington, D. C., two-times National AAU heavyweight champion, and Al Schlimm, 205-pound Baltimorean, will make up the card for Monday's amateur boxing show of the Liberty A. C.-National Guard at the State Armory.

Matchmaker Albert "Bobby" Greene announces that novices will appear in six of the seven preliminary matches scheduled for three rounds each.

The semi-final will bring together Bill Mann, only local "veteran" on the card, and Maurice Johnson, Washington, D. C. middleweight.

Mann started boxing here November 11, 1946 and in 4½ years of scrapping he has won 17 of 25 matches. Last year he copped four out of five, whipping John Land and Morris Rackey, Washington, D. C., Paul Simmons and Frankie Taranto, of Johnstown, and lost on a TKO to Joe Martino, Johnstown, when he suffered a hand injury and was forced to quit.

Lineup Of Prelims

The lineup of other three rounders is as follows:

John Land, Howard University, Washington, D. C., vs. Ray Stott, Frostburg, 150 pounds.

Bob Ware, United States Navy, vs. Willie Wilson, Baltimore, 135 pounds.

Jerry Sitch, Baltimore, vs. Jack Miller, Cumberland, 135 pounds.

Don Smith, Washington, D. C., vs. Gary Dawson, Cumberland, 135 pounds.

Richard Mundell, Washington, D. C., vs. Bob Walker, Cumberland, 145 pounds.

Coleman Adams, Baltimore, vs. Joe Blocher, Cumberland, 110 pounds.

hting since December, 1947, lost eight straight bouts be- licking Jim Hazlett, Johnstown, here last September. Mann decisioned Land in the last amateur show held here on November 13, 1950.

Dawson won one of three matches, while Bob Walker defeated Dick Dickson, Pittsburgh, and Blocher outpointed Earl Dippery, Lewistown, Pa., in November.

Ware, Wilson, Sitch, Miller, Smith, Mundell and Adams are newcomers to local boxing shows.

First Show 6½ Months

Monday's amateur program is the first one here in 6½ months and is expected to attract a good-sized crowd.

The doors open at 7 p. m., and the curtain raiser is billed for 8:30.

Zihlman Downs Klondyke, 8-2

Zihlman defeated the Klondyke Colts in a Pen-Mar Baseball League game yesterday by the score of 8-2 at Zihlman.

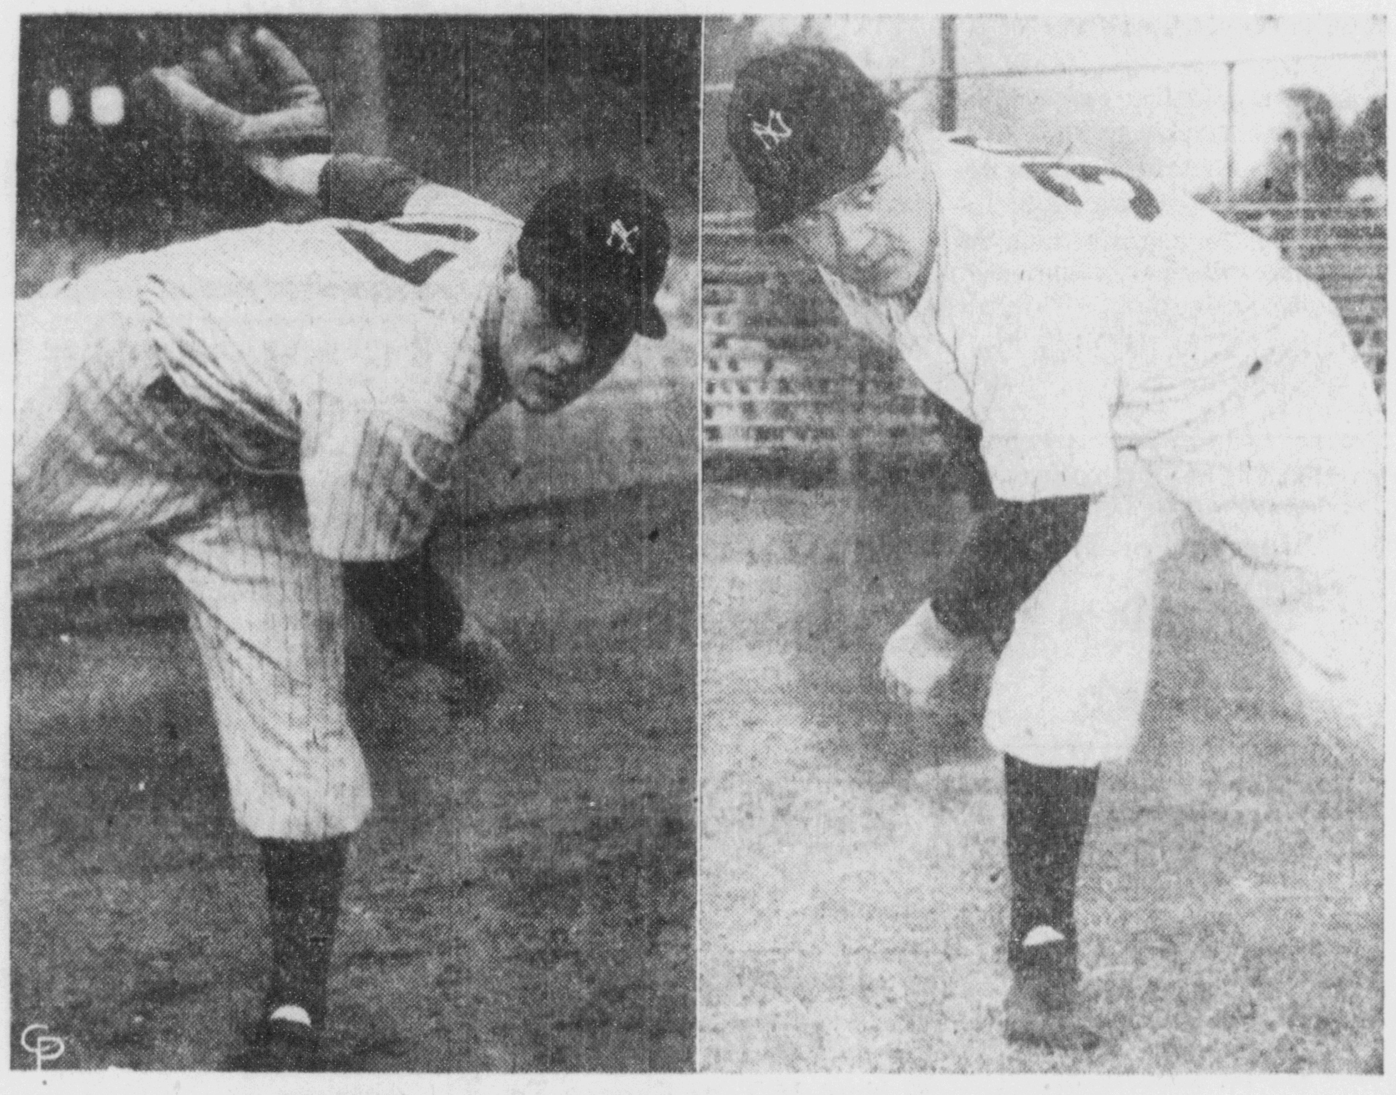
The winners banged 15 hits with George Thomas showing the way with four for four, all singles, while Robertson, Matese and Robeson larruped two safeties each. Junior Buskirk led Klondyke's 13-hit attack with a triple and double.

Leo Brady's running, one-handed catch of a long fly to right field was the fielding highlight. The score:

Klondyke	000 000 200—2	13	2
Zihlman	101 020 22x—8	15	0

Owens, Johnson (7) and Burner. Downton, Keister (8) and Thomas.
Winner—Downton. Loser—Owens.

7 PLUS 7 EQUALS 14 VICTORIES FOR THE YANKEES



Vic Raschi

Ed Lopat

FAR OUT IN FRONT of the pitching parade thus far this season, the Yankee's double-barreled slab threat of Vic Raschi, righthander, and Ed Lopat, lefthander, already has compiled 14 victories, seven apiece. Raschi has lost one, but Lopat won seven in a row without a loss. (International)

QUESTIONS

1—Three men have won the American Automobile Association's recognition as racing champion three years each. Name them.

2—What is the record for the longest winning streak by a big league baseball team? (Hint—it's a National league team that did it.)

3—Got that one? O.K.—what's the American league record for the longest winning streak and what team set it?

HOOHEE?

HE was born Joseph Loscatzo in 1909. After being recognized as flyweight champion in 1930 he fought a draw with Frankie Genaro, NBA champion. He was defeated by Small Montana in 1935, losing the U. S. flyweight crown. What was his ring name?

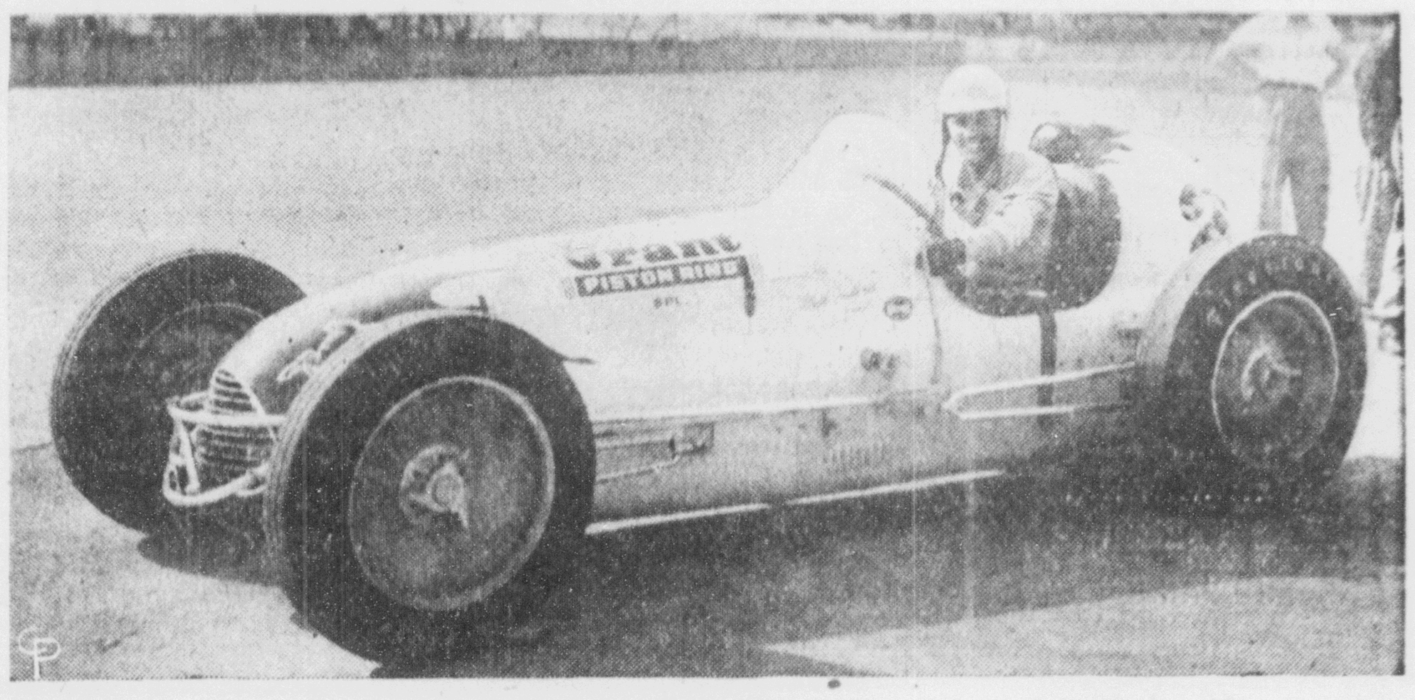
CLIPS TWO RECORDS IN 500-MILE RACE QUALIFIER



PICTURED after his qualifying run at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, Walt Faulkner, 5-foot, 4-inch racing star from Long Beach, Cal., set two new records in gaining a spot in the Memorial Day race. Faulkner, driving a Agajanian Grant Piston Ring Special, averaged 136.872 miles per hour to qualify and his one-lap mark of 138.122 miles per hour also was a new record. (International)

Kyle Rote, the ex-Southern Methodist football star, was voted the most valuable high school player in Texas in 1946.

The largest opening day crowd in major league history was 73,163 at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium on April 20, 1948.

Nineteen games were played in the Stanley Cup hockey playoffs of 1950. Six of these games were decided in overtime sessions.

Eight Bout Card Completed For Monday Amateur Fights

Mann To Seek 17th Victory In Semi-Final

Stott, Walker, Dawson And Blocher Appear In Preliminary Bouts

Eight bouts, topped by the five-rounder between Norvel Lee, Washington, D. C., two-times National AAU heavyweight champion, and Al Schlimm, 205-pound Baltimorean, will make up the card for Monday's amateur boxing show of the Liberty A. C.-National Guard at the State Armory.

Matchmaker Albert "Bobby" Greene announces that novices will appear in six of the seven preliminary matches scheduled for three rounds each.

The semi-final will bring together Bill Mann, only local "veteran" on the card, and Maurice Johnson, Washington, D. C. middleweight.

Mann started boxing here November 11, 1946 and in 4½ years of scrapping he has won 17 of 25 matches. Last year he copped four out of five, whipping John Land and Morris Rackey, Washington, D. C., Paul Simmons and Frankie Taranto, of Johnstown, and lost on a TKO to Joe Martino, Johnstown, when he suffered a hand injury and was forced to quit.

Lineup Of Prelims

The lineup of other three rounders is as follows:

John Land, Howard University, Washington, D. C., vs. Ray Stott, Frostburg, 150 pounds.

Bob Ware, United States Navy, vs. Willie Wilson, Baltimore, 135 pounds.

Jerry Sitch, Baltimore, vs. Jack Miller, Cumberland, 135 pounds.

Don Smith, Washington, D. C., vs. Gary Dawson, Cumberland, 135 pounds.

Richard Mundell, Washington, D. C., vs. Bob Walker, Cumberland, 145 pounds.

Coleman Adams, Baltimore, vs. Joe Blocher, Cumberland, 110 pounds.

hting since December, 1947, lost eight straight bouts be- licking Jim Hazlett, Johnstown, here last September. Mann decisioned Land in the last amateur show held here on November 13, 1950.

Dawson won one of three matches, while Bob Walker defeated Dick Dickson, Pittsburgh, and Blocher outpointed Earl Dippery, Lewistown, Pa., in November.

Ware, Wilson, Sitch, Miller, Smith, Mundell and Adams are newcomers to local boxing shows.

First Show 6½ Months

Monday's amateur program is the first one here in 6½ months and is expected to attract a good-sized crowd.

The doors open at 7 p. m., and the curtain raiser is billed for 8:30.

Zihlman Downs Klondyke, 8-2

Zihlman defeated the Klondyke Colts in a Pen-Mar Baseball League game yesterday by the score of 8-2 at Zihlman.

The winners banged 15 hits with George Thomas showing the way with four for four, all singles, while Robertson, Matese and Robeson larruped two safeties each. Junior Buskirk led Klondyke's 13-hit attack with a triple and double.

Leo Brady's running, one-handed catch of a long fly to right field was the fielding highlight. The score:

Klondyke	000	000	200—2	13	2
Zihlman	101	020	22x—8	15	0

Owens, Johnson (7) and Burner. Downton, Keister (8) and Thomas.
Winner—Downton. Loser—Owens.

7 PLUS 7 EQUALS 14 VICTORIES FOR THE YANKEES

Vic Raschi   Ed Lopat

FAR OUT IN FRONT of the pitching parade thus far this season, the Yankee's double-barreled slab threat of Vic Raschi, righthander, and Ed Lopat, lefthander, already has compiled 14 victories, seven apiece. Raschi has lost one, but Lopat won seven in a row without a loss. (International)

QUESTIONS

1—Three men have won the American Automobile Association's recognition as racing champion three years each. Name them.

2—What is the record for the longest winning streak by a big league baseball team? (Hint—it's a National league team that did it.)

3—Got that one? O.K.—what's the American league record for the longest winning streak and what team set it?

HOOHEE?

HE was born Joseph Loscatzo in 1909. After being recognized as flyweight champion in 1930 he fought a draw with Frankie Genaro, NBA champion. He was defeated by Small Montana in 1935, losing the U. S. flyweight crown. What was his ring name?

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD
By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, May 24. (INS)—I am not checking this story because I konw it's true—that Fredric March is slated to play the Lee Cobb role in "Death Of A Salesman" for Stanley Kramer. The deal I hear is all wrapped up, signed, sealed and delivered.

Fredric March

This will be one of Kramer's first films on his Columbia picture program, and he really has an imposing cast. Mildred Dunnock, who played the wife on the stage, and Cameron Mitchell, who was one of the sons, will play their same roles in the picture.

Seems to me I remember — and correct me if I'm wrong — that originally Fredric March turned down "Death Of A Salesman" on Broadway and then regretted it after it became such a smash hit.

• — • — •

Paulette Goddard is due in Rome in October to co-star with a European actor yet to be selected, for the first of a series on Boccaccio's "Decameron." Paulette made this deal with Mike Frankovicth to film "Loves Of Boccaccio," one of the famous episodes, while she and Mike were in the east.

In the production of this classic, Mike will have the assistance of Dr. William Szekely and Renzo Rossellini, brother of Ingrid Bergman's Rossellini, for the music, taken from the opera "Boccaccio."

• — • — •

The extraordinary story of Mal Boyd will be filmed by Ida Lupino and Collier Young. Mal, a successful Hollywood press agent and TV producer of Buddy Rogers' show, out of the blue gave up his career to become an Episcopalian minister.

Ida and Collier, who have had luck making films from "true to life" situations, have asked Mal to write his own story. Mal achieved what most young men consider success in Hollywood—a big salary, car, home with a swimming pool, working with celebrated people.

But, somewhere along the line he found that the material things in life are not the real secret of happiness and right at the height of his success he turned to the spiritual values.

• — • — •

Chit chat:

Johnny Johnson telephoned me from New York that he is not asking Kathryn Grayson for any community property.

"All I want," said Johnny, "is my car. Some of my money went into the house, but I am not even asking for that. Kathryn can have the divorce without any strings just as soon as she turns over my car."

Well, that seems reasonable. As for Kathryn, she hasn't said anything. She has been so busy working I don't think she has had time. Johnny is a great success in "A Tree Grows In Brooklyn" on Broadway, and his whole attitude seems changed. That's the wonderful thing about success.

• — • — •

The very first independent production ever to be released on the Warner Brothers program is Abbott and Costello's "Jack And The Beanstalk."

When Bud and Lou outlined the story to Jack Warner he thought it was so good that he plans to release it next Easter, because he believes it will be a great thing for children, as well as grownups.

This glorified fairy tale, with emphasis on the comedy, is to be made by Abbott and Costello's Cosman Productions, their own company.

Saw Spike Jones, who is one the anxious seat of expectant fathers. His attractive wife expects her second baby any day.

Bruce Cabot, back in town, telephoned me to say he is sorry his marriage to Francesca De Scaffa hadn't worked out. He says he hasn't made a nickel since they were married, so he doesn't know what they are going to do about community property because there ain't none. Meanwhile, he is the house guest of Pat De Cicco.

"The Great Caruso" is the highest MGM grosser since "The Great Ziegfeld," and is making pretty music at the box office at New York's Music Hall Theatre.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Les Aventures de Ken Maynard

PARIS—

It is a very tiny, though typical, liar, La Valiere, at 3 Buede Buci in the Latin Quarter and the barman would like to think that it is the only bar in Paris with a television set. But it isn't. There are a few others in Montmartre, though you'd have to look pretty hard to find them.

John Crosby

Still, a television set in a bar, so common in America, is so rare in Paris that La Voliere is a curiosity indeed. It is an inexpensive spot, frequented by Frenchmen with very little money in their pockets and, with a little stretching, a man at one end of the bar could shake hands with one at the other end. When we arrived, it was fairly crowded, which means perhaps 12 customers.

Television in France goes on at 9 p. m. till about 11. Just before 9, there was a stir of expectancy. But not for the television. The hour of 9 is the hour for dinner. Roughly half the customers arose, paid their checks and departed just two minutes before the set was turned on. We debated a moment as to whether it was the stomach or the prospect of television which drove these people away and decided it was a bit of both. The French patronize a bar only partly for drink, chiefly for conversation. Television is an intrusion and it is my guess that it will never become a part of French saloon life.

Finally, there arrives on the screen a picture, a 12 inch picture no better, I should say, and no worse than our own. It is a girl reading the program for the week, a tedious operation, even though she is a very pretty girl indeed. Before her there reposes a cat who sums up the French indifference to television. He flatly refuses to look at the camera. The reading of the program finally bores him so greatly that he rises haughtily, stretches and departs—just like the customers.

By this time there are, besides ourselves, only five patrons—three of them engrossed in television, two of them, a man and a woman, engrossed in each other. Comes the news, Journal Televise, a filmed operation. President Auriol presenting the Legion of Honor to war veterans and kissing each one heartily. French sports planes. A basketball game, of all things, an honest one, I am told.

Then there arrives what I had come all the way to France to see —"Les Aventures de Ken Maynard." A bit of wild gunplay and the William Tell overture which sound no different in French than in English. The dialogue is something else again. Will the diligence (the stagecoach) be held up or will it not?

• — • — •

"J'ai eu une idee facheuse," declares Mr. Maynard in typical western dialect. "Je te la confiera—en secret. Allons rechercher les gars." Mr. M. has had a wild idea. He wants to roundup les gars, which is roughly translatable as the boys, the fellows, the gang.

His idea, it later develops, is simple et mathematique, namely that the chef de la bande, the head bandit, is working hand in glove with le banquier. Mr. Maynard's companion is suitably astonished. "Tu veux dire le banquier est le voleur?" he exclaims. "C'est difficile a imaginer."

The whole thing, as matter of fact, is pretty difficult to imagine. The French language, expressive as it is, is not at all adaptable to the chaps, the smoking guns and the general appearance of our western and especially of Ken Maynard. Any moment I expected Arthur Godfrey to appear and start spouting en Francaise.

The French, however, don't know the difference. They have always eaten up our westerns—in print, in films, and now on television. I don't know whether Hopalong has arrived here yet but he'll be very popular. The audience had now dwindled to four but all four were enthralled with Monsieur Maynard. I was not. It was as if I'd never left home.

"The Authority on Authorities"

ACT AS IF YOU KNEW IT

YOUR only chance to make the contract may depend upon a particular key card being in the hand of a particular defender. When that is the case, the rubber player with a game at stake has no alternative. He must act exactly as if he knew the vital card is exactly where he has to find it. Failure to do that involves giving up his chance for the game.

Bidding like South's on that minimum hand is justified in rubber bridge when you consider your opponents no better players of the cards than your own side. That deal would have been a pass-out, losing a game for North and South if the latter had not seen fit to do as he did. Later on he had to act as if he knew something which he did not know at all, simply because doing so constituted his sole hope of success.

East took the heart 4 lead with the K and returned the 9 to the A, the 2 then being won by the Q. Knowing West now had two established hearts, South saw that he couldn't let that worthy regain the lead. If West had the diamond A, he could not be shut out. So South had to proceed as if he knew East held that card. To minimize West's chance of getting the lead with a club, he led the 10 and sent it through to the J after West played low.

Striving desperately to give West the lead, East underled the diamond A with the 5. South came in with the K accompanied by his prayer that East held the A. Next came the club A and a return to his hand with the spade A. As he laid down the club K now, he hoped both defenders would have to follow suit. When they did, his game was sure. He cashed two more clubs and the dummy's spades to have ten tricks, one over game.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Les Aventures de Ken Maynard

PARIS—

It is a very tiny, though typical, liar, La Valiere, at 3 Buede Buci in the Latin Quarter and the barman would like to think that it is the only bar in Paris with a television set. But it isn't. There are a few others in Montmartre, though you'd have to look pretty hard to find them.

John Crosby

Still, a television set in a bar, so common in America, is so rare in Paris that La Voliere is a curiosity indeed. It is an inexpensive spot, frequented by Frenchmen with very little money in their pockets and, with a little stretching, a man at one end of the bar could shake hands with one at the other end. When we arrived, it was fairly crowded, which means perhaps 12 customers.

Television in France goes on at 9 p. m. till about 11. Just before 9, there was a stir of expectancy. But not for the television. The hour of 9 is the hour for dinner. Roughly half the customers arose, paid their checks and departed just two minutes before the set was turned on. We debated a moment as to whether it was the stomach or the prospect of television which drove these people away and decided it was a bit of both. The French patronize a bar only partly for drink, chiefly for conversation. Television is an intrusion and it is my guess that it will never become a part of French saloon life.

Finally, there arrives on the screen a picture, a 12 inch picture no better, I should say, and no worse than our own. It is a girl reading the program for the week, a tedious operation, even though she is a very pretty girl indeed. Before her there reposes a cat who sums up the French indifference to television. He flatly refuses to look at the camera. The reading of the program finally bores him so greatly that he rises haughtily, stretches and departs—just like the customers.

By this time there are, besides ourselves, only five patrons—three of them engrossed in television, two of them, a man and a woman, engrossed in each other. Comes the news, Journal Televise, a filmed operation. President Auriol presenting the Legion of Honor to war veterans and kissing each one heartily. French sports planes. A basketball game, of all things, an honest one, I am told.

Then there arrives what I had come all the way to France to see —"Les Aventures de Ken Maynard." A bit of wild gunplay and the William Tell overture which sound no different in French than in English. The dialogue is something else again. Will the diligence (the stagecoach) be held up or will it not?

• — • — •

"J'ai eu une idee facheuse," declares Mr. Maynard in typical western dialect. "Je te la confiera—en secret. Allons rechercher les gars." Mr. M. has had a wild idea. He wants to roundup les gars, which is roughly translatable as the boys, the fellows, the gang.

His idea, it later develops, is simple et mathematique, namely that the chef de la bande, the head bandit, is working hand in glove with le banquier. Mr. Maynard's companion is suitably astonished. "Tu veux dire le banquier est le voleur?" he exclaims. "C'est difficile a imaginer."

The whole thing, as matter of fact, is pretty difficult to imagine. The French language, expressive as it is, is not at all adaptable to the chaps, the smoking guns and the general appearance of our western and especially of Ken Maynard. Any moment I expected Arthur Godfrey to appear and start spouting en Francaise.

The French, however, don't know the difference. They have always eaten up our westerns—in print, in films, and now on television. I don't know whether Hopalong has arrived here yet but he'll be very popular. The audience had now dwindled to four but all four were enthralled with Monsieur Maynard. I was not. It was as if I'd never left home.

"The Authority on Authorities"

ACT AS IF YOU KNEW IT

YOUR only chance to make the contract may depend upon a particular key card being in the hand of a particular defender. When that is the case, the rubber player with a game at stake has no alternative. He must act exactly as if he knew the vital card is exactly where he has to find it. Failure to do that involves giving up his chance for the game.

Pass	3 NT

Bidding like South's on that minimum hand is justified in rubber bridge when you consider your opponents no better players of the cards than your own side. That deal would have been a pass-out, losing a game for North and South if the latter had not seen fit to do as he did. Later on he had to act as if he knew something which he did not know at all, simply because doing so constituted his sole hope of success.

East took the heart 4 lead with the K and returned the 9 to the A, the 2 then being won by the Q. Knowing West now had two established hearts, South saw that he couldn't let that worthy regain the lead. If West had the diamond A, he could not be shut out. So South had to proceed as if he knew East held that card. To minimize West's chance of getting the lead with a club, he led the 10 and sent it through to the J after West played low.

Striving desperately to give West the lead, East underled the diamond A with the 5. South came in with the K accompanied by his prayer that East held the A. Next came the club A and a return to his hand with the spade A. As he laid down the club K now, he hoped both defenders would have to follow suit. When they did, his game was sure. He cashed two more clubs and the dummy's spades to have ten tricks, one over game.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

CKKN, CKKN—MVKYK BKHKY LUYK PY NUWB, OVUAA YKULV VKY WBBPLKBJ VKUYJ UXUWB—QPPYK

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: NATURE PAINTS THE BEST PART OF THE PICTURE, CARVES THE BEST PART OF THE STATUE—EMERSON.

Cards of Thanks

We are taking this means to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness during the death and bereavement of Harry D. Berry of Barton, Md.

We also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes and donated the use of their automobiles for the funeral.

The Family of the late Harry D. Berry.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Harry Vernall, who died May 25, 1950.

Some may think we have forgotten,
When, at times they see us smile;
But they do not know the heartaches
We suffer all the while
They say time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget
But time, so far, has only proved
How much we miss you yet.
The world may change from year to year;
Our lives from day to day;
But still the memory of you,
Shall never pass away.
Loving Wife, Sons & Grandchildren.

Cards of Thanks

We are taking this means to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness during the death and bereavement of Harry D. Berry of Barton, Md.

We also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes and donated the use of their automobiles for the funeral.

The Family of the late Harry D. Berry.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Harry Vernall, who died May 25, 1950.

Some may think we have forgotten,
When, at times they see us smile;
But they do not know the heartaches
We suffer all the while
They say time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget
But time, so far, has only proved
How much we miss you yet.
The world may change from year to year;
Our lives from day to day;
But still the memory of you,
Shall never pass away.
Loving Wife, Sons & Grandchildren.

Market Rebounds After Big Selling Drive Drops Prices

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—A terrific selling drive today knocked stock market prices down sharply, but strong buying support sparked a late recovery that regained a major portion of the loss.

At the worst part of the fall leaders were down as much as $6 a share with losses bunched in the $1-$3 range.

But at the close the minus signs seldom went to as much as $2 among leaders, and gains in a few major divisions were more than $2.

Rails, steels, motors, chemicals, oils, and rubbers were among the hardest hit sections, and it was in this broad alignment of issues that the recovery found staunch support.

Radio-television as a group and merchandising stocks displayed the most notable resistance to selling, and in the end stood well ahead of the remainder of the list.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 50 cents at $90.60 with the industrial component off 50 cents, rails off 40 cents (again at a new low for the year), and utilities off 30 cents.

Trading totaled 2,580,000 shares, the heaviest since Feb. 5. Yesterday the total came to only 1,540,000 shares.

A long list of 1,211 individual issues was drawn into the market, among the broadest lists of the year. The record stands at 1,260 issues traded June 27, 1950, at the beginning of the Korean war.

An exceedingly large number of new lows were touched on the fall—213—and only two new highs for the year were reached.

New York Central jumped rapidly between a gain and a loss through most of the day and closed up ⅛ at 17⅞, the most active issue in the list with sales of 48,200 shares.

Following were General Motors off ⅝ at 48, Baltimore & Ohio off ⅛ at 19⅛, U. S. Steel off ¾ at 40⅝, International Telephone up 1 at 15⅜, and Radio Corp. up ⅝ at 19⅛.

Some issues fell into the decline and didn't come out on the rebound. Among them were Carpenter Steel off 2¼ at 50½, Newmont Mining 2½ at 101, Cotton Belt Railroad 15 at 290, Rohm & Haas 6½ at 123½, and Railroad Securities 6 at 55.

ORDER NISI

Alberta M. Llewellyn, adm., etc. vs. Alberta M. Llewellyn, et vir., No. 22,175 Equity, in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDERED this 23rd day of May, 1951, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, sitting in Equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by William J. Gunter, Trustee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 25th day of June, 1951, provided a copy of this Order be published in some newspaper published in Allegany County once a week for three successive weeks before the 18th day of June, 1951.

The report states the amount of sale to be Three Thousand One Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($3,150.00).

JOSEPH E. BODEN, Clerk.

NOTICE TO PAVING CONTRACTORS

Sealed Proposals addressed to the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, and endorsed, "Proposal for Surfacing Roads in Constitution Park" will be received at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Cumberland, Maryland, on or before twevle o'clock noon, E.D.S.T., June 4, 1951, on which date they will be publicly opened and read.

The work consists of the resurfacing of certain roads in Constitution Park with black top paving material, said surface to be one inch thick after compression, together with the necessary tack coat. The bidder is asked to submit separate proposals as follows:

Resurfacing approximately 2,335 square yards—approximately 130 tons, 1" thick after compression, plus necessary tack coat.

Resurfacing approximately 2,950 square yards—approximately 164 tons, 1" thick after compression, plus necessary tack coat.

Each Proposal must be accompanied by a certified check drawn to the order of the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, in the sum of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars, which check will be forfeited as liquidated damages in case an award is made and the contract is not promptly and properly executed. The checks of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned after the contract is awarded.

The Mayor and City Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids, or to award all or any part of this work.

Market Rebounds After Big Selling Drive Drops Prices

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—A terrific selling drive today knocked stock market prices down sharply, but strong buying support sparked a late recovery that regained a major portion of the loss.

At the worst part of the fall leaders were down as much as $6 a share with losses bunched in the $1-$3 range.

But at the close the minus signs seldom went to as much as $2 among leaders, and gains in a few major divisions were more than $2.

Rails, steels, motors, chemicals, oils, and rubbers were among the hardest hit sections, and it was in this broad alignment of issues that the recovery found staunch support.

Radio-television as a group and merchandising stocks displayed the most notable resistance to selling, and in the end stood well ahead of the remainder of the list.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 50 cents at $90.60 with the industrial component off 50 cents, rails off 40 cents (again at a new low for the year), and utilities off 30 cents.

Trading totaled 2,580,000 shares, the heaviest since Feb. 5. Yesterday the total came to only 1,540,000 shares.

A long list of 1,211 individual issues was drawn into the market, among the broadest lists of the year. The record stands at 1,260 issues traded June 27, 1950, at the beginning of the Korean war.

An exceedingly large number of new lows were touched on the fall—213—and only two new highs for the year were reached.

New York Central jumped rapidly between a gain and a loss through most of the day and closed up ⅛ at 17⅞, the most active issue in the list with sales of 48,200 shares.

Following were General Motors off ⅝ at 48, Baltimore & Ohio off ⅛ at 19⅛, U. S. Steel off ¾ at 40⅝, International Telephone up 1 at 15⅜, and Radio Corp. up ⅝ at 19⅛.

Some issues fell into the decline and didn't come out on the rebound. Among them were Carpenter Steel off 2¼ at 50½, Newmont Mining 2½ at 101, Cotton Belt Railroad 15 at 290, Rohm & Haas 6½ at 123½, and Railroad Securities 6 at 55.

Position Of Treasury

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—The position of the Treasury May 22:

Net budget receipts, $343,903,615.14; budget expenditures, $210,666,911.25; cash balance, $6,660,225,998.38; customs receipts for month, $38,860,617.30; budget rcts fiscal yr July 1, $40,363,088,262.85; budget expenditures fiscal year, $37,067,836,903.40; budget surplus, $3,295,251,359.25; total debt, $254,769,320,418.93; increase over previous day, $12,235,706.22; gold assets, $2,755,410,077.45.

ORDER NISI

Alberta M. Llewellyn, adm., etc. vs. Alberta M. Llewellyn, et vir., No. 22,175 Equity, in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDERED this 23rd day of May, 1951, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, sitting in Equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by William J. Gunter, Trustee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 25th day of June, 1951, provided a copy of this Order be published in some newspaper published in Allegany County once a week for three successive weeks before the 18th day of June, 1951.

The report states the amount of sale to be Three Thousand One Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($3,150.00).

JOSEPH E. BODEN, Clerk.

May-N-25-June-N-1-8

NOTICE TO PAVING CONTRACTORS

Sealed Proposals addressed to the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, and endorsed, "Proposal for Surfacing Roads in Constitution Park" will be received at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Cumberland, Maryland, on or before twelve o'clock noon, E.D.S.T., June 4, 1951, on which date they will be publicly opened and read.

The work consists of the resurfacing of certain roads in Constitution Park with black top paving material, said surface to be one inch thick after compression, together with the necessary tack coat. The bidder is asked to submit separate proposals as follows:

Resurfacing approximately 2,335 square yards—approximately 130 tons, 1" thick after compression, plus necessary tack coat.

Resurfacing approximately 2,950 square yards—approximately 164 tons, 1" thick after compression, plus necessary tack coat.

Each Proposal must be accompanied by a certified check drawn to the order of the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, in the sum of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars, which check will be forfeited as liquidated damages in case an award is made and the contract is not promptly and properly executed. The checks of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned after the contract is awarded.

The Mayor and City Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids, or to award all or any part of this work.

NOTICE TO PAVING CONTRACTORS

Sealed Proposals addressed to the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, and endorsed, "Proposal for Flood Control street repaving in the City of Cumberland" will be received at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Cumberland, Maryland, on or before twelve o'clock noon, E. D. S. T., June 4, 1951, on which date they will be publicly opened and read.

The work consists of certain items of street pavement, sidewalks, curbs and appurtenances, including macadam base course, concrete pavement and bituminous plant mixed pavement incident to the restoration of street surfaces at various locations throughout the City of Cumberland in connection with the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Protection Project, as directed by the Flood Control Liaison Engineer. Bids shall be submitted on standard forms which will be available at the office of Mrs. Lucile Roeder, Commissioner of Streets & Public Property, City Hall, and which forms will list all necessary information for bidding.

The successful bidder will be required to enter into a contract with the City, and a bond in the amount of Twenty Thousand ($20,000.00) Dollars will be required for the faithful performance thereof.

Each Proposal must be accompanied by a certified check drawn to the order of the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, in the sum of Five Hundred ($500.00) Dollars, which check will be forfeited as liquidated damages in case an award is made and the contract and bond are not promptly and properly executed. The checks of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned after the contract is awarded.

The Mayor and City Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Celanese Plant To Remain In City, Blancke Declares

Chamber Told Amcelle, City Are Partners

President Recounts Many Joint Benefits

Celanese has no intention of leaving Cumberland.

Scotching what he termed a pernicious rumor, Harold Blancke, president of the Celanese Corporation of America, declared in a speech before the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce that the roots of Celanese are deep in this city.

The company and the community, he said, will march up the long road of the future together.

Blancke, head of the firm founded in this city 33 years ago, spoke on "Cumberland and Celanese — partners in a Business Enterprise" at the meeting attended by some 150 leaders of the area.

His speech follows:

"The title of our remarks to the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce this evening — 'Cumberland And Celanese — Partners In A Business Enterprise' — was chosen after a great deal of thought. The innermost kernal of truth in the established fact of our co-existence is that the people of Cumberland are in full partnership with a large business venture. This community of Cumberland and its out-lying towns have been partners with and the vital core of this growing Company for twenty-seven years — long enough to experience all the benefits and vicissitudes of intimate companionship, all the annoyances and misunderstandings of family life, the joys and prosperity resulting from successful partnership.

"The subject which concerns me the most at present is that of mutual understanding. Sometimes I wonder if we understand each other as well as we should. I shall speak to you as the conscience of the Company and discuss with you, the members of the Chamber of Commerce representing the civic conscience of Cumberland, the Company's point of view, its aspirations, policies, and hopes for perfect understanding for our mutual benefit.

Mutual Benefits

"It is probably natural for me to wish to recount, at the beginning of this talk, some of the mutual benefits which we have shared.

"In the first place, we all prospered because the Company has prospered. It is a growing Company in a dynamic growth industry. The chemical fiber industry is one of the most promising parts of the chemical industry and we consider cellulose acetate one of the most satisfactory of the fibers. It has achieved a basic position in the great textile market. This has occurred because of the fiber's inherent qualities which have made it possible for people to own more and better clothing at better values.

"From a material point of view, the Company quickly became the life blood of Cumberland as the coal mining industry, which was here originally, slowly became marginal and diminished in importance and failed to provide sufficient support to maintain the people. How many of us are aware that since 1924 the Company, in wages and salaries alone, has paid the people of Cumberland nearly $300,000,000? By the end of this year it should amount to over $300,000,000, for the annual payroll alone is now running over $17,000,000 a year. You recently saw in one of our community advertisements, published in the local papers as part of our effort to improve mutual understanding and appreciation of each other, an analysis of the sum of about $21,000,000 which the Company now pays into this area each year.

"You may recall that it showed the Company spends over $1,500,000 for coal purchased locally, nearly $1,125,000 for water, gas, electricity and telephones, well over $300,000 for county taxes, over $350,000 for hospital and medical services for employees and their families covered by the Celanese Group Insurance program, and over $435,000 for small miscellaneous purchases, such as lumber, hardware, paper, gasoline, foodstuffs, etc.

Rapid Growth

"In the twenty-six years of our partnership at the end of 1950 the population of Cumberland had increased 10,000; the number of high school students had increased 170% from 800 to over 2,100, and bank deposits had increased 230% from some $15,000,000 to more than $50,000,000. In 1923 there were six houses between the plant and Cumberland. There were a few dozen at Cresaptown. There was no Potomac Park. There are now flourishing communities of considerable size. Obviously, the community is better off than it has ever been before.

"I am well aware that considerable unemployment exists in Cumberland. I am also aware that the Company is held responsible for it. While we warned of the dangers ahead I regret that I must state, in all candor, my opinion that the Company has failed to impress the business community with the truth of the situation in order that the local business men and civic leaders might explain the conditions of those presumably less able to understand the economic facts of life and to plan for new employment.

False Security Cited

"Possibly the many years of steady employment at better-than-average wages caused our partners to take the Company for granted, to expect paternalistic support which lulled them into a sense of false security. It is true that the Amcelle plant grew too big, employed too large a segment of the population for the good of the community. When basic economic change affected the Company's course of development there was a grave danger that the Company could not continue to take such a disproportionate part in the support of the community. It is not good for the community nor for a business enterprise to become so completely dependent upon each other.

"Unfortunately for Cumberland, this disproportionate dependence on one enterprise was increased by the loss of two glass factories, the tinplate mill, and the leather plant without very much being done to restore the desirable diversity of employment represented by these enterprises.

"For a time during the last war the Company employed about 12,500 people in the local plant. That was out of all reason with respect to the safety of the economic life in Cumberland. Much of this employment was of a war-time nature. Some of it was just plain unprofitable. Certain of our textile operations in Cumberland could not compete with the same type of textile operations elsewhere. Plainly speaking, the wages and work-loads for those particular parts of the business were out of line. Since management is responsible for the safety of the money invested in a company by the public, including plain people like us, its clear duty is to protect the investment by closing down or moving unprofitable operations lest the investment of people's savings, having become unproductive, be lost altogether.

"Today, Celanese employs some 5,200 people in this area. As presently operated, it is a healthy organization. It probably provides indirect employment to an additional 7,500 — 10,000 people. It is the largest employer and the most important economic force in the life of the community. All of us have a right to expect it to maintain this important partnership as now constituted. We do not expect it or desire it to diminish in importance.

Modernization Outlined

"Since the end of the war the Company has spent $23,000,000 to modernize the plant and its equipment and make it as efficient as our other plants. We shall continue to do our part to keep this great factory competitive. Right now, this year, we are spending an additional $4,500,000 to improve the plant by installing additional air conditioning. This will improve the cleanliness of the yarn and also make the factory a more comfortable place in which to work. This newest expenditure should improve quality and reduce costs by reducing the percentage of second quality, soiled yarn. You can always depend upon Celanese Corporation of America to do its part to keep this great plant in Cumberland in a healthy condition, to keep it a vital, strong element in the community.

"Celanese continues to occupy as important a place in the economic and business life of Cumberland as it should. Unthinking persons are inclined to say that a big company should grow even bigger and employ everybody. Others equally unenlightened will say that a big company doesn't want other businesses near it because they would compete for labor and drive wages up. Thinking people recognize that a community should have many different types of business for its support. We live in a complex society and for a generation have been subjected to the false and pernicious propaganda of the socialists about the capitalist system, the system of competitive enterprise which alone sustains our liberties to live as free men and self-supporting, self-respecting citizens. We must endeavor to keep our economic thinking straight, although at times it may be difficult to do so.

City Needs Industries

"Cumberland's problem is unemployment and poor publicity. Now, the amount of unemployment in Cumberland must be reduced. It can best be reduced by attracting other industries into Cumberland. Celanese Corporation wants the people of Cumberland to have the diversified industry it needs.

"We contribute money to the Cumberland and Alleghany Industrial Promotion Company. Our manager, Mr. Harry Givens, gives time and work to the project. We encourage people who come to us to establish businesses in Cumberland. Thus far, the effort hasn't been very successful. But it will be if we persevere and act intelligently. We hear people say, "What's the matter with Cumberland? Why don't other companies set up plants there?

"We say, There's nothing the matter with Cumberland. We get along nicely now. There's plenty of room for other businesses. There are plenty of people able and willing to turn out good work to meet competition from any other decent place.

"We are told, There seems to be something wrong with the people there. Don't you have a lot of labor trouble? We hear a lot about it in the papers.

"We say, Today our labor relations were never better and we expect them to remain that way. In the past, long ago, we had troubles when a subversive, communistic group got partial control of the local union, but the union cleaned house and for years has had local officers who exercised reason. Moreover, we're forced to admit that part of the trouble was our fault, too. Management is composed of human beings also and sometimes fails to use common sense. Today the people in charge of our relations with the Unions are realistic men who came up through the ranks themselves and we expect a long era of industrial peace. As for adverse publicity, none of us can control that if we really deserve it. Moreover, none of us can control the selfish attitude of some publicists who are always ready to disturb industrial dislocations in order to sprawl across the attention of the public.

Must Promote City

"Ladies and gentlemen, for the sake of our mutual welfare, the citizens of Cumberland and Celanese Corporation must continue in our efforts to diversify our business life here and conduct ourselves in a manner calculated to show our best side to prospective neighbors. We must promote Cumberland.

"I also want to talk about the continued growth of Celanese Corporation. From the humble beginnings in the former cornfield west of town, the Company multiplied until today it owns and operates twelve plants in the United States, three in foreign countries, and is building five more outside the United States. Lest some think that the Company should have tried to build all this great production in Cumberland, let me remind you of limitations in addition to what I have just said about the danger of a community being too dependent upon a single enterprise.

"The most serious physical limitation to expansion beyond present size in Cumberland is the supply of water. The Amcelle plant is largely dependent upon an ample supply of Cumberland city water. It is very expensive from an industrial point of view and it would not be economical to try to expand that supply. We cannot use river water without disastrous effects on the quality of the product, largely due to the quality of the river water, to say nothing of pollution by the time it reaches the plant. When a drought curtails the supply of city water available to the plant, as occurred a few years ago, and river water must be used, the resulting poorer quality of the cellulose acetate causes immediate loss of business to competitors.

Built Other Plants

"So the Company built large plants, the size of Amcelle, in Virginia and South Carolina. Since these plants have now reached or are about to reach optimum size, it will be necessary to start construction of additional plants in other locations soon. We also have built and will continue to build plants outside the United States. The Company can better serve the people of the world by establishing plants in their own countries than by trying to export from the United States. As a mater of fact, tariffs, artificial trade barriers, and world-wide shortages of our basic raw materials make any other method of expansion impossible. All this growth, I emphasize, is due to the excellence of cellulose acetate as a chemical fiber and a plastic, as a basic fiber in a dynamic industry which is destined to grow more and more in importance as the years pass because it has and continues to help make possible better clothing at better

Collett Improving

The condition of Armand J. Collett was reported as "slightly improved" late last night by attaches of Miners Hospital, Frostburg, where he was admitted early Monday morning. The 25-year-old Kelly chemist, of Braddock Road, was critically injured in a highway accident near Guntertown.

License Issued

A beer, wine and liquor license was issued yesterday by the Allegany County Liquor Control Board to Joseph K. Burns for premises at 47 Main Street, Westernport.

Streets Dept. Will Purchase Bucket Loader

Designed To Speed Up Construction Work

A bucket loader to be purchased for the Department of Streets and Public Property will enable the department to use its "snow loader" 12 months out of the year.

The Mayor and Council this week referred to Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of Streets and Public Property, a bid of $2,180 for the equipment.

The loader, designed to be used with the present snow loader, consists of a chain operated series of buckets to be used in loading sand, gravel, crushed stone, cinders or dirt, with a boom to direct the materials into waiting trucks.

It is similar in operation to the snow loader but instead of light paddles, is equipped with heavy duty steel buckets.

Toothed spirals 30 inches in diameter and six feet, six inches wide feed the material to be loaded into the buckets.

The equipment was designed as an economical and prcatical unit for handling road materials.

Use of the equipment will speed up the department's construction work by virtually eliminating the need for hand loading of materials.

Royalty Gets Crown Despite Her Measles

North End Pageant Goes On Schedule

Fate at first seemed to decree otherwise but 10-year-old Mary Ethel Knieriem received her crown as junior May Queen at the North End Playground Association's Pageant last night despite rain and the measles.

The coronation was originally scheduled for Wednesday night but was postponed one day because of inclement weather. Then Mary Ethel came down with the measles yesterday and it seemed she would have to miss the program.

But with permission of her doctor Mary Ethel attended the coronation and pageant in an isolated truck and Adrian Mackert substituted for her in the line of procession, receiving the loving cup and crown from Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property. Adrian then presented Mary Ethel with the crown and cup through the window of the truck and the little girl watched the remainder of the program from the vehicle.

Leona Michaels, 16, senior queen, was also crowned and boy winners of the recent membership drive were awarded athletic prizes by Mrs. Roeder. A square dance for the public ended the festivities.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The King and Queen of the Cresaptown Junior High School's 17th annual May Health Day Festival will be crowned this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the school. Miss Margaret Morrissey will crown James Moore, Jr., and Doris Clayton to reign at the festivities.

Algonquin Forest No. 140, Tall Cedars of Lebanon will hold their regular meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the Loyal Order of Moose Home, Beall Street.

Equity Suits Filed

Two equity suits were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bills of complaint were titled Charlotte Kesler vs John I. Kesler and Arthur Nester vs. Julia Nester.

Faith In Future Of Celanese Is Expressed By President Of Firm

Blancke Addresses Meeting Of Chamber

Faith in the future of the Celanese Corporation of America, which began in this city 33 years ago, was expressed last night by Harold Blancke, president of the giant textile, plastics and chemical firm.

In response to a query by Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., on prospects for the future development, the Celanese official said the organization is a healthy one.

"When you have a healthy organization", he added, "there is no reason why such an organization should not grow."

Blancke added it is impossible to say in what direction the growth might occur.

The statement was made following Blancke's address before the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

The other question asked from the floor was whether, in his opinion, "we are still suffering from poor publicity?"

Blancke said tremendous progress has been made and that publicity is quite satisfactory now. Many times in the past, he added, it was "not based on fact".

Cumberland, he added, must continually see that there is no bad publicity. It is going in the right direction, he concluded, "but there's a long row to hoe."

Assurance that the future water problems of the Amcelle plant are in the process of being solved was expressed by Owen E. Hitchins, chairman of the Upper Potomac River Commission.

Hitchins said the Savage River Dam, which goes into operation this year, will assure adequate water supplies throughout the year for the plant.

Some 250 members of the Chamber and their guests attended the dinner.

Joseph M. Naughton, president of the Chamber, presided and Rev. H. M. Richardson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, gave the invocation.

Among the guests were E. N. Cleaves and Fred T. Small, Celanese vice presidents; H. C. Givens, Jr., Amcelle plant manager; Rep. J. Glenn Beall, the Mayor and Council of Cumberland and the Board of Allegany County Commissioners.

Siding Argument Cited In Suits

A $1,000 breach of contract suit and a $1,500 assault suit, both stemming from a disagreement over the placing of composition siding on a house near Flintstone, were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Allan Krauss and Ben Abramson, trading as Alben Homecraft Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., filed suit through Attorney James Alfred Avirett yesterday against Ellery D. Smith and his wife, charging that the defendants signed a contract April 2 to have inselbric placed on their house and then ordered the workmen away after work already had started on the house near Flintstone. This suit sought $1,000 damages.

The second suit, also filed by Attorney Avirett, listed Alan Turner as plaintiff and Smith as defendant. Avirett said that Turner was a salesman for the Alben Homecraft Company. This suit, which seeks $1,500 damages, charges that on April 6, when work was started on the siding project, Smith struck Turner in the mouth with his fist, causing three upper front teeth to be broken off at the roots. Turner, through his attorney, contended he was compelled to undergo oral surgery, to have temporary and permanent partial plates made and was unable to work as a salesman for two weeks.

Korean War Dead Are Placed On Honor Roll Here

The names of four Allegany County servicemen who paid the supreme sacrifice in Korean service have been placed upon the Allegany County Honor Roll in City Hall.

They are James W. Rafferty, Frostburg; Alton McDonald and Donald L. Bishop, both of this city, and Isaac M. Bradburn, Lonaconing.

Still to be placed on the roll is the name of Ralph E. Wilson, Mt. Savage.

Thomas F. Conlon, chairman of the Honor Roll committee, asked yesterday that the names of those who gave their lives in Korean service since June 24, 1950, be sent to the committee so they may be placed on the honor roll. He added the information may also be submitted by calling Cumberland 190.

Accident Report Given By Police

Seventeen accidents, including one fatility and injuries to nine persons, occurred in Allegany County last month. According to the Traffic Collision Statistical Report of the Maryland State Police the number of property damage accidents was 11.

A total of 179 arrests was made and 197 warnings issued to motorists. On a day by day basis the largest number of arrests was made on Saturdays with the lowest on Thursdays.

The hour of the day when most arrests were made was between 11 p. m. and 11:59 p. m. and the least arrests in the early morning hours. According to statistics the heaviest number of arrests and warnings come between the hours of 7 p. m. and midnight.

The largest number of violations involved in mishaps during April was due to reckless driving, with failure to obey traffic control a close second.

Judge To Resentence Black Here Today

Robert H. Black, 17, Baltimore, who has been held in Allegany County jail here since he was sentenced earlier this month to the Maryland Reformatory for Males for a year for unauthorized use of an automobile stolen from a Frostburg man, will be returned to Trial Magistrates Court at 10:30 a. m. this morning for resentencing, Judge J. Milton Dick said yesterday.

An investigation of facts pertinent to the case was made by Thomas P. McCarthy, deputy chief probation officer of the Probation Department of Supreme Bench of Baltimore City, and the disclosure of additional information in the case warranted the move, Dick said.

Wood Products Firm To Expand Operations Here

Spicer, Fahey To Make Knife Handles

The manufacture of wood handles, which has been a minor industry here for several decades, will be accelerated within the next month.

Two local men, Stanley F. Spicer, 17 Lamont Street, and Richard E. Fahey, 1411 Olive Avenue, have secured a permit to build a one story building, 25 by 50 feet, on Olive Avenue, for the work.

Spicer said they hope to have the building up and be ready for operation within the next 30 days.

Spicer and Fahey have been affiliated with the manufacture of handles and other wood products since they began to work at the James Nixon firm in the rear of Shriver Avenue some 20 years ago.

Spicer, who was superintendent when the firm employed some 65 men in 1944, revived the work about two years ago, making handles in the cellar of his home, and recently with Fahey, has been operating a small shop at the rear of Bowen Street.

At present, the men are manufacturing cutlery handles of American walnut, beechwood and rosewood and Concola wood from Brazil.

They said they are at present selling the handles to firms in New York, Ohio and Chicago and that cutlery firms have asked increased quotas.

The three workers employed at present will be increased to six when the building is completed.

Spicer said the local firm is making a product here, with machinery designed and made locally, which is able to meet the competition of completely automatic shapers.

Building Permits Show Decline

Building permits in Cumberland during April took a noticeable drop from the same period last year. In the past month $77,375 was shown as compared to $108,250 in 1950. In the first quarter period of 1951, $323,935 was listed while in April of last year $341,395 was noted.

The report of the Research Department of the Federal Reserve Bank, Richmond, shows the sharpest drop in Frederick. During 1950 $193,725 was noted while in the same period of this year $47,015 was shown.

Salisbury figures show a definite increase with a $354,874 being shown last month in comparison to $135,852 in the same period last year. The first four month's figure for this year in Salisbury was $722,478 as compared to $415,592. In Frederick the figure for the first four months of 1951 shows the amount of $533,540, a sharp drop from $1,138,875 in the similar period last year.

During last month in Hagerstown $281,015 in building permits was shown as compared to $267,280 in 1950. The first four months figure in 1950 was $660,870 as compared to $643,185 in the past four months.

WEATHER

The sun shone brightly yesterday although the air was a little chilly. Many lawn mowers were oiled up and put into action by the more eager residents of the Queen City. Constitution Park weather station reported a high of 70 degrees and a low of 50, with temperature of 63 at 8:35 o'clock last night. Dewpoint was 41.3 and humidity 43.5 percent. Cumberlanders are promised fair and warmer weather today by the forecaster.

Celanese Plant To Remain In City, Blancke Declares

Celanese Officials Greeted

Chamber Told Amcelle, City Are Partners

President Recounts Many Joint Benefits

Celanese has no intention of leaving Cumberland.

This has occurred because of the fiber's inherent qualities which have made it possible for people to own more and better clothing at better values.

"From a material point of view, the Company quickly became the life blood of Cumberland as the coal mining industry, which was here originally, slowly became marginal and diminished in importance and failed to provide sufficient support to maintain the people. How many of us are aware that since 1924 the Company, in wages and salaries alone, has paid the people of Cumberland nearly $300,000,000? By the end of this year it should amount to over $300,000,000, for the annual payroll alone is now running over $17,000,000 a year. You recently saw in one of our community advertisements, published in the local papers as part of our effort to improve mutual understanding and appreciation of each other, an analysis of the sum of about $21,000,000 which the Company now pays into this area each year.

"You may recall that it showed the Company spends over $1,500,000 for coal purchased locally, nearly $1,125,000 for water, gas, electricity and telephones, well over $300,000 for county taxes, over $350,000 for hospital and medical services for employees and their families covered by the Celanese Group Insurance program, and over $435,000 for small miscellaneous purchases, such as lumber, hardware, paper, gasoline, foodstuffs, etc.

Rapid Growth

"In the twenty-six years of our partnership at the end of 1950 the population of Cumberland had increased 10,000; the number of high school students had increased 170% from 800 to over 2,100, and bank deposits had increased 230% from some $15,000,000 to more than $50,000,000. In 1923 there were six houses between the plant and Cumberland. There were a few dozen at Cresaptown. There was no Potomac Park. There are now flourishing communities of considerable size. Obviously, the community is better off than it has ever been before.

"I am well aware that considerable unemployment exists in Cumberland. I am also aware that the Company is held responsible for it. While we warned of the dangers ahead I regret that I must state, in all candor, my opinion that the Company has failed to impress the business community with the truth of the situation in order that the local business men and civic leaders might explain the conditions of those presumably less able to understand the economic facts of life and to plan for new employment.

False Security Cited

"Possibly the many years of steady employment at better-than-average wages caused our partners to take the Company for granted, to expect paternalistic support which lulled them into a sense of false security. It is true that the Amcelle plant grew too big, employed too large a segment of the population for the good of the community. When basic economic change affected the Company's course of development there was a grave danger that the Company could not continue to take such a disproportionate part in the support of the community. It is not good for the community nor for a business enterprise to become so completely dependent upon each other.

"Unfortunately for Cumberland, this disproportionate dependence on one enterprise was increased by the loss of two glass factories, the tinplate mill, and the leather plant without very much being done to restore the desirable diversity of employment represented by these enterprises.

"For a time during the last war the Company employed about 12,500 people in the local plant. That was out of all reason with respect to the safety of the economic life in Cumberland. Much of this employment was of a war-time nature. Some of it was just plain unprofitable. Certain of our textile operations in Cumberland could not compete with the same type of textile operations elsewhere. Plainly speaking, the wages and work-loads for those particular parts of the business were out of line. Since management is responsible for the safety of the money invested in a company by the public, including plain people like us, its clear duty is to protect the investment by closing down or moving unprofitable operations lest the investment of people's savings, having become unproductive, be lost altogether.

"Today, Celanese employs some 5,200 people in this area. As presently operated, it is a healthy organization. It probably provides indirect employment to an additional 7,500 — 10,000 people. It is the largest employer and the most important economic force in the life of the community. All of us have a right to expect it to maintain this important partnership as now constituted. We do not expect it or desire it to diminish in importance.

Modernization Outlined

"Since the end of the war the Company has spent $23,000,000 to modernize the plant and its equipment and make it as efficient as our other plants. We shall continue to do our part to keep this great factory competitive. Right now, this year, we are spending an additional $4,500,000 to improve the plant by installing additional air conditioning. This will improve the cleanliness of the yarn and also make the factory a more comfortable place in which to work. This newest expenditure should improve quality and reduce costs by reducing the percentage of second quality, soiled yarn. You can always depend upon Celanese Corporation of America to do its part to keep this great plant in Cumberland in a healthy condition, to keep it a vital, strong element in the community.

"Celanese continues to occupy as important a place in the economic and business life of Cumberland as it should. Unthinking persons are inclined to say that a big company should grow even bigger and employ everybody. Others equally unenlightened will say that a big company doesn't want other businesses near it because they would compete for labor and drive wages up. Thinking people recognize that a community should have many different types of business for its support. We live in a complex society and for a generation have been subjected to the false and pernicious propaganda of the socialists about the capitalist system, the system of competitive enterprise which alone sustains our liberties to live as free men and self-supporting, self-respecting citizens. We must endeavor to keep our economic thinking straight, although at times it may be difficult to do so.

City Needs Industries

"Cumberland's problem is unemployment and poor publicity. Now, the amount of unemployment in Cumberland must be reduced. It can best be reduced by attracting other industries into Cumberland. Celanese Corporation wants the people of Cumberland to have the diversified industry it needs.

"We contribute money to the Cumberland and Alleghany Industrial Promotion Company. Our manager, Mr. Harry Givens, gives time and work to the project. We encourage people who come to us to establish businesses in Cumberland. Thus far, the effort hasn't been very successful. But it will be if we persevere and act intelligently. We hear people say, "What's the matter with Cumberland? Why don't other companies set up plants there?

"We say, There's nothing the matter with Cumberland. We get along nicely now. There's plenty of room for other businesses. There are plenty of people able and willing to turn out good work to meet competition from any other decent place.

"We are told, There seems to be something wrong with the people there. Don't you have a lot of labor trouble? We hear a lot about it in the papers.

"We say, Today our labor relations were never better and we expect them to remain that way. In the past, long ago, we had troubles when a subversive, communistic group got partial control of the local union, but the union cleaned house and for years has had local officers who exercised reason. Moreover, we're forced to admit that part of the trouble was our fault, too. Management is composed of human beings also and sometimes fails to use common sense. Today the people in charge of our relations with the Unions are realistic men who came up through the ranks themselves and we expect a long era of industrial peace. As for adverse publicity, none of us can control that if we really deserve it. Moreover, none of us can control the selfish attitude of some publicists who are always ready to disturb industrial dislocations in order to sprawl across the attention of the public.

Must Promote City

"Ladies and gentlemen, for the sake of our mutual welfare, the citizens of Cumberland and Celanese Corporation must continue in our efforts to diversify our business life here and conduct ourselves in a manner calculated to show our best side to prospective neighbors. We must promote Cumberland.

"I also want to talk about the continued growth of Celanese Corporation. From the humble beginnings in the former cornfield west of town, the Company multiplied until today it owns and operates twelve plants in the United States, three in foreign countries, and is building five more outside the United States. Lest some think that the Company should have tried to build all this great production in Cumberland, let me remind you of limitations in addition to what I have just said about the danger of a community being too dependent upon a single enterprise.

"The most serious physical limitation to expansion beyond present size in Cumberland is the supply of water. The Amcelle plant is largely dependent upon an ample supply of Cumberland city water. It is very expensive from an industrial point of view and it would not be economical to try to expand that supply. We cannot use river water without disastrous effects on the quality of the product, largely due to the quality of the river water, to say nothing of pollution by the time it reaches the plant. When a drought curtails the supply of city water available to the plant, as occurred a few years ago, and river water must be used, the resulting poorer quality of the cellulose acetate causes immediate loss of business to competitors.

Built Other Plants

"So the Company built large plants, the size of Amcelle, in Virginia and South Carolina. Since these plants have now reached or are about to reach optimum size, it will be necessary to start construction of additional plants in other locations soon. We also have built and will continue to build plants outside the United States. The Company can better serve the people of the world by establishing plants in their own countries than by trying to export from the United States. As a mater of fact, tariffs, artificial trade barriers, and world-wide shortages of our basic raw materials make any other method of expansion impossible. All this growth, I emphasize, is due to the excellence of cellulose acetate as a chemical fiber and a plastic, as a basic fiber in a dynamic industry which is destined to grow more and more in importance as the years pass because it has and continues to help make possible better clothing at better

Collett Improving

The condition of Armand J. Collett was reported as "slightly improved" late last night by attaches of Miners Hospital, Frostburg, where he was admitted early Monday morning. The 25-year-old Kelly chemist, of Braddock Road, was critically injured in a highway accident near Guntertown.

License Issued

A beer, wine and liquor license was issued yesterday by the Allegany County Liquor Control Board to Joseph K. Burns for premises at 47 Main Street, Westernport.

Streets Dept. Will Purchase Bucket Loader

Designed To Speed Up Construction Work

A bucket loader to be purchased for the Department of Streets and Public Property will enable the department to use its "snow loader" 12 months out of the year.

The Mayor and Council this week referred to Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of Streets and Public Property, a bid of $2,180 for the equipment.

The loader, designed to be used with the present snow loader, consists of a chain operated series of buckets to be used in loading sand, gravel, crushed stone, cinders or dirt, with a boom to direct the materials into waiting trucks.

It is similar in operation to the snow loader but instead of light paddles, is equipped with heavy duty steel buckets.

Toothed spirals 30 inches in diameter and six feet, six inches wide feed the material to be loaded into the buckets.

The equipment was designed as an economical and prcatical unit for handling road materials.

Use of the equipment will speed up the department's construction work by virtually eliminating the need for hand loading of materials.

Royalty Gets Crown Despite Her Measles

North End Pageant Goes On Schedule

Fate at first seemed to decree otherwise but 10-year-old Mary Ethel Knieriem received her crown as junior May Queen at the North End Playground Association's Pageant last night despite rain and the measles.

The coronation was originally scheduled for Wednesday night but was postponed one day because of inclement weather. Then Mary Ethel came down with the measles yesterday and it seemed she would have to miss the program.

But with permission of her doctor Mary Ethel attended the coronation and pageant in an isolated truck and Adrian Mackert substituted for her in the line of procession, receiving the loving cup and crown from Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property. Adrian then presented Mary Ethel with the crown and cup through the window of the truck and the little girl watched the remainder of the program from the vehicle.

Leona Michaels, 16, senior queen, was also crowned and boy winners of the recent membership drive were awarded athletic prizes by Mrs. Roeder. A square dance for the public ended the festivities.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The King and Queen of the Cresaptown Junior High School's 17th annual May Health Day Festival will be crowned this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the school. Miss Margaret Morrissey will crown James Moore, Jr., and Doris Clayton to reign at the festivities.

Algonquin Forest No. 140, Tall Cedars of Lebanon will hold their regular meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the Loyal Order of Moose Home, Beall Street.

Equity Suits Filed

Two equity suits were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bills of complaint were titled Charlotte Kesler vs John I. Kesler and Arthur Nester vs. Julia Nester.

Faith In Future Of Celanese Is Expressed By President Of Firm

Blancke Addresses Meeting Of Chamber

Faith in the future of the Celanese Corporation of America, which began in this city 33 years ago, was expressed last night by Harold Blancke, president of the giant textile, plastics and chemical firm.

In response to a query by Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., on prospects for the future development, the Celanese official said the organization is a healthy one.

"When you have a healthy organization", he added, "there is no reason why such an organization should not grow."

Blancke added it is impossible to say in what direction the growth might occur.

The statement was made following Blancke's address before the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

The other question asked from the floor was whether, in his opinion, "we are still suffering from poor publicity?"

Blancke said tremendous progress has been made and that publicity is quite satisfactory now. Many times in the past, he added, it was "not based on fact".

Cumberland, he added, must continually see that there is no bad publicity. It is going in the right direction, he concluded, "but there's a long row to hoe."

Assurance that the future water problems of the Amcelle plant are in the process of being solved was expressed by Owen E. Hitchins, chairman of the Upper Potomac River Commission.

Hitchins said the Savage River Dam, which goes into operation this year, will assure adequate water supplies throughout the year for the plant.

Some 250 members of the Chamber and their guests attended the dinner.

Joseph M. Naughton, president of the Chamber, presided and Rev. H. M. Richardson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, gave the invocation.

Among the guests were E. N. Cleaves and Fred T. Small, Celanese vice presidents; H. C. Givens, Jr., Amcelle plant manager; Rep. J. Glenn Beall, the Mayor and Council of Cumberland and the Board of Allegany County Commissioners.

Siding Argument Cited In Suits

A $1,000 breach of contract suit and a $1,500 assault suit, both stemming from a disagreement over the placing of composition siding on a house near Flintstone, were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Allan Krauss and Ben Abramson, trading as Alben Homecraft Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., filed suit through Attorney James Alfred Avirett yesterday against Ellery D. Smith and his wife, charging that the defendants signed a contract April 2 to have inselbric placed on their house and then ordered the workmen away after work already had started on the house near Flintstone. This suit sought $1,000 damages.

The second suit, also filed by Attorney Avirett, listed Alan Turner as plaintiff and Smith as defendant. Avirett said that Turner was a salesman for the Alben Homecraft Company. This suit, which seeks $1,500 damages, charges that on April 6, when work was started on the siding project, Smith struck Turner in the mouth with his fist, causing three upper front teeth to be broken off at the roots. Turner, through his attorney, contended he was compelled to undergo oral surgery, to have temporary and permanent partial plates made and was unable to work as a salesman for two weeks.

Korean War Dead Are Placed On Honor Roll Here

The names of four Allegany County servicemen who paid the supreme sacrifice in Korean service have been placed upon the Allegany County Honor Roll in City Hall.

They are James W. Rafferty, Frostburg; Alton McDonald and Donald L. Bishop, both of this city, and Isaac M. Bradburn, Lonaconing.

Still to be placed on the roll is the name of Ralph E. Wilson, Mt. Savage.

Thomas F. Conlon, chairman of the Honor Roll committee, asked yesterday that the names of those who gave their lives in Korean service since June 24, 1950, be sent to the committee so they may be placed on the honor roll. He added the information may also be submitted by calling Cumberland 190.

Accident Report Given By Police

Seventeen accidents, including one fatility and injuries to nine persons, occurred in Allegany County last month. According to the Traffic Collision Statistical Report of the Maryland State Police the number of property damage accidents was 11.

A total of 179 arrests was made and 197 warnings issued to motorists. On a day by day basis the largest number of arrests was made on Saturdays with the lowest on Thursdays.

The hour of the day when most arrests were made was between 11 p. m. and 11:59 p. m. and the least arrests in the early morning hours. According to statistics the heaviest number of arrests and warnings come between the hours of 7 p. m. and midnight.

The largest number of violations involved in mishaps during April was due to reckless driving, with failure to obey traffic control a close second.

Judge To Resentence Black Here Today

Robert H. Black, 17, Baltimore, who has been held in Allegany County jail here since he was sentenced earlier this month to the Maryland Reformatory for Males for a year for unauthorized use of an automobile stolen from a Frostburg man, will be returned to Trial Magistrates Court at 10:30 a. m. this morning for resentencing, Judge J. Milton Dick said yesterday.

An investigation of facts pertinent to the case was made by Thomas P. McCarthy, deputy chief probation officer of the Probation Department of Supreme Bench of Baltimore City, and the disclosure of additional information in the case warranted the move, Dick said.

Wood Products Firm To Expand Operations Here

Spicer, Fahey To Make Knife Handles

The manufacture of wood handles, which has been a minor industry here for several decades, will be accelerated within the next month.

Two local men, Stanley F. Spicer, 17 Lamont Street, and Richard E. Fahey, 1411 Olive Avenue, have secured a permit to build a one story building, 25 by 50 feet, on Olive Avenue, for the work.

Spicer said they hope to have the building up and be ready for operation within the next 30 days.

Spicer and Fahey have been affiliated with the manufacture of handles and other wood products since they began to work at the James Nixon firm in the rear of Shriver Avenue some 20 years ago.

Spicer, who was superintendent when the firm employed some 65 men in 1944, revived the work about two years ago, making handles in the cellar of his home, and recently with Fahey, has been operating a small shop at the rear of Bowen Street.

At present, the men are manufacturing cutlery handles of American walnut, beechwood and rosewood and Concola wood from Brazil.

They said they are at present selling the handles to firms in New York, Ohio and Chicago and that cutlery firms have asked increased quotas.

The three workers employed at present will be increased to six when the building is completed.

Spicer said the local firm is making a product here, with machinery designed and made locally, which is able to meet the competition of completely automatic shapers.

Building Permits Show Decline

Building permits in Cumberland during April took a noticeable drop from the same period last year. In the past month $77,375 was shown as compared to $108,250 in 1950. In the first quarter period of 1951, $323,935 was listed while in April of last year $341,395 was noted.

The report of the Research Department of the Federal Reserve Bank, Richmond, shows the sharpest drop in Frederick. During 1950 $193,725 was noted while in the same period of this year $47,015 was shown.

Salisbury figures show a definite increase with a $354,874 being shown last month in comparison to $135,852 in the same period last year. The first four month's figure for this year in Salisbury was $722,478 as compared to $415,592. In Frederick the figure for the first four months of 1951 shows the amount of $533,540, a sharp drop from $1,138,875 in the similar period last year.

During last month in Hagerstown $281,015 in building permits was shown as compared to $267,280 in 1950. The first four months figure in 1950 was $660,870 as compared to $643,185 in the past four months.

WEATHER

The sun shone brightly yesterday although the air was a little chilly. Many lawn mowers were oiled up and put into action by the more eager residents of the Queen City. Constitution Park weather station reported a high of 70 degrees and a low of 50, with temperature of 63 at 8:35 o'clock last night. Dewpoint was 41.3 and humidity 43.5 percent. Cumberlanders are promised fair and warmer weather today by the forecaster.

Former Title Winners To Attend Miss Western Maryland Pageant Here Tonight

MISS JEAN DIXON
Miss Maryland 1947

MRS. JUANITA BUCY
Miss Maryland 1948

MRS. NADENE GURLEY
Miss Cumberland 1949

MISS BARBARA FULTON
Miss Cumberland 1950

Four local beauties who captured Miss Cumberland and Miss Maryland titles since the inception of the Miss American Pageant in Cumberland in 1947 are to return to the scenes of their earlier triumphs tonight as the Cumberland and Frostburg Junior Associations of Commerce once again present a bevy of eye-filling, talented lovlies in the 1951 Miss Western Maryland Pageant at Allegany High School auditorium at 8:30 o'clock. Miss Jean Dixon, who first captured both the Miss Cumberland and Miss Maryland crowns in 1947; Mrs. Juanita Lookabaugh Bucy, who was the winner of the two coveted titles in 1948; Mrs. Nadene Atkinson Gurley, Miss Cumberland of 1949; and Miss Barbara Lee Fulton, Miss Cumberland of 1950, will be guests of the sponsoring groups tonight as nine area girls once again vie for the prestige, honors and prizes that will be theirs for the winning of the newly formulated Miss Western Maryland diadem. Five Cumberland girls, one from Frostburg, one from McCoole, one from Eckhart and one from Lonaconing will endeavor to represent the Western end of the state in the Miss Maryland finals in Baltimore in June. The contestants are Miss Betty Boor, 18, Miss Joan Hare, 18, Miss Irene Keller, 21, Miss Monica Browning, 22, and Miss Pauline Donahue, 21, all of Cumberland; Miss Phyllis Riggleman, 21, McCoole; Miss Patricia Engle, 19, Frostburg; Miss Naomi Brode, 19, Eckhart; and Miss Glenna Lyden, 19, Lonaconing. Music will be provided by Allegany High School Senior Orchestra and the Cumberland Choristers and Miss Dixon will sing several selections. Thomas Fallon and Robert Roland will be masters of ceremonies and the judges will include Alex Sherwood, Standard Radio and Television; Harry Gibbs, chairman Interpretative Committee, M. R. B.; Mrs. Marion Petry, chairman, Somerset Maple Pageant; R. L. Sumner, manager, Mountain Fruit Sales; Bland Hoke, manager, Bedford Springs Hotel; and Miss Beverly Bowne, music department, Potomac State College. The nine girls will compete in evening gowns, talent and bathing suits prior to a personality test by the judges.
